ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

The six or seven hoodlums who were running amok on the Gulf Islands ferry on route to Swartz Bay one night recently would have been quieter had they known the routine reserved for such hi-jinks.

Ferry authorities don't usually interfere. But when the ship docks local RCMP are tipped off. The car containing the trouble makers is pulled over and the occupants thoroughly checked out. Licences are examined. The car is checked for booze. Often the celebrants find the trouble they have been looking for. Fed up passengers hope the dragnet scored.

People who live in the upper stretches of Millstream Road probably have good reason to dislike hunters. There are always a few trigger happy riflemen who combine target practice and fence damage with the sport. In recent years several hunters have found their cars damaged and for some this might appear to be poetic justice.

But we know two 19-year-olds, one a grocery assistant (part time while going to school), the other a warehouse worker, good hunters who observe all the rules. A week ago they came back to their car after a hike up the power line off Millstream Road. They found all four tires flat and the valve stems missing.

It was 10 p.m. before they got the car out—with the aid of a wrecker. Located on a hill, it was too difficult to jack. They'll work a long time to earn what it cost them for that piece of vandalism.

If it was a resident taking out his spite on careless hunters, he got the wrong parties. If his conscience bothers him, Roundabout would put him in touch with the boys on a no-names basis.

An 1865 postage stamp which cost one of our Vancouver Island forefathers five cents is expected to fetch $6,750 in an auction at London, England, next month.

The stamp reproduced at right, is part of the Lars Amundsen collection which Stanley Gibbons Ltd. will sell over the period Dec. 6 to 8. The total sale is expected to realize more than half a million dollars for the Norwegian Lifesaving Society. Lars Amundsen is the grandson of Roald Amundsen, first man to reach the South Pole. His gift will buy a lifeboat to be named after his home town, Fredrikstad.

Now that austerity threatens federal spending, it's a good time to draw the abuse of typewriter ribbons to the attention of Mr. Hellyer. We have a 31 line news release from CFB Esquimalt which uses the words Canada or Canadian 10 times. That's patriotism.

New Democrats are chortling about the way Liberal Leader Ray Perrault apparently switched horses on the question of establishing a housing authority in B.C.

The party points out that Leo Nimsiek (NDP-Cranbrook) made a motion last session asking for a housing authority. The Liberals voted with the Socials to defeat the motion.

Recently, Mr. Perrault called publicly for establishment of a housing authority and a ministry of housing. He can expect to hear about that when the session opens in January.

The provincial government has started clearing land on McKenzie for a permanent car testing station here. And that's expensive news for hundreds of Victoria drivers, many of them students.

Police say many drivers who have bought cars in the under-$200 range are liable to find it will cost several hundred more to put them in shape to pass the test. Brakes, steering, wheel alignment, tires, lights and horns will be on the check list.

Junk yards will experience a boom. Anyone buying a used car from now on should demand it be in condition to pass testing. Almost any service station will do a check for a token fee.

The old lady of Government Street has adopted a stylish new symbol to top off the rejuvenating program of recent months. The Empress is a place you would expect would display a coat of arms, perhaps with a teapot rampant and a red-jacketed bellboy couchant on a field of geraniums. But what have they come up with? That's it you're looking at — a set of unpeppered pendant over a set of lowers and an asparagus tip about to be digested. We're almost afraid to look to see whether they've removed those beautiful battle scenes from the stair landings and replace them with modern impressionists.

SEPARATISM

standard of living across Canada.

He said he would oppose absolutely any constitution change if it means there would be "nine provinces and one something else and an emasculated Ottawa."

It would be intolerable to him if his grandchildren went to Quebec and could obtain education in French only.

Mr. Manning said it would be "grossly unfair" to say that Alberta was indifferent to Quebec's aspirations.

The constitutional issue and glaring economic disparities were inter-related. The first fields where discrepancies should be removed were education, health and living standards.

Mr. Johnson, last speaker before the lunch break, drew heavy applause when he said the provinces must be given the right to participate with Ottawa in the decisions on national programs.

An end must be put to the tug of war for funds between the federal government and the provinces and among provinces themselves.

MUST BE CHANGE

He said the constitution must be changed so that the provinces do not have to get begging on their knees to Ottawa for funds.

Federal programs were sometimes instituted according to whim, or in hotel rooms, or to win elections without consultation and without taking into account regional priorities.

There had been a "shameful waste" of public funds because of uncoordinated plans.

Mr. Johnson said 30 per cent of Canada's population does not have equal status with the rest. The constitution had pushed back the French fact and unless the "ghetto complex" was eliminated no prayer would settle the obvious course of events.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

A broad trough of low pressure southeastward over B.C. will maintain the cold, unsettled weather of the last few days. Rain over the north coast and snow over the central interior early this morning will spread southeastward over the province today with only a few showers or snow flurries expected on Wednesday.

CONFEDERATION OF TOMORROW

"... so, without further ado, I'll hand the chair over to Madam Fifi!"

NEWMAN

Drew of Ontario, Stirling Macmillan of Nova Scotia, J. B. McNair of New Brunswick, Walter Jones of P.E.I., Tommy Douglas of Saskatchewan, and a much younger and relatively untried E. C. Manning of Alberta.)

Even though his personality is as untheatrical as ever, it is Daniel Johnson of Quebec who inevitably dominates the current conference. As usual he dismisses the 1867 confederation contract merely as "our fifth constitution since 1760," stressing that 50 other countries have adopted new constitutions since the Second World War.

FREE REIN

His tone is mild as he reiterates his demands for free rein by Quebec "to make its own decision—affecting the growth of its citizens as human beings (i.e. education, social security and health in all respects), their economic development (i.e. the forging of any economic and financial tool deemed necessary), their cultural fulfillment (which takes in not only arts and literature but the French language as well), and the presence abroad of the Quebec community (i.e. relations with certain countries and international organizations)."

This call for "special status" of the broadest kind within Confederation is nothing new, but for the first time, Johnson escalates his demands to a new constitution which would "acknowledge the existence in Canada of two nations, bound together by history, each enjoying equal collective rights." He goes on to suggest the establishment of "a permanent body constituted on a bi-national basis" and this takes him straight into the "associate state" kind of argument—the furthest he's yet gone along this precarious route.

COLLECTIVE QUALITY

What the Quebec premier is demanding now is not that French-Canadians be granted merely equal individual rights (in job opportunities, educational facilities and so on) but that Quebec be given collective equality in running the country.

This would amount to allowing Quebec veto powers over national decisions, a state of affairs which even the most amiable and conciliatory English-Canadian could scarcely find acceptable.

News of President de Gaulle's press conference and his repeated call for the inevitability of Quebec independence disrupted the tenor of the conference's opening day. Psychologically, de Gaulle strengthened the position of the separatists because his continued interest has made their position legitimate far beyond the marginal revolutionary elements which had control of their movement even a year ago.

GOOD WILL

In its opening sessions the Confederation of Tomorrow Conference oozed good will and great intentions: there was none of the sense of confrontation that characterizes federal-provincial conferences in Ottawa.

'FULL OF GOODWILL'

Bennett Plays It Cool Over All-U.S. Ferry Bid

Premier Bennett Monday tried to play it cool while efforts to develop an all-U.S. ferry service linking Washington and Alaska warmed up.

"I have no comment to make," said Mr. Bennett when asked for his reaction to Alaska Governor Walter Hickel's announcement he is seeking U.S. federal authority to extend the Alaska State Ferries system from Ketchikan to Seattle.

PM

leaders to de Gaulle's remarks ranged from amusement to anger. Premier Joey Smallwood of Newfoundland asked:

"Who takes the General seriously any more?"

Former Justice Minister David Fulton in the Commons Monday called on the government to explain the "public exchange of criticism" between Mr. Pearson and General de Gaulle.

The opposition member said, "I think I may be permitted to say, quite apart from the merits or demerits of what took place that this is an extraordinary way for a government to carry on international relations."

Mr. Martin however assured the Commons that Mr. Pearson's speech in London criticising French policies and the de Gaulle press conference statements were "completely unrelated."

"I'm full of goodwill to everyone. It's getting close to Christmas."

But a report from Bellingham suggested that a U.S. ferry service would not only syphon all U.S. traffic off the B.C. Ferry Authority's Kelsey Bay-Prince Rupert run.

It also could compete for the Canadian traffic originating in the lower mainland, said Fred Tolan, consultant to the Bellingham Traffic and Rates Bureau. He pointed out that Vancouverites could drive to Bellingham in one hour and then catch a 30-hour direct ferry to Prince Rupert.

To catch the 22-hour Queen of Prince Rupert service at Kelsey Bay, they would have to spend at least another four hours driving and taking a Georgia Strait ferry.

SOUTHERN TERMINAL

Bellingham civic officials are campaigning to make their port the southern terminal for Alaska State Ferries.

In Juneau, Alaska, the 17th United States Coast Guard district said Monday it has asked for an early decision from Washington, D.C. on Gov. Hickel's application.

Rear-Admiral Joseph R. Scullion, district commander, said the state's request was forwarded to coast guard headquarters in Washington Saturday, along with a request that a decision be made quickly.

Gov. Hickel asked Rear-

Admiral Scullion last week that the waters which would be traversed by the ferries between Prince Rupert, the present southern terminus of the state ferry service, and Seattle be declared bays and sounds.

This designation would permit three vessels now used on the southeast system to provide direct service between southeast Alaska and Seattle.

The Incredible Hippy Murder Case

Here is probably the most nightmarish article The Reader's Digest has ever published.

It is the true story of how, in just a matter of weeks, a nice 18-year-old girl from a fine family and with extraordinary advantages, became addicted to a hippie life of psychedelic drugs—and ended up raped and murdered, her head shattered by bricks and her body stretched out on a grimy boiler room floor. This is "must" reading for both parents and youth in a day when family ties are threatened and teen-agers are tempted by a world of fantasy in which they may too easily lose their way. Be sure to read this remarkable article in December Reader's Digest. On sale now.

PLAY DESERVED TO BE HEARD

LONDON (CP)—The BBC play had only a short introductory passage in English. The majority of listeners could not understand—it was in Japanese. The 55-minute served to be heard.

If you had a car that didn't break so often, you wouldn't be broke so often.

Volvos are built so strongly they're driven an average of eleven years in Sweden where there are no speed limits on the highways, where there are over 70,000 miles of unpaved roads, where driving is virtually a national pastime.

Drive a Volvo Canadian at a nearby dealer. If you're not especially excited about the way Volvos hold up, you may get excited about the way Volvos perform: Volvos run away from every other compact in their class, yet get over 30 miles to the gallon, even with automatic transmission.

Terrorists Stab Hong Kong Policeman

HONG KONG (UPI)—Three Communist terrorists stabbed a Hong Kong policeman to death today with sharpened filing tools, the government said. The three assailants jumped the Chinese constables, stabbed him, stripped off his revolver and ammunition and escaped, leaving the man dying on a street in Kowloon outside a refugee centre, a spokesman said. The government posted an $8,333 reward for their capture.

Hints of Market Crisis Follow de Gaulle Statement

PARIS (Reuters)—Violent reaction coupled with hints of a European Common Market crisis today followed President de Gaulle's refusal once again to open the door to Britain for market negotiations.

WON'T WITHDRAW U.K. BID

LONDON (UPI)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson today refused to withdraw Britain's bid to join the European Common Market.

He told Parliament the bid was made to all six Common Market countries and it will be up to their council of ministers at their next meeting in Brussels in December to decide on an answer to Britain.

Wilson added, "I said there might be disappointments and rebuffs, but I believe it would be wrong completely to change direction on this issue because of statements made yesterday."

Conservative party leader Edward Heath, who headed Britain's earlier bid which De Gaulle vetoed in 1963, told Wilson, "You are wise to wait until after the council of ministers' meeting."

Austerity Drive Set By Spain

MADRID (CP)—The Spanish government, shaken by inflation and devaluation of the peseta, embarked on an austerity drive today, eliminating jobs and services in 13 of 16 ministries. Thousands were believed fired.

The cuts spared the army, navy and air force, but touched governmental grass roots. Even some jails were closed.

Government automobiles were restricted to ministers, sub-secretaries and to some ministry services.

Civil service work hours were standardized and duplication of work trimmed, eliminating 287 offices.

The government threatened to close down companies or stores which charge excessive prices.

It published decrees spelling out details of its stern austerity program, announced Saturday.

The decrees showed the government's freeze on wages, prices, dividends and rent was even more sweeping than it first appeared. The government was determined to peg them all at the level before the peseta was devalued by 14.3 per cent Nov. 19. The freeze will be in force until the end of 1968.

Must Shovel Snow

TORONTO (CP)—A bylaw passed Monday by the Borough of Etobicoke council requires residents to remove snow from sidewalks in front of their houses within 12 hours of it falling. Anyone convicted under the new bylaw will face a $300 fine.

ASSOCIATE STATUS ONLY DOOR

BRUSSELS (AP)—President Charles de Gaulle's latest rebuff of Britain's application for Common Market membership strengthened the belief of some experts today that Britain had better settle for associate membership.

This status, casting Britain in a second-class, non-voting role, would open the Common Market tariff wall to British products.

Prime Minister Wilson has said he does not want any half-measures. But continental experts believe associate membership would be a good thing for Britain and probably the only kind of relationship with the Common Market the British can get as long as de Gaulle is president.

The French president made clear Monday at his semi-annual news conference that devaluation of the British pound has had no effect on his determination to keep Britain out of the six-nation trade community.

The British foreign office, without mentioning de Gaulle, noted that a reply to its application had to come from "the existing members of the community, as a whole." This indicated Britain officially still hopes the other five members can change de Gaulle's mind, but this seems most unlikely and only one "no" vote is necessary to block membership.

As an associate member of the community, Britain would join Greece, Turkey and 18 African states—most of them former French colonies—who have no vote in determining the Common Market's general policy but are consulted on issues of interest to them.

Freedom Of City Spells Doom?

OTTAWA (CP)—Are honors from Britain a signal of doom for Canadian prime ministers?

John Diefenbaker didn't say this in so many words, but he noted these facts in an interview Monday:

As prime minister in 1955, Louis St. Laurent received the freedom of the City of London, and was defeated in the general election of 1956.

As prime minister in 1963, Mr. Diefenbaker himself received the freedom of the City of London in February and was defeated in the general election in April.

Prime Minister Pearson received the freedom of the City of London Monday.

"Further observation on my part is unnecessary," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

Drugging, Beating Charge By Two Western Attaches

MOSCOW (AP)—The British and American military attaches in Moscow were attacked and searched after they were allegedly served drugged wine while on a trip this month near the Romanian border, the two embassies charged in protest notes to the Soviet government.

An American spokesman said today the Soviet reply "was not considered satisfactory" and that further protests are being considered in London and Washington.

The U.S. embassy and the British foreign office said the incident occurred Nov. 17 when the British attaché, Brig. C. A. des N. Harper, and U.S. Col. William J. Spahr were visiting Kishinev, capital of Soviet Moldavia.

The attaches toured an experimental wine-making farm in the area at the suggestion of their Soviet guide, sampled its wines and sherries and ate food.

On returning to their hotel room they became ill, vomited and went to bed, a statement from the British foreign office said.

"A subsequent medical examination gave material evidence for suspicion that the wine had been tampered with," the British statement continued.

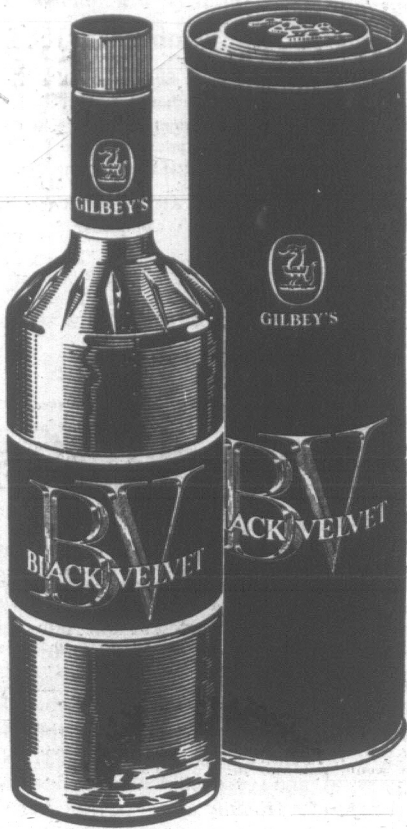

ASSAULT ATTACHES About four hours later, the British said, five or six men broke into the room, "forcibly held the attaches down, tore open their clothes and removed their money belts which contained personal papers."

The papers were returned after about an hour and the attaches did not suffer serious injuries, the U.S. spokesman said.

RACIAL CLASHES SPREAD

PENANG (AP)—The Malaysian government sent army and police reinforcements to north-west Malaysia today to quell spreading racial clashes between Malays and Chinese.

The toll from five days of communal riots and anti-government demonstrations rose to 17 dead and more than 200 injured — half of them seriously enough to warrant hospital care.

De Gaulle Means It!

EARLIER SUGGESTIONS OF senility, of publicity-seeking, of vainglory, of being carried away by the tumultuous welcome extended to a visitor — these no longer, apply to General de Gaulle's pronouncements on the crisis of Quebec. For the third time within four months the President of France has called for the political and geographical dismemberment of a friendly ally.

De Gaulle makes it very clear that Quebec province should break away from Confederation, that he will do anything he can to assist the process and its aftermath, and that special political rights should be established for French-speaking Canadians living in other parts of Canada. His purpose in thus helping to foment a revolution within Canada is equally clear: he looks to the day when France will have a strong foothold in North America through close association with an independent French-speaking state which he has helped to create.

This whole Gaullist circus performance is so incredible that it is difficult to take seriously. Yet there can now be no mistaking the seriousness with which de Gaulle views his anachronistic panorama of empire-building. He has looked at the St. Lawrence with a wild surmise, and the prospective destruction of a country that helped to save his nation in two world wars does not constitute for him a deterrent to his grandiose project.

First, says de Gaulle, we must have "a complete change of the Canadian structure resulting from the act handed down a hundred years ago by the Queen of England . . . This will lead naturally to the emergence of Quebec as a sovereign state." And he plays his trump card with the announcement that "the second condition upon which depends the solution of these great problems is the solidarity of the French community on either side of the Atlantic . . ."

The French leader's analysis of

Confederation as something forced on Canada by "the Queen of England" betrays a complete ignorance of our origin, including the Charlottetown Conference, the later Quebec decisions, and the virtually undebated passage of the BNA Act by the British Parliament at our request. Nor is the squire of Colombey-les-Deux-Eglises any more accurate in his conception of French-speaking Canadians as expatriate Frenchmen who long to resume their identity with Paris.

Two hundred years after severance from the homeland they are Canadians who speak French, not Normans in exile. As Montreal's Mayor Drapeau said last July, after referring to the fourteen generations that had preceded him in Canada, "we have learned to survive alone for two centuries." And in another part of his remarks which de Gaulle must have missed: "Can we hope that those who come to help us accentuate this revival of French Canada will be animated by the same spirit so that French Canada may better serve the whole of Canada."

A sorry note enters de Gaulle's revelations when he claims a "sacred duty" to reply to Quebec nationalism. The world has had enough of the "sacred duty" gambit which impelled Mussolini to invade Ethiopia and Hitler to take over Czechoslovakia. While de Gaulle's echo has more of a comic opera touch than had those earlier tragedies of egotism, it is unfortunate that he has placed his country in so embarrassing a position.

It will be even more unfortunate if English-speaking Canadians are moved to answer de Gaulle's impetuosity by forming a hard line against Quebec's reasonable requests. But the real answer to the aging General should come from the French-speaking Canadians of this country, who surely must see the trap into which European manoeuvring could push them.

Vote of Confidence

VICTORIA CITIZENS HAVE given Mayor Hugh Stephen a clear expression of their confidence in his leadership by the acclamation accorded him when nominations closed yesterday. At a time when contests appear to be the order of the day for municipal office in this community, no one has come forward to oppose him.

This reflects full satisfaction with the job Mr. Stephen has done during the one-year term following the tragic death of his predecessor, Mayor Alfred Toone.

It has not been an easy year for the chief magistrate. A revitalized capital city has been maintaining the advances that started after a long period of quiescence. Important issues have arisen in the council chamber, some of them bringing sharp differences among the aldermen. Mayor Stephen has proved his effectiveness in meeting such difficulties, welding dissidents into a team that continues to give the city the type of administration so productive in recent years.

His quiet efficiency; his readiness to accept the responsibilities, large and small, imposed on a mayor; his preservation of the dignity of the office and his considered, long-range policies for Victoria — these merit the trust implicit in his acclamation. From such support he should draw strength and assurance as he begins his first full term of office.

Something Less Than Unanimity

THE ASSURANCES VOICED BY Mr. Real Caouette and Mr. Herbert Bruch that a reunion of the two branches of Social Credit in Canada is imminent would carry more weight if they had been accompanied by any visible sign of support from party members elected from Western Canada.

The unity meeting in Ottawa, arranged by Mr. Bruch, as president of the Social Credit federal party, and Mr. Caouette, as leader of the Quebec Ralliement des Creditistes, was distinguished by the absence of the four remaining Western MPs. Since Premier Manning of Alberta has apparently written off Social Credit as a national force, and Premier Bennett's support of the party in federal politics has been minimal in the last two elections, it might be assumed that the new-found unity would be negotiated by the Creditistes from a position of strength. The notable absence of the four Western MPs was over-compensated by the presence at the Ottawa meeting of all eight Creditiste MPs.

Whatever Mr. Bennett's intentions may be so far as a reunited party is concerned, it is evident that his support would be a millstone around the neck of the Creditistes. It is not necessary for French-Canadians to be radical separatists for them to rebuff any party which has Mr. Bennett's blessing. At the same time it is difficult to see a federal Social Credit party in which Mr. Caouette is a strong influence drawing the votes of many people in the far west, the only part of Canada outside Quebec where Social Credit has any strength. The original antipathies and quarrels between the two wings of the party will not be dispelled merely by statements of good intentions.

The needle is stuck.

Consumers and the Slippery Butter

THE devaluation of the New Zealand dollar should be splendid news for Mr. John Turner who is soon to be minister of the new department of consumer affairs. In a recent speech about poverty and the "troubled consumer" the number of untroubled ones is so small as to be negligible, Mr. Turner gave an interesting forecast of his plans for helping us to develop better shopping habits and consumer skills appropriate for the modern marketplace. One of his starting points is a finding of a Yale Law Journal study — confirmed by studies in every home — that "the benefits of increased income may be dissipated through poor spending habits." Mr. Turner hopes to improve our habits by the establishment of counselling and neighborhood improvement clinics.

Western

Some ill-natured consumers, in letters to newspapers, have already suggested that this would be a case of the totally blind leading the merely short-sighted. It is not difficult to understand how notions of this sort get abroad. For example, the government set out three years ago to shop for a centre of the performing arts in Ottawa — price $9 million. By the time tenders were let for a project, which has not unfortunately been available for centennial year, the best offer was $32 million.

Whatever the B and B commission may report, it is clear that our governments have long pursued a two or even three nation policy. Only the relatively well-to-do can afford butter. Marginal consumers buy a pound of this and a pound of that, but the other nation, dependent on margarine, must by now choosing the alternatives, and our courage in making tough decisions."

Mr. Turner, in another vivid phrase, speaks of the "separate nation of poverty," reminding us, for example, that 75 per cent of all Indian families make less than $2,000 a year. At present prices it is obvious that they cannot afford butter. Even with the best of counselling services they must subsist on margarine and, in the more backward provinces, are further limited to a product defined as "tulp white" in the supermarkets.

The consumer most in need of Mr. Turner's counselling services is, however, Mr. Joe Greene who should be the No. 1 pilot project. This is quite clear from the act establishing the dairy commission which states plainly: "in exercising its powers under this act or the regulations in relation to the importation or exportation of any dairy product, the commission shall comply with any directions from time to time given to it by the governor in council or the minister."

Whatever the B and B commission may report, it is clear that our governments have long pursued a two or even three nation policy. Only the relatively well-to-do can afford butter. Marginal consumers buy a pound of this and a pound of that, but the other nation, dependent on margarine, must by now include many tens of thousands who have long since forgotten the taste of butter. (How many more contracted out when Mr. Greene increased the price by four cents last April 1?) This situation poses a grave threat to the dairy industry for the ever-growing separated nation, having discovered that it is possible to live by margarine alone, may never come back.

Fortunately New Zealand butter is of such admirable quality that the dairy industry sought to protect us from it by special labelling. While there is little doubt that many Canadians are permanently lost as butter consumers, Mr. Greene may be able to win others back if he seizes the opportunity to buy the largest possible quantity of cut-rate New Zealand butter and to secure the widest possible distribution by waiving duties and forgetting about stabilized prices.

Mr. Turner, possibly for reasons of space, failed to mention butter in the speech announcing his pro-consumer crusade. But at that time (November 15) the full scope of the present opportunity was not apparent because New Zealand devalued only last week. He is a gifted advocate and there is the barest chance that, if he now goes to work on Mr. Greene, we may have relief from folly with the result that both the consumer and the government will save some money.

Walk to School?

For a long time we thought the younger generation were unable to walk and simply could not get around without a car, the noisier the better. Saturday's event shows how wrong we were.

Now they have started, possibly they could keep in practice by walking to school. The saving of parking lots, wear and tear on streets, policing, etc., could go to essential classrooms.

There must be many people in and out of hospitals who would be glad of someone to push a wheelchair or to escort them on a walk. Some senior citizens might even let them get field training walking around on the lawn. While doing so they could push a lawnmower in front of them to keep "on course."

They could top off their year's effort by taking over from the faithful army of Community Chest canvassers and walk from door to door collecting for the Chest, racking up mileage for their sponsors and collect for two causes for the price of one.—P. B. Taxpayer.

"The Second Mile"

The "March for Millions" was a marvellous success and thousands of our young people have felt the satisfaction of "giving of themselves" for a cause. As my daughter walked slowly and painfully around home last night, she said "I feel so good". We who sponsored them are cheerfully paying out more than we had anticipated. If these marchers had just come to our doors asking for donations, they would not have been so generously received.

Fellow Victorians, how about going "The Second Mile"? Our own Red Feather campaign is struggling hard to make that last percentage to reach its goal. How about sending them a further few cents covering the mileage of your walkers and send our own home drive over the top. I am going to do so. Make the "march" a double success.—Proud.

"Monumental Task"

The secretary-treasurer of the Victoria Labor Council has announced that he will be a candidate for alderman in the city elections.

Mr. Ryan has undertaken a monumental task. How is he going to reconcile the principle of public service of an alderman with the avowed philosophy of most unions?

As an alderman he would have to work for the good of the whole community. As a labor representative he would have to follow the practice of most unions, the usual practice being to wave the big stick, the threat of strike action, to back up the demand: "Give us what we want, or we'll put you out of business." — M. Rockwood, 2464 Plumer.

DENNIS THE MENACE

Callaghan Up From Canvas

By TIM TRAYNOR
from London

POST devaluation events here continue to run an unpredictable course with Chancellor of the Exchequer James Callaghan simultaneously making a political comeback and arousing new controversy with an attack on a group of leading industrialists. As the minister chiefly responsible for the devaluation, Mr. Callaghan at first appeared a sure casualty, but he has been able during a two-day parliamentary debate to make up a good deal of lost ground. He would have emerged with a clear gain had he not struck out against a "sinister" group, which, he suggested, had been set up to prove that the House of Commons and the government were incapable of solving Britain's economic problems.

Traynor

Though he only mentioned one name, it was clear that the group in question comprised powerful exporters, whose response to the opportunities opened up by the devaluation will be crucial to its success or failure.

Apart from his attack, the chancellor was a model of statesmanship and reasonableness in a notably rowdy and uninspired debate. He certainly outshone Prime Minister Harold Wilson, whose performance seemed pedestrian and sometimes even petty. Both the prime minister and Mr. Callaghan had many times disavowed devaluation and inevitably faced charges of bad faith, but more odium seems to have attached to Mr. Wilson than to Mr. Callaghan. The chancellor must once again be reckoned a potential labor prime minister should Mr. Wilson fall.

"Twister"

The Conservative opposition called Mr. Wilson a "twister," and said no one could trust his word.

Mr. Wilson's reply was that Britain's growth had been increasingly impeded for 15 years because of balance of payments problems, and the burden had now become unacceptable. Labor had been right to defend the old exchange rate for three years but the time was now right for devaluation, because the international community for the first time accepted the need for it, and because there was enough slack in the economy to absorb the new activity that would be created.

The economy had been set to boom next year even before the devaluation; the latter would ensure that the boom came in exports rather than in domestic consumption. To forgo devaluation, as the Tories suggested, would necessitate unemployment-creating measures to prevent the coming boom from accelerating imports and precipitating a new balance of payments crisis. (It was this line, combined with the Tory attack, which brought potentially rebellious left-wing backbenchers around to enthusiastic endorsement of the devaluation both at party meetings and in the Commons, where a motion of approval was carried by 335 to 258.)

Gloss

That the prime minister was putting gloss on their situation was made embarrassingly clear by Mr. Callaghan. He made no bones about the difficulties involved in making devaluation a success. He said further austerity measures beyond those already announced might be necessary to keep inflation under control. (The government has rejected a new legislative wage freeze so the responsibility for incomes restraint falls largely on the Trades Union Congress, which has promised to do its best. But it has only limited powers.) Mr. Callaghan went on to say bluntly that devaluation symbolized the fact that Britain had slipped behind other countries. The government had to accept its share of responsibility along with everyone else.

However, he strongly attacked suggestions that the government had bungled the devaluation by holding off an announcement late last week in the face of severe speculation against the pound. Mr. Callaghan said they had escaped destructive international repercussions "by the skin of our teeth," and only because they had chosen the correct degree of devaluation and paused to consult interested countries and organizations.

IMF Assurances

He also came down heavily on European rumors that there was doubt about the International Monetary Fund and credits announced along with devaluation. Citing assurance of support from the IMF, he said anyone who spread this sort of rumor could only have in mind damage to the reserve currencies — the dollar and the pound. This may well have been a veiled rebuke to the French government, which is now widely suspected of deliberately attempting to undermine both sterling and the dollar. Confirmation is seen in the announcement that France is no longer participating in the international gold pool, through which the existing price of gold — keystone of the international monetary system — is maintained.

It is felt that the French have had a big hand in generating the unprecedented demand for gold on the London exchange in recent days.

In the unlikely event of the French succeeding in undermining the dollar — their evident aim — Britain would face a second devaluation. This would be the ultimate disaster not only for Mr. Callaghan, but for everybody. It was a thought that manifestly tempered the relief about the successful outcome of the debate.

Looking Back

From the Times,
Nov. 28, 1967.

For the first time the Dominion government's wireless stations at Sholt's Hill and Point Grey, near Vancouver, were in communication yesterday, and some two thousand words were elicited across the Straits of Georgia in a test.

The two stations will now be in constant communication with each other.

The local station has also heard several of the steamships equipped with wireless apparatus, talking to each other.

Implant Reduces Anxiety

By CHRISTINE DOYLE

LONDON—People with apparently incurable psychoneuroses have been treated with "extraordinary success" through a new method which involves placing radioactive material inside the brain.

One of the successes is a 38-year-old woman who suffered acute depression after her father's death and made seven suicide attempts.

The British surgeon who treated her said she was "determined to kill herself," because so far no doctor or psychiatrist had been able to help her. She finally agreed to try the new operation but resolved that if there was no improvement then she would kill herself.

Now she is living a perfectly normal happy life as a housewife. Even the discovery that she had cancer of the breast and had to have another operation did not worry her unduly. She successfully endured the second operation with no more than normal anxiety.

G. C. Knight, senior lecturer in the department of surgery at the Royal Postgraduate Medical School, London, who devised the procedure, has now successfully treated over 200 patients. There were no deaths and no undesirable personality changes as with another, more drastic brain operation.

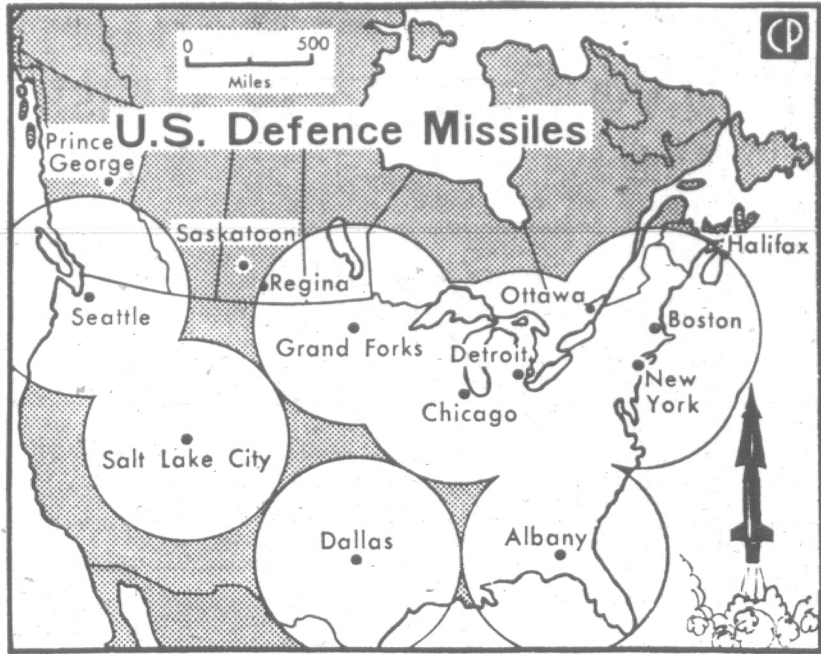

Mr. Knight explained that he had pinpointed certain fibres in the brain which are concerned with over-active emotional reaction. The object of the operation is to destroy some of these fibres without disturbing intellect and to leave the normal emotional pathways unharmed.

This he achieved by implanting radioactive "seeds" in the brain. The "seeds" contain yttrium 90, a radioactive chemical; they act over a very small area so that only a limited amount of brain tissue is destroyed.

For patients with severe anxiety states and obsessional neuroses the success rate is not so high, although at least half can be improved. The operation is not applicable to patients with disorders like schizophrenia.

The new method is designed to replace the more drastic operation involving cutting certain parts of the brain. With this operation there has been an estimated 10 per cent risk of epilepsy and a 5 per cent risk of provoking personality changes. For this reason, doctors very often decide to leave patients on drug or shock treatment.

U.S. MISSILES BORDER CANADA

Map shows coverage of nine potential United States Spartan defence missile sites, six of which project their 400-mile-range rockets over nearly every major city in Canada. The 10 sites, one of them in Hawaii, will be surveyed for use in the United States Sentinel ballistic missile defence system. It's a $5,000,000,000 program to offset a possible missile threat by China in the '70s, the U.S. defence department says. Dr. John S. Foster, Jr., son of a prominent Canadian scientist and a McGill graduate, testified recently before Congress as the defence department's research chief, that the U.S. system would cause explosions over Canadian territory. The sites near Canada to be surveyed are at Seattle, Grand Forks, N.D., Chicago, Detroit, New York and Boston. The others are at Salt Lake City, Dallas and Albany, Ga. Another five to 10 sites are contemplated. Spartan missiles would seek and destroy enemy rockets while faster, shorter-range rockets, called Sprints, would ring major cities to pick off any missiles that evaded the Spartans.

Placid Uruguay Upset By Harsh Devaluation

By J. HALCRO FERGUSON

Devaluation is not, of course, confined to countries like Britain, whose world-wide commitments both contribute to the need for it and magnify its repercussions. Smaller countries frequently devalue their currencies.

Britain lowered the value of the pound by 14.3 per cent; but earlier this month tiny Uruguay slashed the exchange rate of its peso by over 100 per cent.

The smaller devaluers, in Latin America at any rate, tend to fall into two categories. Either, like Argentina under Peron, their governments have wrecked healthy economies for short-term political gains, or, like Colombia, they are basically dependent on the fluctuating world price of a single export commodity. Brazil perhaps could be said to some extent to have plunged into both troubles.

But Uruguay, a tiny country of three million people, who are far outnumbered by sheep and cattle, has always been held up as a model democracy, an example of political stability, with a soundly-based economy. It has been a welfare state since the beginning of the century, with a social structure undistorted by extremes of wealth and poverty.

It has been called the Switzerland of South America, and in its placid way of life, so it is. But there are two major differences. Uruguay has no mountains, and no money.

Into the Red

Uruguay has been going deeper and deeper into the red. She has no overseas commitments, merely token armed forces, and no dictator spending large sums on showy public works. Yet this year the country owed $438 million abroad, the cost of living rose over 90 per cent between January and October, and the balance of payments was deteriorating every day. This month, President Oscar Gestido devalued the peso: from 99 to the U.S. dollar to nearly 200.

Basically, the problem was that Uruguay was pampering herself, and living above her income. The welfare state had reached proportions that would be a burden to a heavily industrial country, let alone to a pastoral and agricultural one; the civil service was grossly over-staffed, and the citizens were spending huge sums on luxuries, from cosmetics to new cars, all of which had to be imported.

This expenditure took no account of droughts, floods, strikes—which were frequent—or drops in the prices of Uruguay's major exports, meat and wool. Everyone was well off except the Treasury. And this was what made it hard in a democratic country to sell the idea of necessary austerity to the electorate.

Realistic Rate

In these circumstances, President Gestido in October invited Pierre Paul Schweitzer of the International Monetary Fund (IMF) to come to Montevideo to put Uruguay's house in order. The IMF offered to obtain some $200 million credit for the little country—if the government devalued to a realistic rate.

This economically conservative suggestion horrified Uruguay's traditionally radical politicians, particularly the former finance minister, Dr. Amilcar Vasconcellos. His views were so outspoken that at one point he was challenged to a duel by the irate president. But duelling has been illegal in Uruguay for quite some time, and no doubt somebody reminded the president of the fact. Anyway, there was no duel.

This humorous interlude did not hide the seriousness of the situation, nor soften the blow when devaluation came. Already teachers, and of course students, have gone on strike in protest at cuts in the education budget.

More Strikes

The National Workers' Confederation, representing the major trades' unions, has threatened more strikes against decreased purchasing power. And there have been the inevitable demonstrations—encouraged by Communists who if in power themselves would not hesitate to take much more drastic economic measures than the present government.

President Gestido has let it be known that if there is any nonsense he will clamp down Uruguay's mild version of a state of emergency. But he is unlikely to have to get tougher than that. Over the last half-century Uruguay has developed into a predominantly middle-class nation, and such people do not rush to man the barricades.

However, for the moment Juan Citizen will have to make do with last year's Volkswagen and his wife may have to put up with some less exotic perfume than Chanel No. 5. Neither they nor their poorer fellow-citizens will have to worry—as most Latin Americans do—about where the next meal is coming from. Austerity is a relative term for Uruguay.

In a More Leisurely Age Britannica Elegant, Exciting

By GEOFFREY A. WOLFE
The Washington Post

Two hundred years ago a "Society of Gentlemen" in Edinburgh produced the "Encyclopedia Britannica" to serve as a dictionary and "compendium of knowledge."

Weekly articles appeared at sixpence each for three years till they were collected, in 1771, in three volumes, totalling 2,659 pages, costing 12 pounds, with the cost of binding borne by the subscriber.

The publishers of today's "Encyclopedia Britannica" (24 volumes, 28,000 pages), who are located in Chicago, have recently produced facsimiles of the first edition ($79.50 a set) and an anthology of early articles.

Their enterprise may well be the marketing mistake of the year, for anyone who sees the old volumes will surely be dissatisfied with the new.

The prose of the first edition is elegant and unself-conscious, conveying the excitement of new ideas and the punch and asperity of strongly-held views. William Smellie did nearly all the writing, stealing liberally from Franklin, Voltaire, Pope, Hume, Locke, Hazlitt and Dr. Johnson.

For his efforts, he was paid 200 pounds by the instigators of the project, Andrew Bell and Colin MacFarquhar. The former was a brilliant illustrator and his work has probably not been surpassed in any encyclopedia in our language. For his part, Smellie quit before the second edition appeared because of his violent objection to the inclusion of biographical sketches in the proposed revision.

Simple Theory

Smellie's editorial theory was simple: "Utility ought to be the principal intention of every publication. Wherever this intention does not plainly appear, neither the books nor their authors have the smallest claim to the approbation of mankind."

The end of utility was served by providing in a single set of books a sum of knowledge that, if assimilated, would produce an educated man. As the original project progressed, usefulness displaced comprehensiveness: the number, but not the length, of entries decreased so the first of three volumes quite equal in length plods from subject A to subject Z while the last leaps from M to Z.

The example of the French encyclopedists, who never progressed past D for all the revisions demanded by their painstaking pace, was not to be emulated.

What the first edition of the Britannica shows us is an age of reason, piety, humanity and remarkable intellectual sophistication. The entries of astronomy, moral science, logic and theology will provide no excuse for condescension. The 18th century regarded witchcraft as nonsense, slavery as barbaric and optics as Newtonian.

They knew that to sail past Gibraltar was not to risk falling off the edge of the earth, that the earth was round and revolved about the sun and that the sun was by no means the grandest of stars.

Further, Smellie could be sure of his audience, for to be literate in his age was to be knowledgeable: his contemporaries could be assumed to be as familiar with Locke and Newton as they were with Pope and Dryden. Hence he was released from the need and inclination to write down to his readers, as the entry Probability amply demonstrates:

True or False

"Probability is nothing but the appearance of the agreement or disagreement of two ideas by the intervention of proofs whose connection is not constant and immutable, or is not perceived to be so; and is enough to induce the mind to judge the proposition to be true or false, rather than the contrary."

A singularly happy liberty the first, and many subsequent editions, indulged was unrestrained editorializing: an intelligent reader could be assumed to be equipped to distinguish fact from opinion. Thus, in the long entry under money, Smellie draws on many theories to advance an intricate fiscal policy, having first observed "The value of the pound sterling... has been declining ever since the year 1601."

And as early as the fourth edition (1800) the Britannica exhibited a lack of economic humility which Harold Wilson's cabinet has had cause to lament.

Writing of economic relations with France, a patriot declared: "Nor is any injury which (the French) can do to our commerce an object of serious alarm. By refusing to trade with us, they only prevent themselves from acquiring wealth."

The 1771 edition's entry under Germany was considerably more prescient: "Industry, application, and perseverance are the great characteristics of the German nation, especially the mechanical parts of it."

And it is comforting to discover that one of our great dilemmas was worth noting by the Britannica in 1800 under the sub-heading School Teachers Underpaid: "... At present the salary of a country schoolmaster, independent of fees for scholars, is not greater than a ploughman can earn... the consequence of which is that this, which is in fact an honorable, because useful profession, is now sinking into contempt."

But one can urge too strenuously the similarities between the 18th and 20th centuries. While the first edition of the Britannica reveals an age seeking reason, harmony, proportion and ratio wherever they might be found ("... on the just regulation and subordination of the passions, depends, in great measure, the happiness of mankind.") it also noted as commonplace what we consider primitive.

Thus we discover under law that "cursing or beating a person incurs death if the person be above fifteen." And this definition of a rogue, today no more than a mischievous miscreant: "An idle... beggar, who by ancient statutes is for the first offence called a rogue of the first degree, and punished by whipping, and boring through the gristle of the right ear; and for the second offence, is termed a rogue of the second degree, and, if above 18 years of age, ordered to be executed as a felon."

Protestant orthodoxy was paid its due with a pious piety and aggressive lack of embarrassment. Eighty years after James II lost his throne to William of Orange, the Britannica could conclude its description of that holy order with the smug observation that "gross doctrines and bad practices" caused its general downfall.

Size of Ark

The Britannica found it interesting to limn the dimensions of Noah's Ark and assure its readers that it was, in fact, commodious enough to accommodate the creatures God chose to be saved from high water. And from the fourth edition (1800) we learn of the duration of original innocence in severe Scottish prose:

"How long our first parents retained their innocence, we are nowhere told. Many assert that they fell on the very first day of their creation. But Moses mentions so many transactions on that day, as must have engrossed the whole of their attention, and prevented them from falling into such temptations as arise from want of indolence and want of reflection. Besides, if, in such circumstances as they were placed, they could not refrain from an open violation of the divine law for the space of one day, it would bespeak a deceitfulness of heart in them greater than in most of their posterity."

The Britannica was not insensible to the pleasures of leisure. The first edition describes a card trick and propagandizes the delights of gardening. Smellie's successor, James Tytler, was an avid ballroomist and it was no doubt under the influence of his passion that Sir John Leslie observed that aerial "navigation, in its most cultivated form, may be fairly regarded as the consummation of art..."

All 'Harmony'

And it is perhaps through the avenue of art, or aesthetics, that the progress of the institution known as the "Encyclopedia Britannica" can be most advantageously gauged. At the time of the first edition the balanced, harmonious world of the enlightenment was at its apogee. Experience, direct apprehension and weight and substance were the measures of the ideal.

Beauty, according to the first edition, "in its native signification, is appropriated to objects of sight. Objects of other senses may be agreeable, such as the sounds of musical instruments, the smoothness and softness of some surfaces; but the agreeableness called beauty belongs to objects of sight." No nonsense here: no hesitation to label and define and assert.

By 1824 the Britannica reflected the sensibility of the romantics. The concept of beauty became mystical and imprecise, a sensual rather than physical property.

The language of the 1824 definition of beauty sounds sure of itself but its involuted character betrays it: "Beauty—that property in objects by which they are recommended to the power or faculty of taste—the reverse of ugliness—the primary or most general object of love or admiration."

The definition goes on to assert that beauty is a state of mind rather than a measurable property. The Britannica hasn't progressed—we haven't progressed—very far since then. There is no entry under beauty in the current edition. Instead we find Beauty Culture (see Cosmetics).

A free booklet outlining your new Government Pension Plan Survivor Benefits

Did you know that by February of 1968, if you are like most Canadian breadwinners, your family will be automatically provided with a regular monthly income in the event of your death? A lot of people don't realize this. And that is why Manufacturers Life has prepared an informative booklet outlining what these benefits will mean to you and your family. It explains how the new survivor benefits will provide a solid base for a complete security program. It will alert you to the advantage of having these new benefits properly integrated with your personal life insurance, group coverage, and other assets, to achieve both your long, and short-range objectives for family security.

Return the coupon for the free booklet "Your Canada and Quebec Pension Plan Benefits". Or, if you would like professional advice on this subject, call a Manufacturers Life representative. You're looking at two of them right now.

*Canadian taxpayers who started making contributions to the Canada or Quebec Pension Plan in January 1966. If you didn't start until later, contact your Manufacturers Life representative. He will gladly let you know when your family will qualify for survivor benefits.

McKenzie Avenue Widening

PEOPLE WANT SEWERS, NOT A FANCY STREET

At a 90-minute meeting on McKenzie Avenue, local improvement proposals turned into a plea for sanitary sewers Monday night.

Twenty residents turned up at a Saanich public works committee meeting to discuss installation of boulevards, storm drains, curbs and sidewalks on a local improvement basis at a cost of about $93,000 when the four-lane highway is built.

Residents were told if they don't want the local improvement they must register their objection at the municipal hall. If over 50 per cent of the owners, having over 50 per cent of the valuation, object, the measure will fail.

At first, no one appeared to object to the plans and questions concerning individual drainage problems.

Then, to a chorus of "yes, yes," one resident asked: "Aren't sewers more important?"

Committee chairman Coun. Leslie Passmore said the questioner would get no argument from council on that point.

He said every effort is being made but the main pipe line to Macaulay Point in Esquimalt is filled to capacity.

Next spring ratepayers will be voting on a sewer utility proposal so this pipe line could be enlarged and sanitary sewers extended.

"It's sewer water that's going into the storm drains," said one man.

"There's no argument there," replied Coun. Passmore.

"Why don't we use this money for sewers, rather than for the frills?" returned the ratepayer.

"That's the reason for the meeting," responded Coun. Passmore. "You can petition against the work. Otherwise you get a four-lane highway levelled out without drains. It's your responsibility and it is up to you to make the decision."

Another resident asked why his house couldn't be connected to sewers when neighboring properties were doing so.

Engineer Neville Life said if sewage from the property could flow into the Willow McBrier treatment plant by gravity it can be connected. He would look into it.

"I'd rather pay for sewers than a super de luxe highway," said one resident.

Another asked if there is an open sewer ditch at the back of the municipal yard, and was told by Coun. Passmore there is such a ditch carrying effluent from the treatment plant.

Reeve Hugh Curtis recalled a Saanich plan to bring sewers to the Tillium-Whiteside and Glanford areas to collect "this filth" and take it to a treatment plant and discharge the effluent into the Colquitz.

But the plan was turned down by the Pollution Control Board.

"You feel frustrated—we feel frustrated too," he said.

To a chorus of "no, no," Coun. Passmore concluded the meeting by saying "I think you are getting a bargain. You can have a street like Quadra or a four-lane highway with open ditches."

PRISON TERM of one year and $100,000 fine was sentenced today on millionaire industrialist Louis E. Wolfson in New York for violating the securities laws in the sale of unregistered stock. Elkin B. Gerbert, Wolfson's associate, was given a six-month jail term and fined $50,000.

Second Mishap

A seven-year-old girl who was a passenger in a car which struck and killed an elderly pedestrian Wednesday, was herself struck by a car Monday.

Roxanna Hartnell, 907 Royal Terrace, is in fair condition in hospital after being knocked down by a car Monday shortly after 3 p.m. as she crossed Blarshard near Belleville.

Police said the girl was hit by a car driven north on Blarshard by Wesley Arden, 423 Luxton.

Roxanna was in the car driven by her mother, Mrs. Sheila Hartnell, which was involved in the accident claiming the life of Mrs. Winifred Tucker.

Mrs. Hartnell was admitted to hospital and has since been released. Roxanna was taken to the emergency ward at that time, but was not injured.

A coroner's jury later attached no blame to the death of Mrs. Tucker.

Resident of City

Funeral services will be held in McCall's Floral Chapel Thursday at 10:15 a.m. for Arthur J. Knappett, a long-time resident of Victoria who died here Monday. He was 81.

Mr. Knappett lived in the Greater Victoria area for 76 years and at the time of his death resided at 1140 Craigflower Road.

He is survived by his widow, Nellie, sons Harold and Donald, both in Seattle; daughter Mrs. G. J. (June) Hetherington of Victoria; 10 grandchildren; and sisters, Maud Knappett and Mrs. Alice Roberts, both of Victoria, one brother Herbert G., of Royston.

DESIGN OF REYNOLDS
SELECTED FOR DISPLAY

The design of the new Reynolds secondary school in Saanich will be on display in an exhibit of school architecture at the Canadian Education Showplace next January in Toronto.

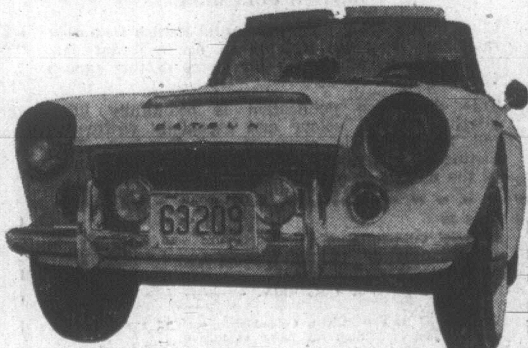

Reynolds includes an enclosed courtyard and was designed by the firm of Peterson & Lester so that it could more readily be used for community activities.

Located at McKenzie and Reynolds in the Lake Hill area, it opened in September with 450 pupils as a junior high school, but will be expanded to eventually include the senior grades as well.

REPLY TO QUESTION BY POLICEMAN

'You've Found My Grass'

Two police officers testified in central court Monday they found both marijuana and methamphetamine in the possession of Francis Neel, 476 Dupplin, Oct. 26.

Neel has pleaded not guilty to charges of possession of the two drugs for purposes of trafficking.

Methamphetamine, commonly called "speed" or "crystal," is controlled by the Food and Drug Act.

RCMP Constable Daniel Stene told the court he and Constable Gerald O'Neil and Victoria Det.-Constable Murray MacArthur broke into Neel's suite and found a green substance in a milk carton in the refrigerator. The constable said when he asked what it was Neel replied "you've found my grass."

For Shoplifting

Edith Buzzard, 1228 Pearce, was fined $100 in central court Monday after pleading guilty to theft under $50 from Woodward's.

Court was told the accused took several items worth a total of $37.75 and placed them in a baby carriage.

A store detective testified she left the store without paying milk carton in the refrigerator. The constable said when he police station, a Saanich officer removed his personal effects.

He testified when he was searching Neel's wallet he found four silver paper packages containing what an analysis later showed to be methamphetamine.

Det. Constable MacArthur gave similar testimony, disagreeing with Stene only on who actually removed Neel's personal effects.

Magistrate Ostler will rule Friday on the possession aspect of the charge. If the magistrate is satisfied the crown has proved possession, the trial on the trafficking aspect will proceed.

SAANICH
MEETINGS

The first two all-candidate public meetings in Saanich were announced today.

Both are sponsored by the Saanich Action Committee, a ratepayers group, and are open to the two reeveship candidates, the 11 council candidates and the 10 school board contestants.

First meeting will be held this Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Gorge Presbyterian Church, Tillium and Walter.

Second meeting is Thursday Dec. 7 at 8 p.m. in the auditorium of Mount View High School.

Chatterton Tells ConservativesSprain Worth
$1,000

Deputy Provincial Secretary L. J. Wallace will be walking gingerly for a few weeks as a result of the Project 100 March Saturday—he suffered a slight ankle sprain.

However, he has the comfort of knowing it was a $1,000 sprain. Earlier it was announced that his sponsors had put up more than $800 for a completed 25.8 mile march.

The total was increased however by late bids by Lieut.-Governor George Pearkes and Provincial Secretary W. D. Black.

Earlier sponsors were Woodward's, staff of the provincial secretary's office, Strathcona Hotel, B.A. Paint, businessmen Fred McGregor, W. T. Straith, Newell Morrison, Malcolm Gillespie, Jack Trautwein and the staff of the B.C. Centennial Committee office.

Mr. Wallace, who is also general chairman of the centennial committee, corrected a previous report that he had suffered 17 blisters. He had two. The earlier report from a check station was meant as a joke, he said.

DIVORCES

Divorces were granted in Victoria Law Courts Monday to: Douglas W. Couch, 77 Linden Avenue, Victoria, from Sandra E. Couch, 3462 Cardiff Place, Victoria. They were married at Victoria in 1963.

Beth L. Jones, 117 Yonge Street South, Richmond Hill, Ont., from Peter L. M. Jones, Pine Island, B.C. They were married at Richmond Hill, Ont., in 1958.

Rare Coin Recovered

NEW YORK (UPI) — The world's most valuable coin, the Brasher Doubloon, once owned by George Washington and missing since a $1 million theft in 1965, has been recovered by a private detective and returned to a New York insurance firm. The coin, a $16 gold piece struck in New York in 1787 by Ephraim Brasher, a goldsmith, is valued at $150,000.

A determined drive must be launched now to force a federal election, Esquimalt-Saanich Progressive Conservative Association's annual meeting was told Monday.

Carrying the message was the association's star team, MP George Chatterton and his campaign manager Russel Simpson. Gwynedd Owen was elected by acclamation to succeed Mr. Simpson as president. Elected vice-president was John Davies.

Mr. Simpson, who was local campaign manager for Donald Fleming's unsuccessful attempt to win the Tory national leadership, told the meeting that current heightened interest in the party is not necessarily due to the personal popularity of new leader Robert Stanfield.

He urged the party MPs to vote the government out of office now to take advantage of

Study Urged

A coroner's jury Monday called for study of the lighting on the south side of Pandora Ave. and consideration of the addition of more marked crosswalks.

The jury found the death of Alfred Kneen, 1345 Stanley, killed Nov. 21 after being struck by a car on Pandora, accidental.

No blame was attached to the driver of the car, Lloyd Clarkson, 1274 Haultain.

Traffic officers testified lighting in the eastbound curb lane is only fair.

Vietnam Police
Chief Resigns

SAIGON (Reuters) — The powerful head of the South Vietnamese national police force, Brig.-Gen. Nguyen Ngoc Loan, has resigned, government sources said today.

The 37-year-old police chief, who personally led his men in a crackdown on an anti-government Buddhist struggle movement last year, cited poor health as the reason for his resignation, police sources said.

Gold Standard Return Impractical Says U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government return to a gold monetary standard as suggested Monday by French President de Gaulle is considered impractical, if not impossible, by U.S. officials.

Such a move, it is felt in some quarters, could lead to a contraction in world trade, increased unemployment and sharp swings in domestic economic activity.

Some officials express doubt that even de Gaulle really would welcome a return to a strict gold standard where currencies can be exchanged freely for gold.

This could create a run on French gold, now the second-largest stockpile in the free world at $5,200,000,000. The U.S. stockpile is about $13,000,000,000.

At the present price of $35 an ounce, the free world's supply of gold—listed by the International Monetary Fund at roughly $43,000,000,000 in official government holdings—would be far from sufficient to finance world trade.

Money reserves of the more than 100 nations which belong to the IMF now total $71,000,000,000 and arrangements have been made to increase the supply when it is needed to finance more trade.

FRANCE AGREES

U.S. officials noted that France concurred in that arrangement although the new money, if it is created, would be linked in no way with gold.

At his Paris press conference, de Gaulle said the 14.3-per-cent devaluation of the British pound may lead back to the gold standard.

The U.S. treasury department declined to comment officially on de Gaulle's remarks.

But U.S. officials to the man oppose any return to the gold standard. In some quarters it is thought de Gaulle's remarks may have been at least partly political since they were coupled with this statement:

"There is an American takeover of our business but this doesn't come as much from the structural superiority of the United States as it does from exportation of inflated dollars."

A return to the gold standard could conceivably cut U.S. investments abroad.

But officials said a strict gold standard would mean also that all countries must be willing to buy and sell gold at a fixed price and the United States now is the only nation doing so—at $35 an ounce.

VALUE COULD LESSEN

As a country's gold supply dwindled, the amount of its currency also would theoretically dwindle or its value would be cut.

Since 1934 when the U.S. changed to a modified gold standard, individual Americans have been barred from hoarding gold. Only foreign central banks can exchange their dollars for U.S. gold.

This is called the gold exchange standard and the U.S. policy of buying and selling at $35 an ounce was confirmed by President Johnson only moments after the British devaluation Nov. 18.

The gold bullion standard is also a part of U.S. policy and now provides that each dollar bill is backed by 25 cents in gold.

Some officials view this as unnecessary and a move now is afoot to remove this gold cover.

The United States, The Netherlands, Belgium and Switzerland are the only major countries with some type of gold backing for their domestic currency.

The gold exchange standard has given the dollar unparalleled prestige abroad and many countries hold dollars as reserves.

Paris Demand Down Sharply

PARIS (AP) — Demand for gold on the Paris market slumped sharply today, but trading was still greater than normal.

Only 5½-tons were handled compared with 10 tons Monday. About one ton is the usual market quota.

Volume was $7,700,000 compared with Monday's $12,760,000.

Gold traders said that the fall-off in demand apparently reflected belief that the "vulnerability of the dollar has been checked."

President de Gaulle's attack on the dollar was apparently not taken too seriously.

The price for the 2.2-pound ingot held at $1,120, but there was a steep decline in the 20-franc napoleon which Frenchmen grab up in uncertain times. The price was $10.20 at the close, compared with $10.80 Monday.

Two Men Fined Causing Disturbance

Two men were fined $35 each in central court Monday on separate charges of causing a disturbance.

James Erickson, 903 North Park, was arrested early Saturday morning after complaints from the Melrose Cafe.

Raymond Fernwick, 1215 Esquimalt Road, was arrested Saturday night in the lobby of the Dominion Hotel where police say he was intoxicated and bothering hotel patrons.

Both men pleaded guilty.

Heavy Weather Fails To Bother Shell Rig

By AB KENT
Business Editor

Nearly half through its projected depth of 10,000 feet, Shell Anglo Zeus is forging steadily forward despite stormy weather off Wickanish Bay.

Shell Canada's third offshore oil and natural gas exploration attempt since last June, the current well as of Monday had reached 4,060 feet since being spudded Nov. 4.

Kent

Drillers on the semi-submersible rig SEDCO 135-F worked right through what has been called "lousy weather" at the end of last week.

The wind Friday and Saturday blew a steady 50, gusting to 70, and the seas averaged 25 feet from trough to crest, occasionally reaching 32 feet.

But despite the pressure of wind and wave the variation in SEDCO's attitude on site was only about 1 1/2 degrees.

It was the heaviest weather the rig has experienced since coming out of Victoria Machinery Depot last spring.

According to Shell, the vessel's mooring system is wholly satisfactory following minor modifications made at Port Alberni during October.

The changes permit faster, easier anchor movements through altering the angle of fair-leads for the anchor chain. Modifications would have no effect on the rig's ability to withstand heavy weather, a Shell spokesman said.

Claiming much of the credit for the new federal department of consumer affairs, Consumers' Association of Canada is not sitting back to let the government watch over the purchasing public's interests.

Some future targets of CAC are better credit regulations, safer vehicles, banning of candy-flavored aspirin, removal of margarine and essential toilet goods taxes, more standardization in sizing, tire safety standards and minimum protein content for sausages.

The association reports it is making progress with the

Toronto-Dominion Bank Reports Net Income Jump

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Dominion Bank had net income of $12,284,728 or 82 cents a share in the year ended Oct. 31, compared with $10,892,656 or 73 cents in 1966.

The bank's annual report shows revenue climbed to $194,910,621 from $168,328,103 and expenses to $164,825,893 from $143,498,447.

Reporting details of its rest account for the first time, as required by new Bank Act, the bank shows $102,000,000 in the account, an increase of $6,000,000 from a year earlier.

Total deposits grew $3,173,034,757 compared with $2,839,503,643. Personal savings deposits rose to $1,349,397,711 from $1,207,480,124.

The bank's loans increased to $2,065,562,724 from $1,862,338,962.

chemicals industry to ensure greater protection through better, safer labelling.

And to help keep up the pressure, the CAC has instituted a new "consumer news and views" service it is making available to newspapers.

The first one urges consumers to be critical about quality when buying, never failing to complain when inferior merchandise is presented.

It offers specific advice about laying a detailed complaint to make it most effective, and if a personal approach fails to achieve satisfaction, turn the matter over to CAC, the newsletter says.

In Victoria, information about the association is available through telephoning 383-0225, evenings.

Ten-month totals for waterborne lumber shipments from B.C. ports show both up and down fluctuations in the major markets, but the grand total is up from the same January-October period last year.

The over-all total is 400,000 board feet more than two billion, compared with 1,998 billion in 1966, despite a shaky export business at the start of the year.

The U.S. Atlantic seaboard took marginally more than it did during October a year ago — 64.88 million board feet against 64.81 million — but bought substantially less than it did in 1966 over a 10-month period.

The total to the end of October was 795.34 million board feet compared with 1,014 billion board feet in the period last year. The U.K. bought nearly 400,000 board feet less in October this year, or 38.68 million compared with 39 million, and Japan increased its purchases last month to receive 29.5 million board feet against only 19.9 million last year.

All markets in October took 168.88 million board feet, substantially better than the 159.35 million feet in October 1966.

we might reach would be the result of discussions with our own Imperial dealers." There are about 550 Imperial oil stations throughout the province.

Earlier, Lloyd Kinneard, secretary of the ARA, which represents about 1,500 service station operators in B.C., said the association has condemned companies.

Fast by a microwave tower Don Haaheim plans a shot

But he's not after moose. He's a radio transmission engineer with the B.C. Telephone Company and he's shooting for a communications path.

The temperature was 78 above, but Don Haaheim pulled a winter parka snugly about his head. He'd rather sweat than be bitten.

He was atop a mountain in British Columbia's northern interior, checking pathways for a microwave radio transmission system. The mosquitoes and black flies were so thick they obscured his vision and filled his mouth as he gasped for breath.

He was on a field trip as a B.C. Telephone Company radio transmission engineer, one of many such trips he makes as a member of a team of communications experts who plan routes and specify equipment for telephone systems to link British Columbians together.

Conditions are not like that on every field trip. In winter, the insects disappear from even the most remote site and he has only to fight sub-zero cold and icy winds.

And sometimes, in the less isolated locations, he can strip to his shirt sleeves and work in comfort as he did when the photo

Hub Of The Wheel

Tabor Mountain is the hub of the telephone wheel in northern British Columbia. From its reflectors, concentrated radio beams are shot north, south, east and west to create pathways which carry telephone calls and other communications services.

Don Haaheim (the name's Norwegian and rhymes with Ho-Hime) knows Tabor Mountain well. He also knows McLean Mountain, Mount Hays, Morfee, Bullhead, Dragon, Baldy Hughes, Kwinita, Kitsumkalum and many others.

He knows them because they are radio repeater sites in B.C. Telephone's long distance system and he's been to them to study their weather patterns, their heights, their accessibility, their physical structure.

He must know them because on his knowledge, and on the knowledge of other telephone people like him, are based the decisions which lead to construction and operation of telephone communications systems so vital to the growth and development of British Columbia.

Don Haaheim is based in Prince George, the administrative centre of B.C. Telephone's Northern Division, which encompasses the northern two-thirds of this vast and rugged province.

A New Headquarters

When he's not in the field, he's in his office in the company's Division headquarters building, a new structure built in 1966 at cost of $750,000, because the company had to have space to expand facilities and meet the telephone needs of this thriving region.

On a mountain top, in a helicopter, in a snow cat or at his desk, he applies his skills to assist B.C. Telephone in its efforts to expand economically and efficiently its $480 million telephone system serving British Columbians.

Don is a native British Columbian himself, born in New Westminster and raised in Langley. He learned much about the province's terrain as a survey crew workman between terms at the University of B.C., from which he was graduated in 1961 as an electrical engineer.

He joined B.C. Telephone that same year and moved to Prince George in 1963 after working for two years out of Vancouver, where he met and married a nurse from Cape Breton Island, Nova Scotia. He and his wife, Lois, now have two young children.

Don Haaheim is an active young man, a golfer in summer, a curler in winter and from September to May a teacher of telecommunications at night-school classes at the B.C. Vocational Institute in Prince George.

He's a telephone man and he sees nothing more unusual in his tasks than in the hundreds of others performed by the more than 7,200 B.C. Telephone people working together to meet the communications challenge offered by British Columbia.

Telephone people are like that.

HE'S A PLANNER

The B.C. Telephone Company is spending more than $1 million every week to expand local and long distance telephone facilities throughout British Columbia.

Such a program requires careful attention to planning and programming, attention provided in B.C. Telephone operations by a team of more than 750 engineers, technicians, draftsmen and others skilled in telephone communications.

Don Haaheim is a member of that team.

Nineteen members of the Victoria Figure Skating Club will compete in the B.C. skating championships Dec. 8 to 10, hosted by the Capilano Figure Skating Club at Vancouver.

Winners of the provincial championships will go on to represent B.C. in the Canadian championships to be held in Vancouver in January.

Competitors for the national meet will be chosen from winners in the senior and junior women's and men's singles, and dance and pair events.

Scheduled to represent the Victoria club are Dennise Bowles, Debbie Bray, Maureen Jasper, Peggy Hoskins, Janine Richardson, Sharon Jeffs, Barbara Maple, Carole Irwin, Linda Roe, Pam Reynolds, Brenda Thomas, Grace Higgins, Paul Fisher, David Macdonald, Ruby Zapitochney, Kevin Cottam, Heather Fraser, Richard Madden and Lorraine Hind.

Vancouver Pair Beaten in Final

TORONTO (CP)—Alex Boissere and Dick Weisman of Los Angeles won the master doubles at the world handball championships here Saturday by defeating Harold McLean and Willie Bernstein of Toronto 21-9, 13-21, 21-6.

In the open doubles, Paul Haver of Los Angeles and Stan Garden of Toronto won the title by downing Rod Pantages and Vic Kristopatis of Vancouver 21-6, 21-3.

Clever Hurler Able To Throw Anything

MEXICO CITY (AP)—

"If a pitcher is clever enough he can throw anything he wants. We are just trying to make sure he doesn't want to throw a spitball."

That was the way Paul Richards, general manager of Atlanta Braves, reasoned the latest change in baseball rules, a change designed to put some teeth in the ban against the spitball.

The playing rules committee amended Rule 802A Monday, to prohibit a pitcher from touching his mouth or lips or spitting in his hand, glove or on the ball. The first violation brings a warning from the umpire, the second automatic expulsion from the game.

Richards, who proposed the change said: "It is too late when a manager complains after a pitcher has thrown a spitball. It's all over then and there's no proof. So it must be stopped sooner, at the mouth, where 85 per cent of the foreign substances come from."

APPLIES TO ALL

The rule applies at the start of next season even to those pitchers who touch their mouth in nervous habit, even if they've never thrown a spitball in their lives.

Spitballs were banned at the start of the 1920 season but 19 pitchers who were throwing spitballs then were allowed to continue the practice until retirement.

But pitchers kept up the practice on the sly. Almost every team in the major leagues has at least one wetball pitcher although Cal Koonce of New York Mets is the only active hurler to make a public admission that his pitches have something on them other than natural effort.

PLANS TO SPEED PLAY

Charles Segal, president of the playing rules committee, announced the change on the first day of the annual winter baseball meetings. It was suggested during an unprecedented meeting of managers and general managers of the 20 major league clubs.

The managers and general managers also acted on ideas put forth by commissioner William D. Eckert to speed up play and improve the game's image.

These included giving the umpire sole authority to determine if a ball is in good enough condition to keep in the game and asking all clubs to use golf carts to haul relief pitchers and pinch hitters from distant bullpens.

In other developments, Joe DiMaggio, executive vice-president of Oakland Athletics, announced the appointment of Bill Cutler as vice-president in charge of public relations. Cutler has been an administrative assistant in the office of the American League president.

New York Mets acquired catcher J. C. Martin from Chicago White Sox and sent pitcher Bill Denehy to Washington Senators to complete deals made earlier.

Vancouver's the Place For British Swim Ace

SOUTHAMPTON, England (CP)—Alan Kimber, 19, one of Britain's top freestyle swimmers, will complete his Olympic training in Vancouver because of better facilities there. He leaves for Vancouver in January.

"As I see it," said Kimber, holder of four national titles, "going to Vancouver is the only way I can win a gold medal for Britain at the Olympic games in Mexico next year."

"My coach, Deryk Snelling, wrote to me from Vancouver and said that training facilities there are wonderful."

Kimber is recovering from an operation to remove a bone growth in his right leg and feels he needs extra training facilities to get back in shape.

He tried to get extra time for private swimming at a public pool here but officials said they could not provide this time because "we serve a population of over 200,000."

New Signs Of Disunity In Red Camp

MOSCOW (UPI) — New signs of communist disunity Saturday imperilled the Kremlin's drive toward a long-sought world Communist summit to isolate China from the movement.

Half of the world's 14 ruling Communist parties appeared likely to boycott the summit.

The Italian party — the largest in the non-ruling Communist world — indicated it was working from within to block any hopes of a hard-line condemnation of Peking.

CUBANS REFUSE

And the Cubans escalated their quarrel with Moscow by refusing to have anything to do with the conference.

The Soviets have worked openly for 15 months to persuade the world's 90-odd Communist parties to come to the summit to condemn China.

This campaign yielded first fruit early Saturday with an announcement by the Soviet Union and 17 other parties that a meeting to prepare the summit conference will be held in February in the Hungarian capital of Budapest.

QUICK DOUBTS

But two parties — the Cuban and the Italian — raised immediate doubts on how much the Budapest meeting will achieve.

The parties issuing the invitation included 18 out of 19 parties which attended a similar "preparatory meeting" — for a summit which never took place — in 1965.

The 19th party at that meeting was the Cuban, which apparently refused to join the Budapest meeting. This, coupled with recent articles in the Soviet press, indicated that Havana may join Peking as a target for condemnations by the conference.

The Italian communist party, which has been lukewarm at best toward the idea of a Red summit, agreed to join in sponsoring the Budapest meeting.

But at the same time, Italian party leader Luigi Longo issued a statement saying the parties meeting in Budapest would constitute only a "consultative" group on a possible summit agenda. He also suggested that other "Democratic" parties — like the liberation fronts in underdeveloped nations — should come to Budapest.

The effect of this, in the view of observers here, would be to water down the February meeting and dash Moscow's hopes for unity on a strong condemnation of China.

Summit Meeting Set for Spring?

NEW YORK (Reuters) — Newsweek magazine says President Johnson recently received a secret conciliatory letter from Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin, and this encouraged Johnson to seek a U.S.-Soviet summit meeting next spring.

The magazine says in this week's issue the letter expressed alarm over the state of Soviet-American relations and indicated a desire to improve them.

The report could not immediately be confirmed.

Newsweek says Johnson particularly wanted a meeting with

PAPER FINED $12,850

LONDON (AP) — Lord Thomson's Sunday Times was fined £5,000 ($12,850) Monday for contempt of court, the first such conviction against the newspaper in 150 years.

The High Court, however, refused to impose a penalty on the paper's editor, Harold Evans, 38, who faced a possible jail sentence.

The court made the ruling on an article in The Sunday Times Oct. 29 which identified Michael Abdul Malik, the leader of Britain's Black Power movement, as "having had an unedifying career as brothel keeper, procurer and property racketeer."

Malik, known as Michael X, was then awaiting trial on a charge of inciting racial violence. He later was sentenced to a year in jail.

Under British law, newspapers are forbidden to print anything other than formal charges against a person awaiting trial.

Russ Increase Rocket Tests

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Russians Monday announced a fourth 1967 series of space rocket firing near the U.S. island of Midway in what appeared to be a sharp increase in the Soviet testing program.

The official news agency Tass said the "carrier rockets" will be launched from Soviet soil from Tuesday until Dec. 30. It said they will land in two 80-mile-wide target zones 300 miles northwest and south of the Pacific Ocean island.

Tass warned all ships and airplanes to stay out of the area from noon until midnight, local time, each day.

In the past the Soviets have carried out an average of two Pacific Ocean test series each year. But in 1967 they already staged month-long series in June, September and October.

Later they called each series "successful."

The test series was said by observers to have two main aims:

Counterfeit 20s Passed in City Over Weekend

Three counterfeit $20 bills were turned over to city police Monday.

The bills came from banks and detectives say they were probably passed in the city over the weekend.

They all have the same serial number: T over E 3587399.

The detectives say the phoney bills are a good likeness but the paper is not of good quality.

• To test new and bigger Soviet rockets which the Russians will need to send man to the moon and bring him back.

• To expand recent Soviet experiments on the landing of space capsules at sea. All previous Soviet manned space landings have been on Soviet soil.

It was assumed by observers here that U.S. scientific and military experts keep close watch on the Soviet testing near Midway, scene of a decisive U.S. naval victory over Japan in the Second World War.

In the past, the rockets have been fired as much as 6,000 miles down range from the Soviet Union. The new series will involve launches of 3,000 to 4,000 miles.

DE GAULLE TO TRY FOR MORE?

PARIS (AP) — President de Gaulle concluded his news conference Monday with some musings on his future.

A reporter asked the 77-year-old French president what he thought might follow him.

De Gaulle said that everything has an end, and as for Gaullism, the end "might be tonight, maybe in a year, or five years, since that is when my presidential term ends."

He added with a broad smile: "If you want to make some people laugh, or enrage others, I could say that maybe it will come in 10 years, in 15 years."

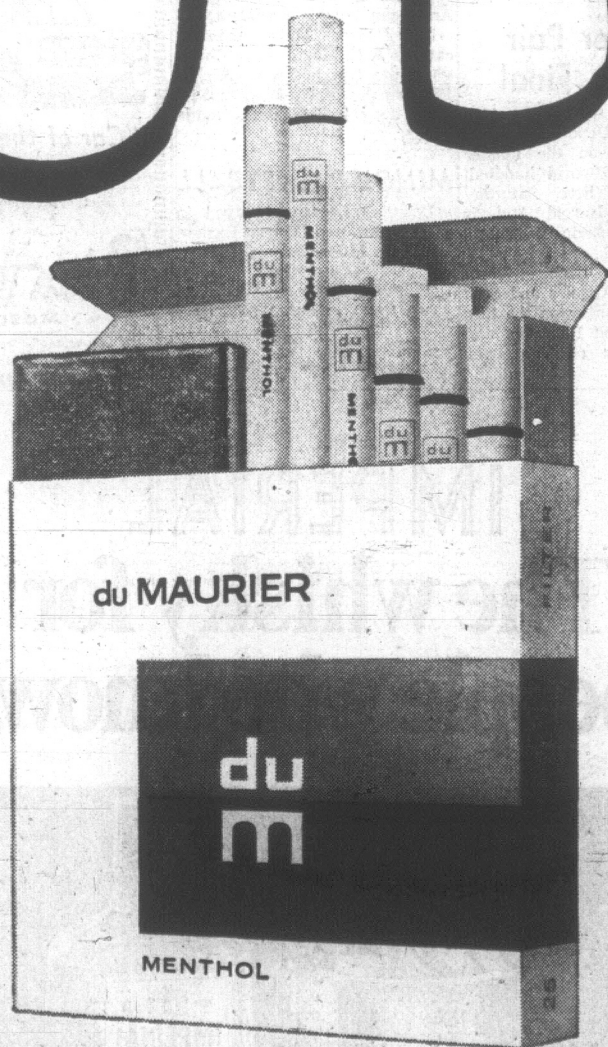

A pause, and then: "But I don't think so."

Recruiters May Pass Uvic Date

Recruiters from Dow Chemical of Canada may pass up the University of Victoria Wednesday but students have planned protests just in case.

A spokesman at the university's job placement office declined to say this morning how many senior chemistry students have signed up for job interviews with the giant firm.

But he did say it was "questionable" whether Dow representatives would be on campus Wednesday as scheduled. Indications are that a lack of interested students might mean a postponement.

Recruiting officers from the huge chemical company have been plagued by student protests recently. The students are objecting to the firm's alleged manufacture of material used in napalm bombs by American forces in Vietnam.

Sit-ins, vigils and labor-type picket lines are among proposals for demonstrating against Dow and students say they have also prepared 20 by 30-foot photographs of napalm victims.

A further strategy meeting of protestors is scheduled for noon today.

Barge Ready By Year End

McMillan Bloedel's $1,500,000 newsprint barge, damaged by fire during construction in September, will be ready for service Dec. 29.

John Wallace, general manager of Yarrow, said the damage to the barge and equipment in the fire is estimated at $350,000.

NO REAL INTEREST FOUND IN CROSS-CANADA TRIP

'Red Power' Talk Isn't Serious, Says Indian Chief

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Canadians should stop worrying about "Red Power" talk by some Indian leaders. This advice came today from Chief Wobay Kitpou of the Bear River Reserve near Halifax who is here with his mobile museum of Indian artifacts.

"There is no serious movement or any real interest in 'red power' in Canada," he said. "What Indians want is equality with their white brothers."

On his way to the coast he visited reserves in nine provinces and gained first-hand information on the needs of Indians.

The only way a "red power" movement could take root in Canada is through outside help he said. And that isn't going to happen.

He also said there is no danger of the Indians becoming associated with the American black power organization because the redmen never accepted slavery as the Negroes did.

Efforts to use Indians as slaves failed in North America, he said.

Tribal laws told him that all children belonged to God and were not the possession of any man. So if an Indian did accept slavery, he was in effect selling the possession of God."

The chief will stay in Victoria for an indefinite time to study blood line descendents and inter-tribal relations. He will work at the University of Victoria. He obtained a Ph.D. in philosophy from Bishop University in Quebec.

His museum is housed in a 41-foot long, 11-ton bus, part of which he uses as sleeping quarters. He is accompanied by his wife, Isabel. The museum contains a collection of artifacts and tomahawks, some dating back to Samuel de Champlain and the occupation of Quebec by General Wolfe.

His bust is draped with a huge Union Jack "to remind people that Indians are loyal to the Crown."

"We made a treaty of peace with William the IV of England and we won't break faith," he said. "We are Indian Canadians, if you like but loyal to the Crown."

The chief said federal Indian housing policies are not successful because the natives are not consulted as to their needs.

"Some Indians don't want a five or six-room house with basement," he said. "They have no use for space they don't use, especially basements."

"Many Indians would be content with a log cabin, providing it has running water and bathroom facilities," he added.

The chief said it will take some time yet before Indians adjust themselves to the white man's ways.

"The very idea of arriving and leaving work at a certain time is repugnant to him," he explained. "But he's capable of working as hard and as long as a white."

On his arrival the chief presented a stone peace pipe to Premier Bennett and the crest of Halifax to Mayor Hugh Stephen.

HARD FIGHTS IN THREE CITIES

Seven Elected by Acclamation

Leaders of seven island communities had been elected by acclamation when nominations for the municipal elections closed at noon Monday.

Mayor George Hobson of Courtenay and Mayor Ron Ellis of Comox were returned unopposed, so were village commission chairmen Brian Westlund, Alert Bay; Thomas Gibson, Tofino; Boyd All, Lake Cowichan; Charles Danks, Qualicum Beach; William Russell, Ucluelet.

But tough fights loomed elsewhere.

Elmore Clark, Jim Quafe and Ald. Hamish Mutter are seeking the mayoralty in Duncan to fill the vacancy left by Mayor Jack Dobson who declined to run again.

FAMILIAR NAMES

Three familiar names will be on the mayoralty ballot in the "new" city of Port Alberni, formed with the amalgamation of Alberni and Port Alberni.

The mayors of the old Twin Cities, Les Hammer and Fred Bishop, will contest the seat along with Loran Jordan, former mayor of Port Alberni.

In Nanaimo, two aldermen, Ted Barsby and Jack Parker will seek the mayoralty along with realtor Frank Ney.

The seat became vacant when Mayor Pete Mafeo died out of civic affairs at the end of his year.

A completed list of nominees, plebiscites and bylaws follows.

Does Mental Stress Make You Physically Ill?

Emotional stress can produce real illness—a true change in body chemistry and structure. Case histories show how a "heart disease" ... a "miscarriage" ... a serious "back ailment" were all caused by an emotional disturbance in the patient's life. December Reader's Digest reports that emotion-caused disorders now account for perhaps two out of every three visits to the doctor and tells how he diagnoses an illness he suspects stems from stress. This absorbing and helpful article also tells how you can help your doctor decide whether your illness was caused by an abrupt change in your daily life. It's in December Digest—on sale now.

We anticipate every need and take full responsibility for every detail involved in final arrangements—giving to each our most careful attention.

Rezoning Sought For Office Block

DUNCAN—An office and medical block is planned for the corner of Coronation Avenue and St. Julian Street.

Bill and Ruby McQuhae said Monday no concrete plans have been made but they made application to city council for the site to be rezoned commercial from residential.

Council deferred a decision. Ald. Homer Alex said the developers could not proceed with detailed plans until the rezoning question is resolved.

Ald. Hamish Mutter said he was concerned in case such a development would be detrimental to the $1,000,000 urban renewal plan for the downtown area.

HARMFUL EFFECT

"The opening up of further properties in the St. Julian area could adversely affect downtown renewal."

Mayor Jack Dobson said the McQuhae plan should be referred to the city's planning consultants who should be asked if they have changed their minds in regard to opposing spot zoning.

Ald. Alex said the proposal should be given some consideration. Although the area is zoned residentially at present the projected third railroad crossing is going to use Coronation Avenue.

"How long can that area remain residential then?" he asked.

The application was referred to the planners after Ald. Mutter said: "If they oppose this in principle we should heed them."

Continued city growth was illustrated when council was faced with a proposal for a $135,000 storm sewer plan.

Consulting engineer Russell Potter said: "It is needed and should be included in the city's budget as soon as possible."

"However, the work can be done in stages."

First thought of Ald. Mutter was: "Let's hope it won't interfere with permanent black-topping."

City clerk Gordon Berry said it wasn't a case of trouble at present but a matter of looking ahead.

Mayor Dobson felt the work could be included as part of the urban renewal scheme.

Council will meet with Mr. Potter to discuss his proposal.

A speeding up of the removal of the city's workshops to a Marchmont Road site will be effected by the Duncan Kiwanis Ambulance Society's acceptance of the present Canada Avenue site as the future home of the ambulance hall.

Arthur Mayse

First, a report on the score hung up by our husband-wife walking team in Saturday's long-to-be-remembered "Miles for Millions" march.

To my pride and pleasure, my dear companion of many another hike finished the 25.8-mile route in good foot at 8:30 p.m.

But to my infinite disgust, a bad knee forced me out of contention at the 22-mile mark.

Through the generosity of the 56 readers who sponsored us, we expect to turn about $470 over to the "Miles for Millions" campaign.

Now, a note to those sponsors, along with our sincere thanks:

Please make your cheques out to "Miles for Millions" and send them to me care of the Times. I will deposit them in the student fund's Bank of Montreal account and turn all deposit slips over to march coordinator Bob Taylor, along with our sponsor sheets. Should you wish a tax-deductible receipt, you have but to pass me the word.

Even on Saturday morning, when we were trudging the first cold-foot mile, sponsors were still checking in.

We're pleased to acknowledge backing for the fund from Mr. and Mrs. H. Silver, "Edna and Fraser," Gwen Cash, D. G. Newstead, Mrs. Esme Windle, Mrs. R. Reynolds, Roland Miltre, G. J. Hope, Mrs. G. Johanson of Elsie's Gift Shop, Sue Mayse, Ron Mayse, Mrs. M. Gooden, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ivelid, Mr. and Mrs. S. Haines, Mrs. Vera Bell, and six anonymous per-mile pledges.

As for the walk itself, we will always be glad we took part in it, and not merely because it was in aid of a sound cause.

We have never agreed with those who damn today's young people as soft, spoiled and self-centred. But if proof of their quality and style were needed, it was abundantly obvious on Saturday's long, long roads.

Nobody made them undertake the march. They were, every blessed one of them, eager volunteers. They started out gallantly and they finished gamely, in such numbers as must startle even those who knew their capabilities.

Between start and finish, more than one of them left blood on those roads from feet whose blisters had broken and rubbed raw.

We saw kids who had shed one shoe or both, and who by rights should have been riding back to base in rescue car or army van. But they kept plugging on.

There was one girl, about halfway along the route, who hobbled between two friends with short, blonde pony tails bobbing on each side of her radiant head. She had discarded a shoe. The green sock on her other foot was already stained, but drop out she would not.

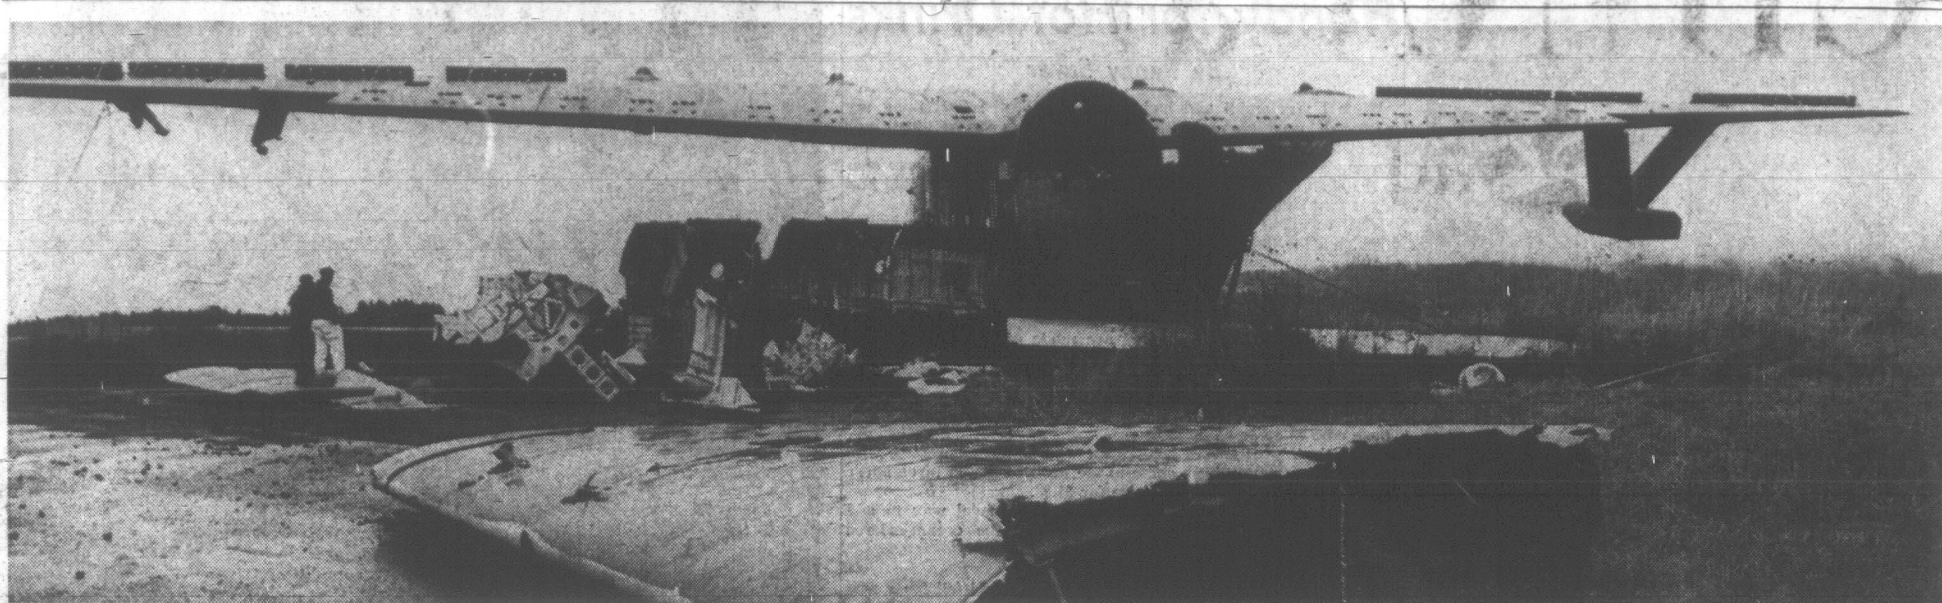

Also, the young ones encouraged each other, and had a good word for the grownups who walked with them. I know that their friendliness kept me going for several miles past the check-point I had figured as my probable limit.

The only word I can find for those thousands is a five-buck one I rarely drag out. They were magnificent.

They had their slogans — "These Boots are Made for Walking," proclaimed in gay letters on a serpent of wrapping paper, or another group's wonderfully impudent, "We Challenge You!"

Some of these banners were discarded along the way, with the lesser debris of a legion on the march. We saw a running shoe with worn sole bulged in a rubber blister, and in no less eloquent token, the ankle ends of a pair of stretch pants, hacked off jaggedly as if with a blunt pocket knife.

If I seem to slight the adults who went along or gave aid and comfort to the marchers, this is only because the big walk was essentially youth's show, both at the start in the morning chill with bagpipes skirling, and on along the ups and downs of almost 26 miles of pavement, blacktop and roadside gravel. That's it for today. Tomorrow, I'll tell you about our walk, which proved too long for me, but too short for my feather-footed wife.

A bonanza for the scrap metal men, "Caroline" never won her wings as a water-bomber on B.C.'s fire lines.

Wreckers Carve Up Caroline

By DOREEN HUNTER

The lonely outcast of the Martin Mars fleet is falling prey to wrecking crews.

The giant aircraft which became a landmark on the north side of the Patricia Bay airport lies in pieces—almost as if it had crash-landed.

Forest Industries Flying Tankers Ltd. has sold "Caroline" for scrap to Capitol Iron Works of Victoria.

The company expects to get some 70 tons of aluminum out of the stripped hull plus some steel and manganese.

Flying Tankers still operate two converted Mars as water-bombers from Sproat Lake near Port Alberni.

PARTS USED

The "orphan" at Patricia Bay was never converted but was cannibalized for parts.

An official said the company has enough parts to last for a number of years. No parts were available from the manufacturer because it is believed only six of the planes were built.

The 155-foot planes with the 135-foot wingspan were built towards the end of the Second World War.

They were considered one of the finest engineered aircraft ever made.

"There was no finer workmanship on any aircraft," said one of the men who worked on the water bombers.

The planes—which could carry 300 troops—were used to transport the sick and wounded during the Korean War.

In 1959 the remaining four were bought by a company formed by several major B.C. lumber firms.

Three were converted for fire-fighting.

In 1961, one of the planes crashed while fighting fire at Northwest Bay, north of Nanaimo, and its four crew members killed.

ACCLAMATION FOR SIX REGION POSTS

Six of seven directors on the Capital District Regional planning Board were re-elected by acclamation for two-year terms Monday.

Unopposed when nominations closed were William Reader representing Colwood; Langford representative John Williams; John Tipton, Sooke; Albert Beasley, View Royal; Howard Elder, Sooke, and Joan Purchase, Outer Islands.

Only on Salt Spring Island will there be a contest Dec. 9 between incumbent Douglas Cavaye and Gilbert Humphreys.

WILLISTON:

No Pushing On Cowichan Flood Control

Resources Minister Ray Williston today said his department is not pushing for a controversial flood control program on the Cowichan River.

"We were asked to do a survey by the municipal authorities to suggest a program that would resolve the problem of periodic flooding by the river," he said in an interview.

"There's no opposition to it and it's not a matter of life or death from our standpoint because it's up to them (municipalities) how this is resolved."

(Area residents who fear the proposed project would destroy sport fishing on the river have circulated a petition opposing it.)

Mr. Williston said he was not aware if the study had gone as far as estimating expenditures but the cost "would be on a shared basis, I would assume."

Is Tight Money Behind Delay On Blanshard?

By JIM HUME

Times City Hall Reporter
Construction of the Blanshard Street school, designed to replace archaic North Ward School in the Rose-Blanshard urban renewal area, is under way.

But it is the only sign of activity in the 30-acre area designated to be cleared for Victoria's first low-rental housing project.

And city hall officials are wondering with some concern if the provincial government's austerity program is creating the delay in the announcement from the province of its intentions regarding the 180 housing units to be built in the area.

J. Everett Brown, provincial housing commissioner and deputy minister of municipal affairs, insists that the lack of a decision to date does not indicate reluctance on the part of his government to commit funds to cover 25 per cent of construction costs.

NORMAL DELAY

He says the delay is normal while the many details of such an ambitious program are ironed out.

City officials remain unconvinced. They point out that a letter dated Feb. 23, 1967, spelling out the city's recommendations for Continued on Page 25

PIZZA MAN SLAYER SERVES HIS TIME AT WILLIAM HEAD

Carpenter Orlando Trozzo, convicted of manslaughter last May in a sidewalk shooting, is now serving his seven-year sentence at William Head minimum security prison.

Superintendent Gamaliel Milner confirmed today Trozzo has been transferred to the institution.

It is not unusual for persons convicted of major crimes to end up at William Head, said Mr. Milner.

"A great deal more depends upon the man than the charge."

Trozzo was originally charged with capital murder after he shot Mario Fata, 18, outside his pizza parlor on downtown Douglas Street, in an argument over a debt.

STUDENTS LOOK AHEAD

Ideas Sparkle For Overseas Aid

A group of Victoria students met today to ensure that the spirit of Saturday's great march goes marching on.

They decided to form a new, wider youth committee representative of the Greater Victoria area to mould new schemes to aid overseas development.

The committee would work with an adult advisory committee to maintain the interest of the total community in the project.

The meeting, in the office of the school board special projects officer Ken Bloomfield, was attended by Mr. Bloomfield, Uvic student Bob Taylor who chaired the Project 100 march organization, Bob McDougall, president of Oak Bay High students council; Glen Willing of the Adult Institute (who was the first to complete the march) and Roger Skilling, head of the Victoria High School student council.

Mr. Taylor said the meeting evolved from a common desire to maintain the enthusiasm shown in the great march on a long-term basis to benefit students in underdeveloped countries.

ANNUAL SHOW

Initial discussions showed an intention to continue the march or some similar project embracing the community, on an annual basis.

Also in the idea stage is a proposal to send teachers with Project 100 mobile classrooms going abroad and also send students to observe the program and report back to other students. Students benefiting from the program in places like Tanzania and Guyana might be brought here on an exchange basis.

GOVERNMENT AID

Another suggested aim is the winning of support from governments in further financing.

Mr. Taylor reported that a telegram was sent today by school board chairman Peter Bunn to Maurice Strong, director general of the External Aid program, asking Ottawa to match funds raised by Canadian students.

"Help our young to give to the young to help raise a new world community," said Mr. Bunn's message.

He sent a second telegram to Prime Minister Pearson advising him of the success of the student-inspired march which saw more than 10,000 people take part.

Indecent Assault Hearing Ends; Trial Coming

A man accused of indecent assault on a woman was to be committed for trial today.

Hypnosis Group Meets Friday

Lease-Back Proposal At Parley

British Columbia farmers want senior governments to establish green belts around urban areas.

The B.C. Federation of Agriculture at the opening session of its annual convention here today requested governments to purchase farmlands on the outskirts of urban areas.

The land would be leased back to farmers for agricultural purposes.

A member of the B.C. Fruit Growers' Association said the value of agricultural land adjacent to urban areas had risen to uneconomic levels for farm use.

But farmers, he said, are not able to subdivide their land for housing because of zoning regulations passed by municipalities to control the growth of urban development.

"INJUSTICE"

"This injustice prevents the owners of these lands from benefiting from any increase in value of their farmlands and thus participating in the general progress of these areas," he said.

The answer is for the government to purchase these lands and lease them back to farmers, he said.

The two-day convention was opened at the Empress Hotel by Archie Stevenson, president. Delegates from more than 80 organizations were present.

Ald. Geoff. Edgewood welcomed the delegates on behalf of Mayor Hugh Stephen.

Richard B. Stocks, manager, disclosed the Farmers' Union of B.C. with a membership of 300, had withdrawn from the federation on the grounds that it could not meet the organization's fees.

The group, composed of members all living in the Peace River block, had submitted 10 resolutions to the convention. All were withdrawn.

Hunters Walk Out

Two Victoria men walked out of the bush in the rugged Ntunat country Monday to end an overnight search by RCMP and the Alberni Rescue Squadron.

Wayne Norman and David Price, both 20, were sought when they failed to keep a rendezvous with Price's father at noon Sunday.

Ask The Times

Q. What organizations across Canada preach, teach and nurse in poverty-stricken countries? C.A.W.

A. Most Canadian churches, particularly Anglican, Roman Catholic and United, do extensive preaching, teaching and nursing abroad. Missionary work is also done by the International Red Cross, Canadian Red Cross, the Save the Children Fund, the Unitarian Service and OXFAM (Oxford Committee for Famine Relief).

Q. What is the best kind of gift to send for a baby girl if you are invited to the christening but are unable to attend?—L.A.T.

A. Articles of clothing are usually most needed but it is not essential that you send a gift if you are not able to attend. A note of congratulation would be sufficient.

CLIP THIS NOW FOR CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINING

In the cut-up chicken shop I noticed that the chicken wings were 39 cents per pound as were the giblets. I asked the clerk to pick me out 15 of the largest wings and to weigh me a pound of giblets too. I had an idea that they could be made into a big platterful of delicious-looking food for a casual Christmas party at low cost. I served them to five hearty diners last night and all agreed they rated column space.

CHICKEN WINGS FOR SWINGERS (serves 5)

Fifteen large chicken wings, 1 pound chicken giblets, 2 packages "shake 'n' bake".

Note: As you may know there is a plastic bag enclosed in the package of "shake 'n' bake".

Add water to giblets to cover, bring to boil, reduce heat to simmer, put on lid and simmer 4 hours. Remove from liquid and dry them.

Butter a large shallow baking dish or your broiler pan. Shake chicken wings—one at a time—in a crumb mixture in plastic bag, and place in even rows on baking pan. Sprinkle with a little salt. Bake at 400 deg. F. for 30 minutes, covered with foil.

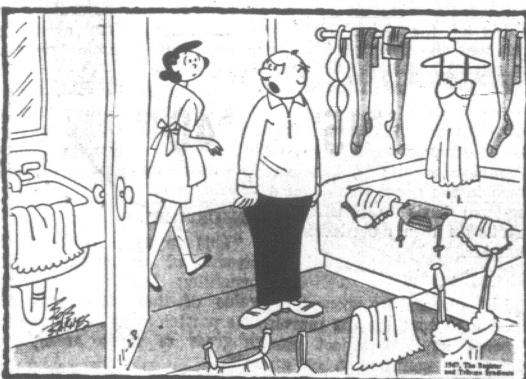

Meanwhile shake giblets in second package of "n' b" to completely coat.

(Note: You need some of the second package to coat all wings well.)

After wings have been baked 30 minutes, line up coated giblets in a long row over wings at centre. Re-cover with foil and bake 10 minutes longer at 400 deg. F.—50 minutes in all—until deep gold. Transfer to preheated platter in perfect order and serve with red currant jelly.

Melodious Speaking Voice Will Fascinate Listeners

"A woman with a melodious speaking voice will always have fascinated listeners even if she has nothing to say. Of course, it would be even better if she had something interesting, amusing or intelligent to talk about."

This is the attractive Rose Ingraham speaking. Miss Ingraham is one of New York City's top singing teachers and a popular coach of top singers.

She continues, "A soft, pretty speaking voice must be cultivated as tirelessly as a lovely face or figure. We have all had the shock of hearing a great beauty speak in a grating voice, and suddenly, she's not beautiful any more! Some of history's greatest femmes fatales had a more alluring voice than face."

Rose Ingraham began her career by winning the Metropolitan Opera Audition of the Air. Her own Broadway stage credits include important singing roles in "Milk and Honey," "The Boyfriend," and "Where's Charlie?", plus numerous television and national company performances. She currently has three pupils in lead roles on Broadway, including Will Burke who is starring with Robert Goulet in "The Happy Time."

Miss Ingraham not only works with top singers, but she has had the rewarding and very special experience of teaching deaf mute children to talk.

Here are some of her directions for developing a lovely voice. Try them! Work with them! I have, and I think I have improved already.

1. Don't push the voice against the larynx or arch your tongue toward the back of your throat. This produces a tight harsh sound.

2. When you speak, let your voice come through both your mouth and nose at the same time. It is very important to keep your throat muscles relaxed and your larynx down. Put your fingers on each side of the centre of your throat, swallow, and you will feel your larynx go down.

3. When you breathe, push your diaphragm down rather than lift your chest.

4. Speak from the tip of your tongue but don't let B's, P's, or M's explode from the lips. If you do, you will have funny facial expressions. Use the inner edge of the lips and interior resonance to produce a distinct but soft sound.

5. The tongue is the main pronunciation instrument. A good exercise to limber it up is to say T-T-T-T—lightly against your upper teeth.

As all of my readers know, I believe that your tone of voice is so important in human relationships. You can say the same thing in two different tones of voice and it will mean two different things to the listener. Anyway, a charming voice is one of a woman's most charming attributes, and we can all improve our own.

Josephine Lowman gives you do's and don'ts to help you achieve that elusive quality in her free leaflet "Grace and Charm." To obtain your leaflet send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Coasters for Glasses Handy for Hot Drinks

By Penny Saver

When I was small and had taken a chill, the first thing my mother did was give me hot lemon and honey in a glass. This was her own special remedy for a host of ills. To be sure it was a remedy and made one feel he had been "cured" but it was also so delicious that I would manufacture the symptoms of a cold just to get that steaming glassful!

What concerns me now is not the recipe for this old-fashioned drink, but the little coasters that mother used. These were made of woven straw and came part way up the glass so that it could be held when filled with hot or cold drinks. I have looked all over for these coasters but until this year I had not seen them.

The coasters I've now found are made of rattan, which are more sturdy than the straw ones my mother used. There are two styles. One has no handle and comes in sets of six, two green, two brown and two natural cream. The cost of a set is $1.98. The other style has a handle and comes only in the brown color. These cost 79 cents each.

Also in the rattan are holders for wine bottles. Complete with handle for carrying, these come in the brown color in three bottle sizes at $2.98 and a two bottle size for $1.98.

Rattan baskets for baked potatoes are a novel way to add interest to your Christmas table. Made of the cream-colored peeled rattan, they cost $1.50 for a set of four.

I stopped to buy a pair of nylon stockings and fell for a new kind that the salesgirl showed me. Made of stretch nylon throughout, these are as sheer as ordinary stockings and just as snag-proof. The idea of the stretch is not support but to remove the ugly bags and wrinkles that so often develop at the ankles and knees of non-stretch stockings. They never bind and are so comfortable that I scarcely know I am wearing them. What makes these stockings different from other stretch stockings however is the special top. It has a special rubber lip so that it will stay up without garters. There are two shades available, a pale beige and a darker shade. The cost is $1.89 a pair.

If you are concerned about pollution and would like to help, there is a product on the market just for you. It is a biodegradable detergent for dishes and other hand washing. Biodegradable means that it will break down into substances that are, if not helpful, then at least neutral to the life-cycle of water plants and animals. Specially suited to west coast conditions, this product cleans as well as any. The price is 53 cents for a large bottle-full.

AT CAC MEETING

Head of Uvic Department Talks on Urgent Problems

Although Dr. Gordon Bertram agrees with the aim of the Consumers Association of Canada to protect the consumer, he suggested a few changes when he spoke to the Victoria Branch at its meeting in Eaton's board room, Monday afternoon.

The head of the department of economics at the University of Victoria told members he would rather see them concentrate on such pressing issues as urban renewal, rather than on changing faulty advertising.

He changed his proposed topic, "The Recommendations for the Economic Council of Canada on Consumer Affairs at the Federal Level," and instead delivered what he described as "a rambling survey of the problems before us."

Inflation was at the centre of his talk. He pointed out that while Canada had almost full employment and the standard of living was rising, she was lagging behind the United States. Prices are higher in Canada, especially for manufactured goods, yet the income level is a fifth lower on the average. Much of this he attributed to the high tariff rate. At one point he accused these rates of putting "a nice umbrella" over Canadian factories. He quoted the example of a company that was in tune with the technological advances of the United States but could afford to keep an old mill running while a new, but obsolete mill stood empty. "Something is protecting their prices," he said, "and that is the tariff."

MUST BE ALERT

Technological advance is necessary to increased productivity, but the labor force must also be ready to use the technology. Dr. Bertram was pleased to see an awareness of the dropout problem, but emphasized that something must be done.

Research in Canada is poorly supported at the federal level, he pointed out. This is especially true in the social sciences. He quoted Canada's research spending as no more than one per cent of the budget as compared to two or three per cent in the United States and Great Britain. "We think we can cope with problems but not pay the bill," he added.

Dr. Bertram discussed the war in Vietnam which he described as in the background of all problems. "American economy had reached full employment."

DEAR ABBY . . .

This Teacher Has Much to Learn

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: At the end of the school year, a teacher in our school retired. Another teacher and I collected $15 from each member of the faculty to give the retiring teacher a farewell dinner at an expensive restaurant. We also presented her with a set of matched luggage, and a generous check for the trip we understood she was to take.

At the beginning of the new school year, this "retired" teacher returned, explaining that she had decided not to retire after all.

This puts me in a very awkward position. Shouldn't the teacher return the money and luggage so I can refund it to the contributors? Any suggestions?

FEELS AWKWARD
DEAR FEELS: If anyone is in an "awkward" position, it's the teacher, not you. Of course she should return the luggage and the money (or throw a party for all of you). But unless she volunteers to do so, you are out of luck. Since she was sufficiently brazen to return to her job and keep the "retirement" gifts, I doubt if even an outright suggestion from the group would help her.

DEAR ABBY: In reply to "SUNK," who told her husband that after 18 years of marriage, his love-making did nothing for her, and she'd been putting on an act all along. Then she wrote, "It wasn't exactly the truth. I only said it to hurt him."

I am willing to bet it WAS the truth. Or very close to it. The husband's reaction was typical. Instead of being genuinely sorry to learn that his wife had been getting no sexual satisfaction from their marriage, and seeking ways to correct it, what did he do? He punished her by being cool, distant, and silent.

Why can't a man realize that this is a legitimate complaint—a cry of a faithful wife who wants her marriage to last? Frigidity is the result of the Victorian era, was no "decent" woman was supposed to enjoy sex. Only men were allowed to have sexual appetites, and women were around for the purpose of satisfying them. Now we know tickets at the door.

that the physical needs of women are the same as men, and they are equally entitled to fulfillment.

A husband who really loves his wife will move heaven and earth to find out why his love-making does nothing for her. There are doctors to consult and books to read to correct the problem. Married couples who keep such secrets from each other grow apart and become strangers.

Can you guess, Dear Abby, how many women are in the same boat with "SUNK" but go on in silence, "pretending" because they hesitate to rock the boat of security?

MARRIED AND SATISFIED

DEAR MARRIED: I have yet to see statistics that I would accept, knowing that people are more apt to lie about their personal sex lives than tell the truth. But judging from my mail, I would say there are more women in "SUNK'S" boat than in yours.

DEAR ABBY: The letter signed "FLOWER LOVER" compels me to express my own feelings about flowers at funerals.

True, flowers may not help the deceased, but I think they give much comfort to those remaining. I can imagine nothing more depressing than the sight of a bare coffin wherein rests the remains of a loved one. Somehow the presence of flowers at a funeral softens the whole effect and makes it easier to bear. And of course the number of floral pieces is an indication of the number of friends who wished to pay their final respects.

Personally, I am very much opposed to the family asking that contributions be sent to such and such a charity in lieu of flowers. Let them give to their charities, and I will give to mine.

ANOTHER FLOWER LOVER

DEAR ABBY: I was delighted to see that you had a good word to say about the traveling man. So many folks are quick to make jokes about how traveling men cheat on their wives. My husband and I have owned a motel since 1951, and we ought to know something about traveling men. For the most part they are quiet, clean and well-behaved.

They check in, go out for supper, do some paper work, watch a little TV, and then go right to sleep. They rarely even make a telephone call after 10 o'clock at night. The same goes for truck drivers whose wives accuse them of having a girl in every town. If a traveling man strikes up a conversation with anyone else around the motel, it's usually to brag about the wife and kids.

LIKES TRAVELING MEN

Mrs. R. L. McQuarrie, the first president of the club, opened the bazaar. She was introduced by Mrs. G. Thomas, current president.

Mrs. Frank Brown was the general convener, assisted by Mrs. Wally Plumpton.

In charge of the various stalls were: Sewing, Mrs. L. Matthews, convener, assisted by Mrs. H. L. Sutton and Mrs. D. Hayton; novelties, Mrs. T. Wellburn, convener, assisted by Mrs. E. Coleman and Mrs. D. Webb.

Mrs. R. Knight convoked the plants and flowers stall and Mrs. D. McNabb and Mrs. W. Steen looked after the raffles.

Mrs. K. Moore and Mrs. S. Clark were co-conveners for the afternoon tea. Assistants were Mrs. C. Wanless, Mrs. L. Smith Sr., the Misses Karen Moore, Jane McPhee and Susan Matthews.

Miss Lorraine Lister took tickets at the door.

Dairy foods go with good living

Do you wish you could store up spare time now for the coming holiday season? You can, if you take time soon to prepare some special Christmas goodies. Later you can pull them from the freezer when time is scarce.

Butter cakes stay fresh! What a good feeling to be able to produce your best Chocolate Fudge Cake or Maple Pecan Layer at a moment's notice. Cakes can be frozen, iced all ready to serve. Quick-to-make butter frostings stand up best.

Angel cakes make pretty buffet desserts when layered with luscious fillings. For an easy eggnog-flavored filling, cream ¾ cup soft butter; gradually beat in 3 cups sifted icing sugar, 1 egg, 1½ teaspoons vanilla, ¼ teaspoon brandy extract, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg and 2 tablespoons milk. Fill a large angle cake which has been split into 4 layers. Frost with sweetened whipped cream: Before serving, decorate with green coconut and cherries. We call it a Christmas Wreath Special!

Plates of gaily decorated cookies are a must at party time. Whatever new recipes you try, you can't bake too many of these crisp flaky shortbreads.

2 cups soft butter
1½ cups sifted icing sugar
4½ cups sifted all-purpose flour

Cream butter, gradually beat in sugar. Add and beat in flour, part at a time. Wrap and chill. To bake, preheat oven to 300°F. Let dough stand at room temperature to warm slightly; knead 1 minute. Roll on lightly floured board or canvas to ¼ inch thickness and cut with cookie cutters. Bake on ungreased cookie sheets about 20 mins. (Makes 5 doz.)

Note: Satisfactory results can not be obtained unless butter is used.

Mr. and Mrs. August Hiquebran, 520 William St., will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary on Friday, Dec. 8, by holding "open house" at the War Amputations Hall, 1610 Oak Bay Ave., from 2 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. Born in Wellington, Mr. Hiquebran served overseas with the First Canadian Pioneer from 1915 to 1918, marrying his wife in Old Kilpatrick, Scotland, in 1917. They returned to Canada in 1919 and lived in Wellington until they came to Victoria in 1927 when Mr. Hiquebran was transferred here by the Canadian Pacific Railway. Mr. and Mrs. Hiquebran are both ardent bowlers with the Victoria West Bowling Club. Mrs. Hiquebran is a past worthy matron of Victoria Chapter No. 17, Order of the Eastern Star, and is a volunteer at the free cancer dressing station each Thursday. The couple has two daughters, Mrs. N. (Margaret) Lennax and Mrs. R. (Eva) Barr, both of Victoria. There are eight grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

OF PERSONAL INTEREST

For Victoria Author

More than 50 guests will be present when Major S. S. Penny and Mrs. Penny, of Land's End Road, Sidney, hold a sherry party this coming Sunday afternoon at Goodacre Towers. The party has been arranged to honor Miss Yvonne Helen Stevenson, Mrs. Penny's sister, whose book "Burns and His Bonnie Jean" has recently been released, receiving favorable reviews in Great Britain, Canada and the United States. Among Sunday's guests will be Mr. Gray Campbell, publisher of the book; members of his staff; presidents of the St. Andrew's and Caledonian Society and the Burns Club, and Mr. J. S. Rivers, publisher of The Saanich Peninsula and Gulf Islands Review.

Festive Dance

The Vancouver Island Netherlands Association will be holding a Saint Nicolas Ball on Saturday, Dec. 9, in the Club Tango. In Holland, Saint Nicolas, who is the forerunner of our Santa Claus, traditionally appears on the eve of his feast day, riding a white horse and accompanied by his helpers, the Black Peters. He leaves gifts in exchange for the hay for his horse that the Dutch children leave in their shoes. The Saint's feast day is Wednesday, Dec. 6, but he has consented to appear with his helpers on the evening of the ninth. The dance is open to the public. Advance tickets may be bought at the Wooden Shoe, 2576 Quadra Street.

Annual Dinner

The Victoria Branch of the British Columbia Historical Society will hold its annual dinner in the Crystal Ballroom of the Empress Hotel on Thursday Dec. 7. Many of the members will wear historical costumes for the event, some of which are original outfits. Mr. Willard Ireland, provincial archivist, will give a short talk. Old Christmas cards and calendars dating back as far as 100 years ago will be on display.

Set Date

Mr. and Mrs. Harry P. McKeever, 1259 Stencil Lane, announce the forthcoming marriage of their only daughter, Sylvia Blanche, to Mr. John Douglas Sheaff, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. John Sheaff of Lake Cowichan. The wedding will take place on Saturday, Dec. 23 at 6 p.m. in St. Mark's Anglican Church. Canon Robert Willis will officiate.

Here for Service

Travelling to Victoria to attend the Best-Caddell wedding were Mr. and Mrs. R. Sutcliffe of Kelowna; Mr. and Mrs. J. Robson, Misses Kathleen and Jeanne Robson, Mrs. H. Styan, of Port Alberni; Mr. and Mrs. A. Watkins, Mr. and Mrs. N. Edgar, all of Nanaimo; Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Sommers, Mr. and Mrs. J. Best, Mr. and Mrs. D. Evans, Mr. and Mrs. W. McNichol, all of Duncan.

BEST-CADDELL MARRIAGE

Leta Catherine Caddell wore a floor-length fitted gown of white peau de soie, complemented by a coat of Chantilly lace when she became the bride of Alfred William Best in St. Christopher's Anglican Church. The coat was fashioned with wrist-length sleeves and had scalloped edges trimming the front opening and hemline. Her scalloped veil misted to shoulder-length and she carried a bouquet of tangerine carnations and yellow roses.

Little Wendy Layfield was flower girl, wearing a dress of yellow peau de soie, trimmed with gold. She carried a basket of fall-toned chrysanthemums. Lawrence Fox acted as best man. Rod Caddell, the bride's brother and Ken Holding ushered the guests.

At the reception following in the Uplands Golf Club, a four-tier wedding cake centred the head table, which was covered with a Belgian lace cloth. Frederic Goodwin proposed the toast to his niece. For travelling on honeymoon

Salt Spring Couple Say s 'We've Had It Good'

SUNSHINE AND SHADOWS

By ELSIE WORTHINGTON

Fifty years of married life, with all its ups and downs truly shared, was celebrated November 22 by Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Byron, well known Salt Spring Island residents. A large number of friends called during the day to offer congratulations.

Mr. Byron, 84, has been confined to a wheel chair for the past three years. Mrs. Byron is still hale and hearty at 83. They were married in 1917 at Aldershot, and came to Canada in 1919.

After farming for several years in Saskatchewan, they left the drought-stricken area in 1934, and with their five young sons began a new life on Salt Spring Island.

The eldest son, Kenneth, is with the Second Black Watch, Royal Highlanders of Canada, stationed at Wainwright, Alta. Terence, Howard and Franklin (Mike), live on Salt Spring. Another son, Colin, was killed in a logging accident in December 1960. The couple has 23 grandchildren, all but one living on the island. Grandson Darrell is with the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Mr. and Mrs. Byron were children together in the same Lancashire town in England. In 1902, Mr. Byron, then a lad of 19, decided to try his luck in Canada.

Arriving in Winnipeg he soon found work in the North West Territories.

GOOD NEIGHBORS

Eight months later the young man acquired 180 acres of homestead land at Stockholm in south Saskatchewan. His first task was to fence the land, using about 1,000 posts he had cut for the purpose, and two strands of barbed wire. Swedish neighbors built a house for him; one and a half storeys with basement, for $80. "And a well-built house too," declared Mr. Byron. With the help of a yoke of oxen he ploughed land in summer and returned to logging in winter.

After 10 years working in the woods from Ontario to British Columbia, he decided in 1912 to "stop roaming" and settle down to farm life. War came in 1914. The young man was stirred by the story of the refugee from Mons.

Next day he hitched up his three-year-old colt with its patent leather harness, climbed into his smart buggy and set off for the recruiting office some miles away. Several months passed before the call-up notice came. By Christmas 1915 he was a soldier.

Sent overseas in April 1916, he headed for his old home town on his first leave. "It was wonderful to walk again along the narrow English country roads, with the hawthorn hedges just coming into bloom, and the blackbirds, the thrushes and larks all singing," he recalls.

While visiting his sister and brother the young soldier went across the road to call on a neighbor, Mrs. Davies, and there met again her daughter Lizzie, his childhood playmate. "She looked so nice and neat, I thought to myself: 'Here's the girl I've been looking for!'"

HAD TO WAIT

By the end of his six days leave they were engaged, and planned to be married on his next furlough. But it was 18 months later before the knot was tied.

Before his next leave in England came around, the soldier, serving with 10th Company Canadian Field Engineers, had been through the hell of Ypres, Somme, and Vimy Ridge. At last the 14-day leave came through and on November 20, 1917 he set out for England.

In the meantime, his fiancée had joined the Women's Army Corps and was stationed with Queen Mary's Unit (Q.M.A.C.) at Aldershot. After the couple was reunited, two days were lost waiting for the Bishop of Chichester to give the vicar, the Rev. Le Flamm, permission to hold the marriage ceremony in St. George's Military Church. It was the second war wedding to be held in that church.

The bride arrived at the church with her attendant, a fellow WAC, and the commandant, who was to give the bride away. About 300 uniformed women were gathered for the wedding. All appeared to be in readiness for the ceremony, when it was discovered that the bridegroom had no best man. Mr. Byron tells the story: "I dashed outside, saw a soldier off duty walking along the street and asked him to be my best man. I didn't know him, and to this day I still don't know his name!"

BACK TO WAR

After the honeymoon, it was back to war duty for the couple until Armistice Day a year later. Another six months army duty in Belgium followed for Mr. Byron before he was discharged in May 1919.

A few weeks later he and his wife set sail for the homestead in Saskatchewan. Between 1920 and 1930 their five boys were born in the farmhouse. "There were no hospitals or nurses there, and the doctor was a long way off," explained Mrs. Byron. "But we had a fine Swedish neighbor and she was a good midwife."

For 10 years the Byrons prospered. They had invested their savings and his war bonus in the farm, and the money, along with plenty of hard work, had brought good returns. Then prairie drought and the depression struck together in 1929. Crops failed year after year and things went from bad to worse.

"Somehow we got by," says Mr. Byron, without bitterness. By the fall of 1934, with six years of crop failure behind them, the Byrons felt they could take no more. Mr. Byron loaded his total wheat crop for that year in a wagon-box and took it to the miller, who gave him 800 pounds of flour in exchange. "I still had a lot of livestock, but no grain to feed them, and no money to buy feed," he remembers. "I offered the storekeeper everything on the farm, including the furniture, for $500. But he couldn't buy it. Like the rest of us, he had no money."

An auction sale was arranged. Close to 100 head of cattle, sheep, and horses, as well as a large flock of hens and turkeys, the farm implements and household goods, brought the meagre sum of $425.

SAD PARTING

The Byrons were reluctant to leave their neighbors. The feeling was mutual, for in spite of the scarcity of cash, their friends managed to gather together dollars and presented the money as a parting gift.

After settling their debts, the Byrons paid $125 for rail tickets and headed for Vancouver, with $200, to start a new life. The family stopped off in the Fraser Valley and stayed for a short time in an auto camp at Abbotsford. At the local branch of the Legion Mr. Byron met "an old chappie of 86" who had 80 acres of land and a house on Salt Spring Island he wanted to sell for $800.

"I thought this would be a wonderful place to hide myself and get my family under cover," says Mr. Byron. A trucker heading for Vancouver offered to transport the family and their possessions to the C.P.R. dock for five dollars. They stopped in Vancouver to buy a used kitchen range and loaded this on the truck. The family boarded the Princess Mary and arrived at Ganges, November 22, 1934, the Byrons' 17th wedding anniversary.

The promised haven on Salt Spring turned out to be an abandoned chicken house with only two of the 80 acres of land cleared. The late Gavin Moutat offered the family a house on the North End Road (their present location) with more land cleared and a barn full of hay.

The next day he sent a truck to the Ganges Inn, where the family was staying, to move them to their new home. "We took some groceries with us, all essentials, no frills," says Mr. Byron. "He didn't even take butter," adds his wife.

It was a very wet November. Damp wood made fire lighting difficult. "We slept on the floor at first," relates Mr. Byron. "Not me!" interjects his wife, "I found an old door and put it on two orange crates, and used this for a bed with a blanket and pillow."

Beds, table and chairs, were purchased from a local household sale. "We had beds to sleep on and a table to eat off," Mr. Byron remembers. "I borrowed a shovel and that winter I dug half an acre of land for a garden. We were not the kind of folk to sit down and expect the Almighty to put food in our mouths and clothes on our backs."

Came the spring and Mr. Byron got six days work on the roads for which he was paid $19.20. "That was wonderful money. I signed the cheque and turned it over to Moutat's. They had kept us going with groceries all winter."

By summer the Byrons had two cows milking, a flock of laying hens and a good supply of vegetables from the half acre. "We lived well that year," said Mr. Byron with pride; "Milk and butter and eggs, and all that garden produce."

From then on the family fortunes made steady progress. In 1939 a small legacy made it possible for them to put a down payment on the property, and the couple became landowners once more.

The war years were filled with sunshine and shadow. Timber and cattle brought good prices and the property was soon paid for. But two of their sons had gone to war, leaving their parents with anxious hearts and frequent foreboding. The couple knew only too well the horrors of war. At last it ended, and with thankful hearts they welcomed their boys home again.

In 1947 the Byrons set about fulfilling the dream of rebuilding their house. Proudly they describe the improvements made to their comfortable home over the years.

Looking back, Mr. Byron says simply: "We've had it good, Lizzie and I." His wife nods assent.

After 50 years of marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Byron look back on a life that was full of challenge and change.

EACH WORTH $100

Service Officers' Wives Award Student Bursaries

The Women's Auxiliary to the Maritime Command (Pacific) today announced the awarding of $100 bursaries to two former Grade 12 students who are now in university.

Winners of the bursaries are Miss Jennifer Dawes, 460 Montclair Avenue, and James Alexander Fleming. Miss Dawes is the daughter of Lt.-Cmdr. G. A. Dawes and Mrs. Dawes, and formerly attended Mount View Senior Secondary School. Mr. Fleming's parents are Regional Surgeon J. H. Fleming and Mrs. Fleming, who were recently posted to the Canadian Forces Base, Nanaimo, in Edmonton. Mr. Fleming attended Esquimalt Senior Secondary School.

At the auxiliary's recent meetings, members were requested to each bring a can of food for the Free Food Stall when the group meets this coming Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the warehouse of the Canadian Forces Base, Esquimalt.

Winter Project

The Women's Auxiliary to the Royal Jubilee Hospital has decided to make its winter project that of raising funds for the purchase of rapid processing X-Ray equipment for the hospital's department of radiology. The group meets this coming Wednesday at 2 p.m. in the nurses' residence.

INVESTMENTS

Paintings Make Best Impression

LONDON (AP)—Buyers of impressionist paintings made a better investment than buyers of stock market shares over the last 16 years a survey showed Saturday.

The London Times and Sotheby's auction house compiled the index showing how the value of works by six impressionists has increased since 1951.

Over all, the paintings have risen in value by about 850 per cent, the index shows. U.S. stock prices increased by more than 300 per cent in that time.

This is how the six painters rate:

Renoir, up 405 per cent since 1951.
Fautou-Latour, up 780 per cent.
Monet, up 1,100 per cent.
Sisley, up 1,150 per cent.
Boudin, up 835 per cent.
Pissarro, up 845 per cent.

Waiting for Caroline
A Festival Special

MONTREAL (CP)—Waiting for Caroline, a film about a Vancouverite who goes to Quebec City to learn French and ends up having an identity crisis, is to be premiered on CBC television's Festival Wednesday.

The film, shown in an advance press screening this week, is the second full-length feature co-produced by the National Film Board and the CBC.

It is directed by Ron Kelly, probably best known for his television allegory The Open Grave.

Alexandra Stewart is in the title role of Caroline. In Quebec City she meets Marc, played by Francois Tasse of Montreal, who becomes her bohemian lover.

In several scenes of the 90-minute film the two are shown in the nude with their backs to the camera.

Robert Howay of Vancouver plays the role of Peter, Caroline's former English-Canadian lover who travels to Quebec from Vancouver to try to reclaim her.

Caroline's problem seems to be a lack of emotional involvement which renders her incapable of choosing, as she finally must, between the French-Canadian and the English-Canadian milieu.

Miss Stewart, 28, is a Montrealer who now resides in Paris. She returned to Canada for the role.

Fitting in its Centennial context, the film's action moves from the Christmas-card setting of Quebec City covered with snow to the hazy greens of a Vancouver winter and the majesty of the Rockies.

There is apparently more to the film than its obvious cultural implications. Director Kelly has described it this way:

"Feminine emancipation, the feminine mystique... at this time and especially on this continent, seems to call for feminine aggressiveness that is in conflict with woman's natural capacity for submissiveness, for love."

"In the film Caroline begins as a charming young lady, but she is revealed as an emotional failure... unable to choose between the two different worlds the men represent."

The Ernie Game, the first of the two jointly-produced features, was shown earlier this month.

Special Course Set For Former Nurses

An increasing number of nurses who have not practised for several years while taking time off to raise families, may soon be back in Greater Victoria hospitals.

Concern about the staff shortages which often impede hospitals has led to a proposal which would increase the practising membership of the nursing profession.

The Greater Victoria chapter of the British Columbia Registered Nurses Association, along with the University of Victoria, this winter will offer a refresher course for nurses who would like to return to work.

16 WEEKS
It is the first time in B.C. that a program of this type has been offered in conjunction with a university.

Starting Jan. 10, it will consist of two-hour lectures one evening for each of the following 16 weeks. This will be followed by one month of working in a hospital.

Royal Jubilee, St. Joseph's and the Veteran's hospitals are participating in the program. The nurse can take her choice where she would like to do her practical work.

The hospitals have not yet decided if the trainees will be paid for that month's work.

The lectures at the university will be given by three instructors who recently left the teaching staff of St. Joseph's and Jubilee.

Information on the courses may be obtained from Mrs. Barbara Smith, telephone 388-5871. One of the prerequisites is that an applicant must have been a registered nurse in B.C. or has qualifications to apply for such registration.

DRUGS MORE PROMINENT

Sex 'For Granted'
Loses Student Appeal

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI)—Sex has taken a back seat to drugs among college students, according to a survey by the Essex County council on drug addiction.

Students express a certain boredom with sex since it is "easily attainable, available, taken for granted and has lost its yesteryear spirit," Dr. Sylvia Herz, chairman of the council, reported Sunday.

"The use of drugs has become so prominent that it has relegated sex to second place, partly because drugs are sex inhibiting," said Dr. Herz, a psychologist and sociologist.

Dr. Herz said the report was the results of six months of research in which 150 students of both sexes were interviewed in three colleges in New Jersey and New York. She declined to identify the colleges.

More than 25 per cent of the students queried by the council had used drugs, Dr. Herz said. This included both marijuana and amphetamines, a stimulant. About eight per cent of the students questioned said they had used the mind-expanding drug LSD.

Every student who had experimented with drugs "had also participated in the sexual act at some time," Dr. Herz reported.

The students interviewed felt that about 50 per cent of the student body at their colleges used marijuana and about 70 per cent amphetamines, Dr. Herz said.

In general, Dr. Herz said, marijuana is used mainly in groups for "relaxation, getting away from it all, release from tension." Amphetamines are for "more energy" for studies and more pep of dates, the doctor said, while LSD is for "great kicks."

The council headed by Dr. Herz is the anti-poverty agency administering Essex County's new federally funded program to combat drug addiction.

Student Recitals

First of the winter series of student recitals organized by the Victoria Branch of the B.C. Registered Music Teachers' Association took place recently at St. Ann's auditorium.

Students from 12 Victoria studios took part. Pianists were Catherine Odynsky, Debbie Ballam, David Taylor, Laurie Grieg, Linda Edge, Garth Greskiw, Terry and Janet Wright, Ronnie McGovern, Deena Schevchuk, Lenore Loewen, Vivian Napp, Elosa Zubling, Joan Hill, Carol Neville, Anna Stricker, William Milne, Rhona Kwiram and David Jewkes.

Vocal music was provided by soloists Linda Scanlon and Maria Kasapic and a studio choir conducted by Miss Gladys Pearcey.

Also taking part were cellist George Kiraly and violinist Lola Thornton.

Investigative Powers 'An Illusion'

OTTAWA (CP)—The Liberal government Monday delivered a Commons defeat to a Conservative proposal to give investigative powers to the new minister of consumer and corporate affairs.

Also defeated was a New Democratic attempt to write a prices review board into the legislation.

The Conservative amendment by Erik Nielsen (Yukon) was voted down 41 to 33, with nine NDP members and two Creditists siding with the Conservatives against the Liberals, who stood alone.

NDP ALONE

The prices review board amendment, moved by Grace Maslinis (Vancouver—Kingsway), was defeated 49 to 11. The NDP found itself voting alone against 43 Liberals, four Conservatives and two Creditists.

The Nielsen amendment, moved during clause-by-clause study of the bill, which has already won approval in principle, sought to give Registrar-General Turner, who will head the new department, the power to investigate price increases and make appropriate recommendations to the government.

Turner argued that the amendment gave only the illusion of investigative power, since it did not spell out terms of reference and subsidiary powers such as the right to call witnesses. Moreover, it provided for no limits necessary to protect civil rights.

Investigative power was provided for in other acts anyway, he said. The consumers bill sought only to coordinate government powers in the field into one department.

Turner said a prices review board might result in price increases by allowing producers to justify them on the basis of cost increases, something that wasn't always easy to do now.

Such a board would be unconstitutional if it tried to control prices and as a result would be toothless, he added.

Junior Choir to Sing Carols at Garden City

Carols from many nations will be sung by the Junior Choir of Garden City United Church Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. Ruth Powell will lead the choir, with Mrs. George Heron at the organ. Programs can be obtained from choir members or at the church.

GUIDE MEDALS of Merit were presented to two Guide leaders at the opening of the new Guide Headquarters, Mason Street, Sunday. Presenting the awards was, left, provincial commissioner Mrs. Mary Kendrick. Recipients were Mrs. Joseph Hunter, retired division chairman, and Mrs. William Reith, retired provincial program convener. New headquarters, made possible largely through funds left by the late T. S. McPherson, was opened by Mayor Hugh Stephen.

'GAMBLE FOR A WORTHY CAUSE'

Charity Bingo Earns Only $15

The first charity bingo for unemployed boilermakers earned only $15.

"I wish I could say we made $150," said Neil Hindle, business agent for Local 191 of the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers.

The union, which has 200 of its 800 members out of work, plans bingos on the next three Monday nights at the Boilermakers Hall on Esquimalt Road. The public is welcome.

Mr. Hindle pointed out that Monday night's bingo classified with bingos by pensioners and veterans in Victoria.

"It's a gamble," he said, "but it's for a worthy cause. We had 110 people come out and I am sure the word will spread that the boilermakers bingo is one that has a genial group and a nice atmosphere."

Proceeds from the union bingo are to aid the unemployed members who face a bleak Christmas.

"They talk about the loss of time in strikes but there is more loss in layoffs—in time and spirit," he said.

"We are going to make sure the unemployed are on the voters' list."

'SECOND LOOK' Mr. Hindle also hoped Premier Bennett would take "a second look" at his refusal to build a sister ship for the seagoing ferry Queen of Prince Rupert.

"What we need is a building program, in cycles, to keep it moving," he said.

PHILIP'S FILM RAISES $25,700

LONDON (AP)—Prince Philip, who wrote the script and narrated a film about the giant tortoises on the Galapagos Islands off South America, took the Queen to see a benefit premier of the movie Monday night.

The Prince's latest film,

The Enchanted Isles, opened at the National Film Theatre.

The benefit was for the Charles Darwin Foundation, which runs a scientific station on the islands. The show was expected to raise $25,700 toward the cost of a new boat for the station.

IT HAPPENED IN CANADA...

©1967-ALSO FEATURES—LONDON, ONTARIO

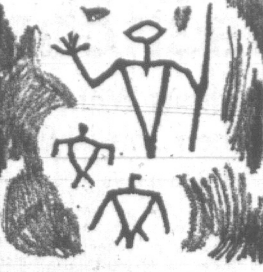

A HORSEY HAIR-DO IN 1920

"LINUS" of Fredericton, N.B., a Clydesdale horse had hair to spare: mane, 14 feet long; foretop, 10 feet; tail, 12 feet, 3 inches.

THE LARGEST SINGLE MOVEMENT OF TROOPS IN THE HISTORY OF THE WORLD LEFT CANADA OCT. 3, 1914. THIS WAS THE FIRST CANADIAN DIVISION ON ITS WAY TO ENGLAND IN WORLD WAR I. THEIR NUMBERS WERE THREE TIMES AS MANY TROOPS AS SPAIN ASSEMBLED FOR THE "INVINCIBLE ARMADA" AND 6,000 MORE THAN WELLINGTON COMMANDED AT WATERLOO.

INDIAN ART SURVIVES THE CENTURIES

FOR THOUSANDS OF YEARS MAN HAS BEEN LEAVING TANTALIZING SCRAPS OF AUTOBIOGRAPHY ON THE ROCKS AROUND HIM. CANADIAN INDIANS HAVE BEEN NO EXCEPTION. SPREAD ACROSS ONTARIO AND THE PROVINCE OF MANITOBA ARE HUNDREDS OF PLACES WHERE THEIR ROCK PAINTINGS SURVIVE. VIVID, EVEN DRAMATIC, INSCRIBIBLE MESSAGES FROM A WORLD NOW PASSED. THE LARGEST CONCENTRATION OF PAINTINGS SO FAR FOUND ARE 165 SEPARATE PICTURES AT BON ECHO—NEAR KINGSTON, ONT.

FM 'Pills' Probe Eye Secrets

NEW YORK (AP)—Tiny FM radio "pills" placed inside animals' eyes are reporting inner secrets.

One finding: When a male rabbit spies a female rabbit, his eye pressure bounces up sharply for 10 seconds or so.

The new technique promises important insights into understanding and controlling glaucoma, a serious disease caused by increased pressure of the normal fluids within the eye. Dr. Carter C. Collins said Tuesday.

The radio transmitters range from the size of a pinhead to small pills. Once implanted, they have stayed in place for over a year, continuously recording pressure changes, without damaging the eye.

Collins, biophysicist of Presbyterian Medical Centre in San Francisco, told a science seminar that one finding of the system is that eye pressure varies over an extreme range.

In the rabbit, a visual stimulus, such as seeing a female, can send eye pressure up as high as 150 per cent over normal pressure. Pressure rises within a couple of seconds, and subsides within 10 seconds or so.

The rise is brought about by the sympathetic nervous system, and apparently involves contraction of an involuntary muscle compressing the globe of the eye.

Glaucoma is one frequent cause of blindness, and its incidence is increasing. Vision is damaged usually by pressure building up because of an obstruction to the normal flow of fluid from the eye.

Oak Island Diggers At Work

HALIFAX (CP)—The search for treasure has been resumed at Oak Island, about 40 miles southeast of here. It was learned Wednesday that extensive digging under the auspices of Daniel Blankenship of Miami has been progressing "spasmodically" since last fall.

A local spokesman for the Blankenship group said they were now analyzing drilling completed earlier this year. Some light exploration was being carried out in test areas, but the main project was to assess earlier heavy drilling results before determining what might be done next.

There have been many explorations on the island during the last 100 years but no treasure has been recovered. Legend has it that the pirate Captain Kidd buried treasure on the island. Tunnels and timbers have been discovered.

Variety Concert At Silver Threads

A variety concert will be presented in Victoria Silver Threads Centre Wednesday at 2 p.m. by MC Don Gray.

The artists will be Margaret Christison, soprano; Walter Du-Russel, musical saw; Nelson Du-Russel from Nanaimo, violin; Grace Hawkins, accordion; Jim Sullivan, concertina, and Amy Olivier, popular songs.

Accompanists will be Jean Stewart and Kay Lyne.

BIRD GETS BIG

The roseate spoonbill is the largest North American member of the ibis family.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Elaine Cunningham, age 13, of Tulsa, Oklahoma, for her question:

What makes some atoms unstable?

Unstable atoms are radioactive, emitting nuclear energy at a steady rate. This may sound like a scary notion. But the world of nature teems with such atoms. Everywhere on land, in the sea and even in the air they have been emitting their mild radioactive energies since the world began.

Most substances in the world contain a few unstable, radioactive atoms. As a rule, their stable, non-radioactive atoms outnumber their unstable mavericks by billions or trillions to one. But there are a few miniature mavericks in almost all substances. The unstable quality is in the nucleus of the atom. The normal balance of the particles in their atomic structure is upset. Sooner or later, on a specified natural schedule, the unbalanced nucleus releases a particle, along with some of its dynamic nuclear energy.

The nature of an atom depends upon the structure of its nucleus. When a radioactive atom sheds a particle, it becomes a different substance. The new atom may be more stable or less stable than it was before the radioactive explosion. It may shed another particle in the next fraction of a second or it may wait millions of years for the next radioactive adjustment. Natural uranium goes through a long series of radioactive changes, taking billions of years to become stable atoms of a certain type of lead. Then its dynamic radioactive chain of events is ended.

The nucleus of an atom is a tight-fisted wad of assorted particles held together by the might of nuclear energies. Its nature as an element depends upon the number of its positively charged protons. All, except atoms of normal hydrogen, also contain a number of electrically neutral neutrons. When an atom gains or loses a proton, it becomes an atom of some other element. But its number of neutrons may vary without changing its nature.

Unstable Atoms

An extra neutron, however, may be one too many to maintain the normal balance of atomic structure. Likewise, an atom with fewer than its usual number of neutrons may be out of balance. Almost all elements contain stray atoms of this sort. These stray atoms are isotopes, having the same number of protons, but a different number of neutrons from most of their brethren. All elements have isotopes, but not all these isotopes are out of line enough to be unstable and radioactive.

Certain substances are composed entirely of unstable atoms. Uranium, with an atomic number of 92, and all elements with higher atomic numbers are unstable. Technetium, atomic number 43 and promethium, 61, astatine, 85, and francium, 87, also are unstable. So are certain isotopes of the lighter elements. At set intervals, their unbalanced atomic structure causes their unstable nuclei to release a certain particle with radioactive energy.

For some reasons still unknown, there appears to be a limit as to the size and number of particles in a stable atom. Extra neutrons change the weight, but not the nature of an atomic element. However, one neutron too many or too few may upset the balance, creating an unstable isotope of the same element. But all of the bulky nuclei with more than 92 basic protons are also unstable. Nature, it seems, decrees that a stable atom may be so big and no bigger—at least in our world.

Andy sends a 14" World Book Globe to Patti Reynolds, age 10, of Nottulsa, Alabama, for her question:

What materials are in the centre of the earth?

The centre of the earth is composed of an inner and outer core that begins about 2,000 miles below ground level. Nobody, of course, has done any on-the-spot exploring at this level. But geologists have gathered a lot of indirect evidence of its nature from the vibrations of earthquakes. Other specialists have gathered evidence to compute the total weight of the earth and compare it with the weight of an equal volume of water. Our solid planet is 5½ times the density of water.

This density is far higher than the surface layer of rocks that can be measured on the spot. The extra weight, then, must be centered in heavier layers of the earth's interior. By computing the extra weight needed to make up the total density, scientists suspect that the earth's centre is composed of heavy elements such as nickel and iron. The vibrations of earthquakes lead to similar conclusions.

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: My daughter's practical type and wants some shoes for her poodle for Christmas. The trouble is there are so many kinds available I don't know which to buy. Which are recommended?—C.D.

DEAR C.D.: Canine clodhoppers generally fall into two major categories: (1) those made of rubber or vinyl, designed to keep the feet dry and protect them from ice and snow. (2) Leather footwear primarily designed for cross-country capers to protect from wear and tear and hazards including thorns, and rock bruises. (3) In-between booties built for both jobs, that fall to do either one very well. Obviously, fashion comes before function in a fourth category, the mink-edged Foodle pinky protectors.

DEAR DR. MILLER: We adopted a big cat, our first, but he has a big voice to match. My wife wants to put him on tranquilizers. She has, in fact, given him one of her own and it seemed to calm him a lot for a few hours. She says tranquilizers don't hurt people, so why should they hurt cats? Sounds logical to me, don't you agree?—H.S.

DEAR H.S.: No. In the first place, tranquilizers can harm people. They are often a factor in poor judgment while driving. They may be addictive. They may cause liver damage, as well as other serious organic consequences. While your cat isn't likely to be driving an automobile, he would be more likely to try to cross in front of one while he was under the influence. Even if he were kept inside all the time so that judgment would not be a crucial factor, tranquilizers should not be taken or given lightly. Better rely on more natural tranquilizers, including food and affection. If the "voice" continues unabated, the doctor just may allow the use of tranquilizers on a short-term basis to help during this period of adjustment. The type and dosage would depend on the size of your cat and other factors, including condition.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Our cat and dog got rabies shots two years ago. Then we moved. Are they supposed to get rabies shots again now?—L.F.

DEAR L.F.: Your dog is up to date, but barely, on his rabies vaccination, as they are good for two years. However, your cat is a year behind schedule, as rabies vaccine for cats must be renewed yearly.

DEAR DR. MILLER: In considering buying a purebred Labrador bitch, I have a question: Are puppies born from an artificial insemination legitimate? They want a lot of money for her partly because the breeding (artificially) was out of supposedly the best Labrador in the country.—T.G.

DEAR T.G.: Test tube puppies are recognized by the American Kennel Club, provided arrangements were made with them prior to the insemination. (Better check in this instance.)

Special Status a 'Dirty Phrase'

Special to The Times
TORONTO — "Special status."

This is a phrase that means different things to different people.

Some try to steer away from it completely. Others use it to bolster argument, generally implying that some Canadians are better than others, and get a better deal.

"Special status," has become a dirty phrase, generally, in the political vocabulary.

But Ontario Premier John Robarts faced up to it squarely at the opening session Monday of the Confederation of Tomorrow conference.

Robarts has convened the meeting of the premiers to look to Canada's tomorrow — to try to ensure that there is a united tomorrow.

He warned the great danger is that a concept of special status could be carried to a point where it could destroy Canada.

He aimed his remarks at Quebec. The premier told the leaders that the term "special status" is as old as confederation. Robarts said that whatever form fiscal subsidies have taken, they have been granted at one time or another to each of the regions of Canada.

He said the existence of subsidies today testified to their acceptability in the federal system, a system that is flexible because of the different needs of the regions. Robarts pointed out that whenever a new province joined confederation, its terms of admission contained special provisions from earlier situations.

But he said the term had taken on different meaning in recent years because of Quebec.

"Part, though by no means all, of the reasons why we are here is to reflect calmly on this source of tension in our country," he stated.

Robarts said Canada is accustomed to special arrangements and "in principle, therefore, the term 'special status' does not alarm us."

But he warned: "The risk in any concept of special status is that it could be carried to a point where it could destroy the federal government and the means of keeping the country together.

"Somehow, in our search and deep desire for national survival, we must come to grips with the issue of accommodating our differences while, at the same time, preserving our national distinctiveness," he added.

Robarts said a possible way out was to determine first what must be the inviolable powers of the federal government.

The premier said this was a logical starting point to a careful review of the division of powers in the system.

OWNER-operator of the Alberta Game Farm, Al Oeming, has been named winner of the National Recreation and Park Association's award for outstanding leadership of a game facility. He will receive the award at the association's meeting in Miami Beach, Fla., on Dec. 4.

Montreal Docks Active As Court Ends Work Halt

MONTREAL (CP) — All 3,000 Montreal longshoremen resumed work today and tackled huge piles of cargo left abandoned last Friday.

The longshoremen are guaranteed work or eight hours pay today under the terms of a provisional injunction granted Monday in Superior Court.

The paralysis of the port Friday culminated a two-week-long dispute between the International Longshoremen's Association and the Shipping Federation of Canada over terms of a binding federal government report.

Tons of cargo piled up along the 11-mile waterfront and passengers had to disembark from an ocean liner without most of their baggage. Several organizations warned that the tieup, if allowed to continue, could seriously damage the future of the port of Montreal and Canada's export potential.

Mr. Justice G. M. Desaulniers granted an injunction Monday ordering the shipping federation and 26 member shipping lines to provide a minimum of eight hours work for all the longshoremen, today or pay them for "standby duty."

However, the temporary order was qualified with the proviso that it would have no effect unless the ILA would "furnish the necessary number of longshoremen under its jurisdiction for the purposes of carrying out their work as such in the port of Montreal."

It also ordered both sides to submit to arbitration if they cannot agree on the provisions of the federal report within two days.

The injunction expires at noon Thursday. A hearing of a petition for a permanent injunction will be heard the same day.

CARGO SHOWDOWN
Cargo handling had proceeded at a reduced pace in the port for about two weeks prior to the work stoppage Friday.

The port closed after most of the longshoremen were dismissed because of what the shipping companies said was failure to report for duty in sufficient — large work gangs.

The injunction stipulates that the shippers are forbidden to fire or to refuse to hire longshoremen for causes related to the matters in dispute.

Public Forum Opens Adoption Conference

Social Welfare Minister Dan Campbell said Monday so much interest is building up in next week's adoption procedures conference that it will be opened with a public forum in the McPherson Theatres.

The conference will be held Dec. 9 and 10 in the Red Lion Inn to bring together about 25 parents and 25 persons who have been adopted with his departmental officials to discuss ways and means of eliminating red tape from the regulations.

To obtain some advance data and ideas for the closed sessions, Mr. Campbell appealed to interested persons to write in their experiences and suggestions for improving adoption procedures.

1,000 REPLIES

"We've had over 1,000 replies already from individuals," said Mr. Campbell. "It's a first-class response."

"We've had so much response that we've decided to have an open public forum precede the conference."

The public session will be held in the McPherson Theatre at 8 p.m., Dec. 8, for a panel discussion of adoption procedures.

"We're excited about the prospects for this conference because of this enthusiasm shown by so many people who have gone to a great deal of trouble to provide us with details of their experiences (with existing regulations)."

"They have even given intimate information, which will be confidential of course, to help our study and a very noticeable side benefit of all this is that it provides us with the first direct research material we've had on the subject, as distinct from theoretical research."

HOME GARDEN

Did You Ever Mow A Vegetable Patch?

By JACK BEASTALL

Fall rye is widely used by home gardeners as a soil improver, cover crop, and a source of much needed humus. It is usually sown in late September when the vegetable patch becomes empty and makes vigorous growth through the mild fall season.

By spring the top growth is so long that difficulty is experienced turning it under. It seems impossible to bury the mass of foliage deeply enough to prevent further growth.

CUT IT DOWN

Our main requirement is extensive root action and some humus, the root action being of first importance. Therefore the more roots and less top growth the more the soil will be improved.

Since we cannot stop top growth, the next best is to cut it down. We know that regular mowing of a lawn is essential to a good turf, and the same applies to fall rye.

The cutting may be done with a scythe if one is proficient with this tool, but a rotary lawn mower does a better job since it chews the top growth into small pieces and scatters them over the entire area.

By spring digging time there will be a good mulch of rye stems on the surface ready to decompose as soon as turned under, plus a thick turf of crowns and roots which add plenty of fibre to the soil.

The neighbors may think it a little crazy to mow the vegetable patch, but I know from experience that the results are well worth any caustic comments.

Murderer 'Best Risk' For Parole

CALGARY (CP)—Frank Miller of Ottawa, executive director of the national parole service, said Monday a murderer is the best risk for rehabilitation after release from prison.

Mr. Miller told a press conference that "it's been found by experts that this group of people is the least likely to get into further trouble."

He said public anxiety in this respect is understandable because murder is one of the worst things one can think of.

Mr. Miller said the parole service has recorded a 90 per cent success rate of murderers who have been released on parole.

Mr. Miller declined to discuss the government bill which would call for capital punishment only for the murder of police officers and prison guards.

DISEASE REPORTED

A total of 30,323 cases of viral hepatitis was reported in the United States as of Sept. 30.

HAUNTED BY DOUBTS

McNamara to Get World Bank Post

By RICHARD HARWOOD
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON—Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara has been nominated by President Johnson to become the next president of the World Bank.

The nomination was submitted to the bank's 20 directors at an informal meeting last week. If it is approved as expected, by the bank's 106 member nations, McNamara could begin his new career early next year.

Neither the White House nor the Pentagon would confirm that McNamara is on his way out and would not comment on a report that Texas Gov. John Connally may take over the defence department.

However, McNamara's departure from the Johnson administration has been rumored for months.

WANTED TO LEAVE

As a long time friend of the McNamara family remarked, "He's been wanting to leave for so long. And he needs it too. He's dead."

That he now has finally decided to move on was confirmed Monday by sources within the international financial community.

One of the World Bank's directors said the nomination was submitted last week by Livingstone Merchant, who represents the United States on the bank board. "It was submitted," this source said, "as the final choice of the United States. Other names had been considered earlier but McNamara was the one decided upon."

OTHER NOMINEES

The first news of the appointment—which has been rumored in financial circles since September—was published Monday in the Financial Times of London on the basis of information supplied by a World Bank director.

McNamara, said the London paper, was chosen over several other possible nominees including David Rockefeller of the Chase Manhattan Bank; David Bell, former administrator of the Agency for International Development; and C. Douglas Dillon, former secretary of the treasury.

For nearly seven years, McNamara has borne the physical and psychological burdens of managing the biggest military establishment in the world, and institution with 4.5 million employees, a budget of more than $81-billion, and a nuclear arsenal that could devastate the earth.

WAR STRATEGY

There have been repeated indications, also, that McNamara differed with President Johnson and other influential Pentagon military advisers on Vietnam war strategy.

On several occasions McNamara's public statements of bombing policy in North Vietnam have been reversed in the field.

He has, accordingly, become identified in Washington as more of a "dove" than either the joint chiefs of staff or such civilian officials as Secretary of State Dean Rusk and presidential adviser Walt. W. Rostow.

Finally, it is known that he has been haunted by doubts that his original counsel to two presidents to escalate the U.S. presence and the U.S. commitment in Vietnam may have been ill-advised. Until now, this fear has been less compelling than his unwillingness to leave office without seeing its major problem through. Why he is now willing to quit remained unexplained Monday night.

HAS MY ULCER?

His wife has been sick. ("She has my ulcer," McNamara has said). He has held the job longer than anyone in history and has seemed less buoyant lately than when he entered the Pentagon in January, 1961, as a 44-year-old financial whiz kid from the Ford Motor Company.

He is generally conceded to have been the first secretary of defence to establish firmly the principle and practice of civilian control of the military.

Education Aide Quits Over Vietnam Policy

By THE WASHINGTON POST

WASHINGTON—Charles Frankel, assistant secretary of state for educational and cultural affairs, has resigned because of the Vietnam War.

The former Columbia University philosophy professor will leave the government at the end of December.

His written resignation, submitted two weeks ago to the White House, has been verbally acknowledged by President Johnson.

Frankel's reason for leaving is his feeling that the war has caused too many problems in his area of the state department. He has found that his budget has been cut and that less attention is being paid to his area because of the concentration on the war.

While Frankel's responsibilities have nothing to do with the war, he has let Secretary of State Dean Rusk and others know that he is in opposition to the conflict. In short, his conclusion was that he could not remain at his post as a good soldier in what he considers to be a bad cause.

McCarthy Ready To Oppose LBJ

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota expresses hope his early entry as a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination will solidify behind him currently diffused opposition to President Johnson's Vietnam policies.

McCarthy's official announcement that he will undertake the probably unrewarding task of trying to deny an incumbent president renomination is set for Thursday.

Acknowledging he is ready "to get my feet wet," McCarthy said in an interview that an early start is essential if he is to convince prospective supporters he means business.

He indicated he will pledge to go all the way even if he encounters setbacks in early primaries.

Inherent in this is his obvious belief that some of the score or more of organizations that have been springing up to push Senator Robert F. Kennedy (Dem., N.Y.) as an anti-war candidate will turn to him if they become convinced Kennedy means what he says when he asserts he will not run.

New Hampshire may furnish a test case in this respect. Kennedy backers there have ignored the senator's repudiation of their efforts. Thus far McCarthy's crusade seems to have attracted little attention in the state which holds the first primary, March 12.

As far as McCarthy is concerned, the big one will be the June 4 California primary.

A "Citizens for Kennedy in 1968" group has welcomed McCarthy into the race in behalf of "disturbed Democrats," but has made it clear that if Johnson should step aside, they would support the New York senator and not his Minnesota colleague.

The Louis Harris poll reported finding that Kennedy, whose views on Vietnam appear closer to McCarthy's than Johnson's, now leads Johnson by a 52- to 32-per-cent margin among voters asked who they'd prefer to see as the 1968 Democratic nominee.

The Harris sampling compared with a Kennedy lead of 42-41 per cent in September, 1966, and 48-39 per cent just a month ago.

The poll, copyrighted by the Washington Post, found more than half those it interviewed felt Kennedy had many of the same "outstanding qualities" as his brother, the late president Kennedy.

Israelis Angered By de Gaulle Charge

By UPI

Israel is considering withdrawing its ambassador from Paris to protest Charles de Gaulle's verbal attack on the country at his Monday news conference, Jerusalem reports said today.

In his news conference de Gaulle once again branded Israel an aggressor in the six-day June war as he did at the outset of hostilities. Israeli sources said this was hitting below the belt since de Gaulle spoke of trying to live with both the Arabs and the Jews.

Premier Levi Eshkol was reported to be consulting his cabinet about Israeli action, considered in Jerusalem to be an agonizing reappraisal of his country's relations with France.

France was Israel's chief supplier of arms including the jets which ravished the Arab air forces, but de Gaulle imposed an arms embargo at the outset of hostilities.

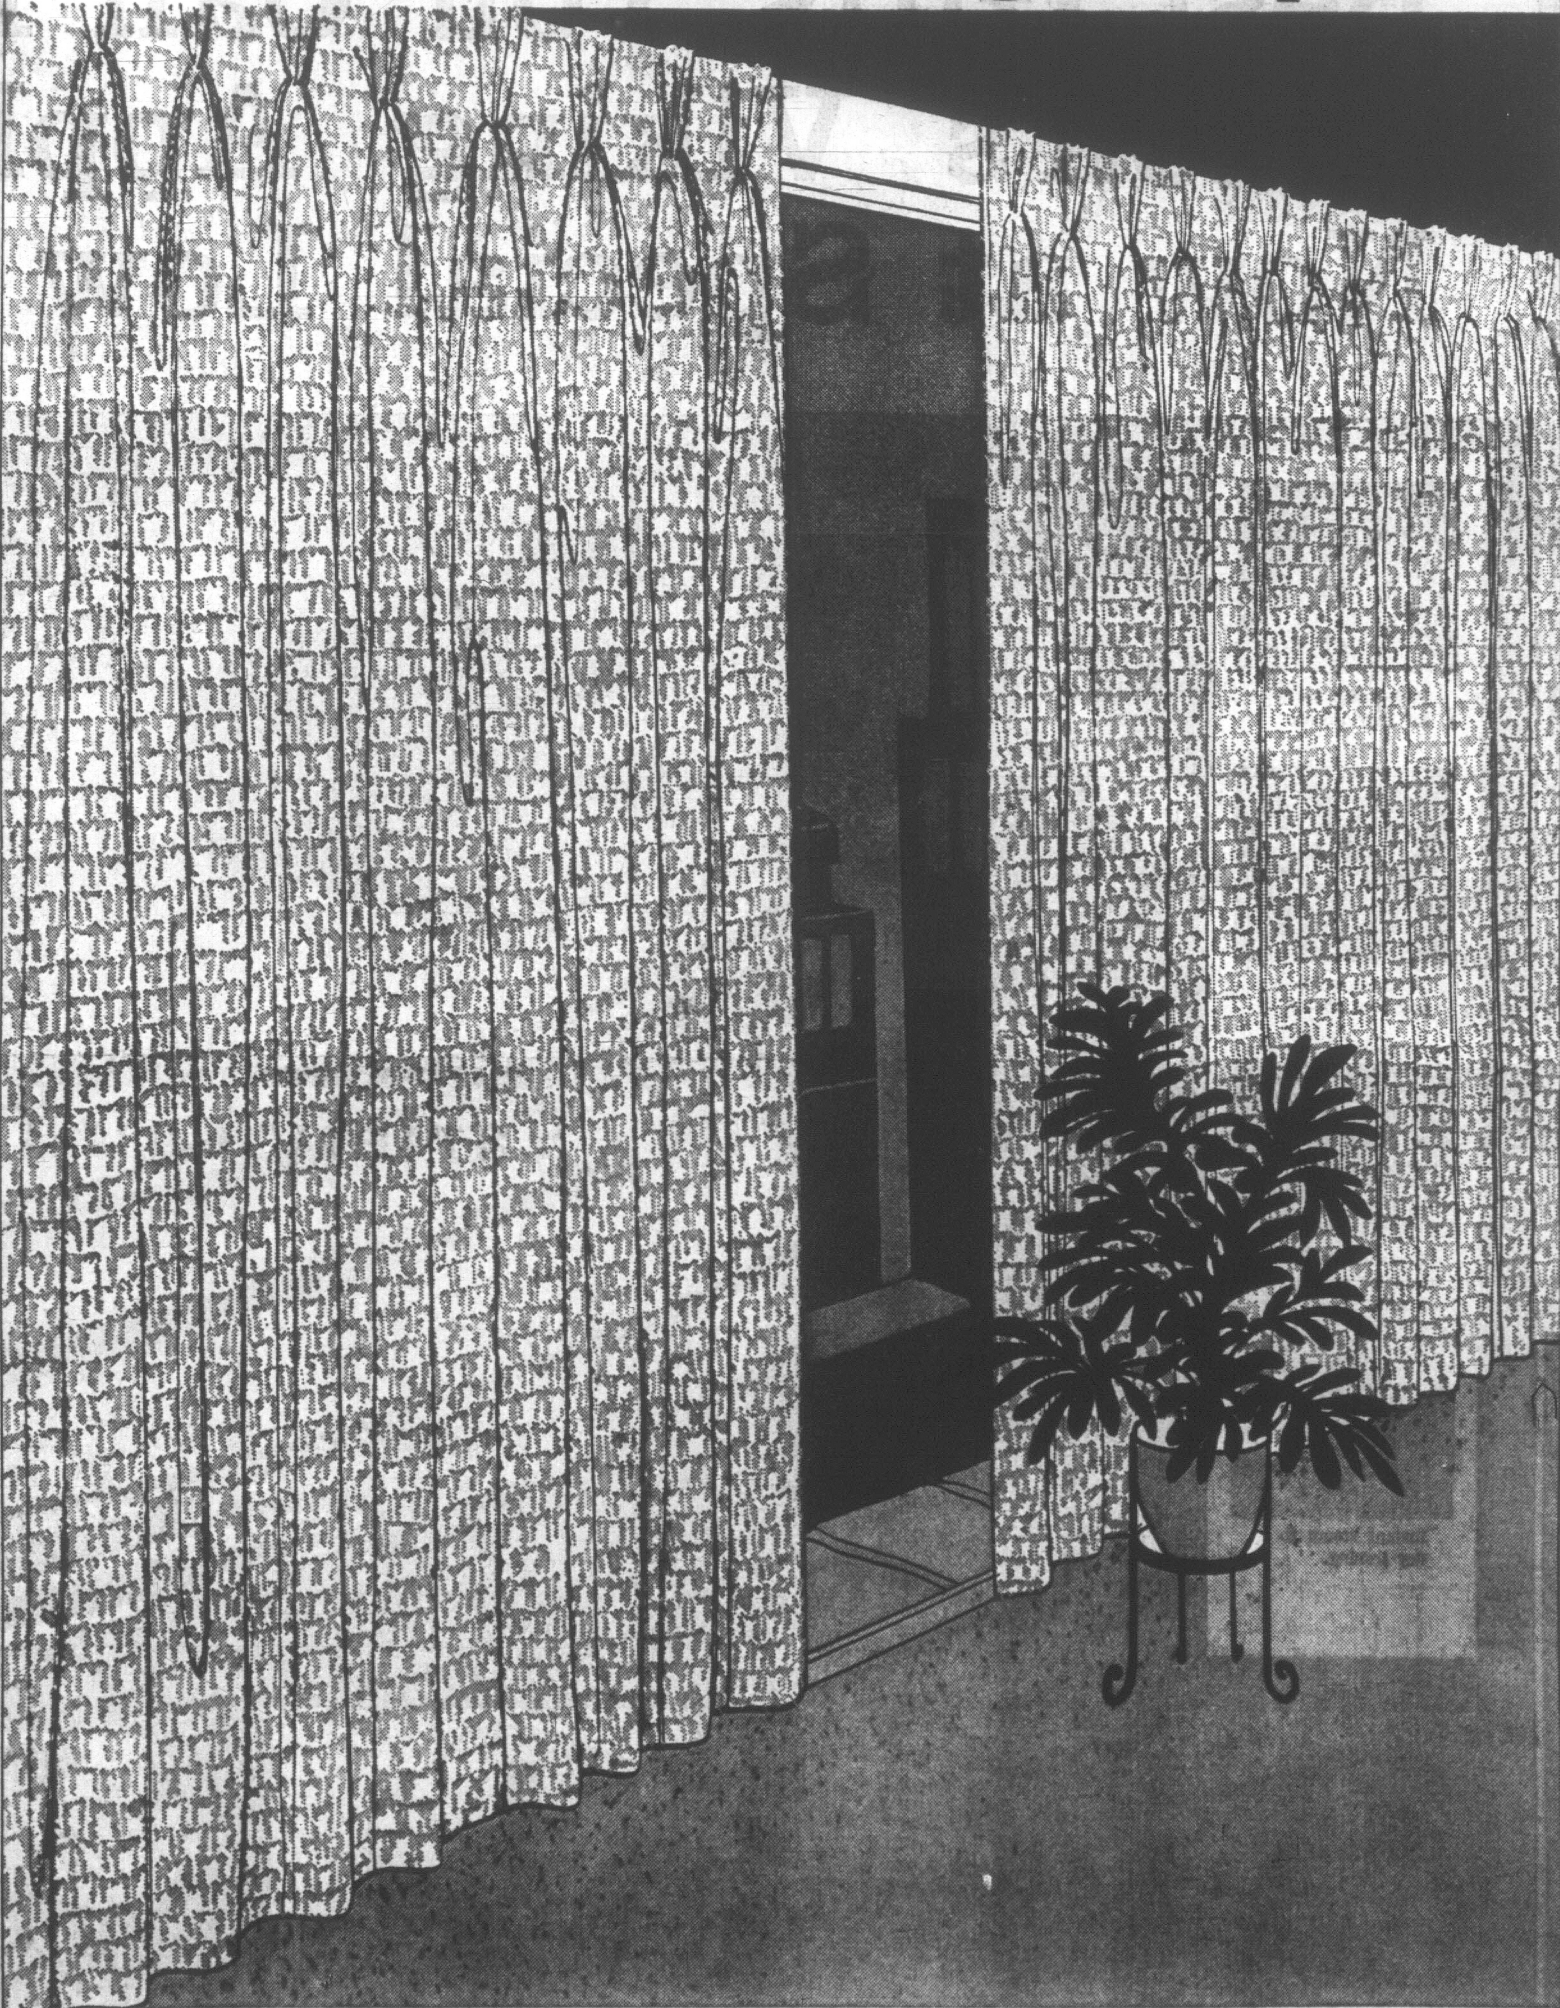

Informed Israeli sources said if Israel did not withdraw its ambassador from Paris it would be because Eshkol and the cabinet decided such an act would play into de Gaulle's hands in his current efforts to woo the Arabs.

The University of Victoria has hired a leading firm of Canadian architectural consultants to advise the university on the next stage of campus development.

SURREY PUTS GUARDS IN SCHOOLS

SURREY (CP)—All senior high schools in this lower mainland municipality are to be guarded round the clock following arson fires at two schools in the last five months.

Decision to hire night watchmen was made Monday night by school board superintendent Earl Marriott and chairman Tony Hatcher.

Twelve schools, including the two already damaged, will be guarded.

The watchmen will prevent unauthorized entry of school premises during the night and weekends.

The decision to guard all schools came 24 hours after a fire believed started by an arsonist damaged Princess Margaret School.

Medicare 'Phase-in' Under Study

Times Ottawa Bureau
OTTAWA — A phasing-in of medicare by stages is the compromise solution to the federal government's health services predicament, under active discussion in cabinet circles here today.

A firm decision on a possible phasing-in of the national health services scheme, scheduled to start July 1, 1968, is not expected for a few weeks. The cabinet wants more information on how many provinces plan to participate.

Several members of the cabinet favor the phasing-in idea, that is implementing the scheme in stages. First step would be to make it cover all those 60 years of age and over, it is understood.

There is another influential group within the cabinet however, that wants medicare implemented without changes in the existing legislation.

Adopting the phase-in plan would require amendments to legislation now on the statute books. So far Prime Minister Pearson has said firmly that his government has no plan to amend the legislation. But this could change in the next few weeks.

By PETER C. NEWMAN

TORONTO—This week will be remembered in Canadian history as a moment when men sought to reforge the future of this great untamed land in an Orwellian aerie on top of a Toronto skyscraper.

The Confederation of Tomorrow conference is meeting in an outside boardroom, imbued with an aura of commerce, stocked with admen's aids to patriotism, the participants sweating not from the intensity of their discussions but from the heat of television klieg lights.

To kick off the great confederation debate, John Roberts came before the gathering looking for all the world like a trust company president, addressing his annual meeting, blowing through his moustache, as he tried to put some feeling into a well-written speech being badly delivered.

This man's idealism (or more precisely, his patriotism) far outstrips his capacity for oratory. But everything he said made solid sense, and he even admitted that the term "special status" didn't particularly alarm him.

"To us," he said, "the concept should mean a profound awareness that Canada is a country of disparate parts, each with its own combination of preferences and needs."

The other premiers followed with good speeches, though the vibrant articulate presence of Duff Roblin was badly missed. Joey Smallwood was undoubtedly the most moving participant of the day, particularly when he pleaded that confederation should somehow be changed to allow the people of his province "a chance to earn a dollar, rather than being handed one."

Ernest Manning's attack on vague generalities and platitudes was composed almost entirely of vague generalities and platitudes, but he did make one valid point: How can we realistically sit down to rewrite our constitution when we can't even agree on the relatively simple matter of repatriating the British North American Act?

The single most telling comment of the day came from Louis Robichaud of New Brunswick who told the conference, "severe and persisting disparities in the levels of services and in the range of opportunities do much to fragment Canada—possibly more, in the end, than differences of language and culture.

Cultural variety can enlarge the freedom and humanity of every person. Economic and social deprivation can diminish life.

NEW POWERS
Watching the premiers in action it was easy to understand why so much power has flowed into their hands since the Second World War. Without exception they are men of stature, regional power barons unafraid to test the limits of their authority or stretch the boundaries of their influence.

The change becomes most noticeable if you consider what the makeup of such a conference might have been in 1945 when Maurice Duplessis would have been the only strong man at the bargaining table. (The other postwar premiers were John Hart of British Columbia, Stuart Garson of Manitoba, George

ON WAR BRINK

Last Minute Negotiations Over 'Hotline'

By United Press International

Turkey and Greece appeared tonight to have gone to the brink of war over the Cyprus crisis. But last-minute negotiations were being carried out over a telex hotline between Ankara and Athens to ease the "very critical" situation.

UN Bars China Again

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters)—The UN General Assembly today rejected a bid to oust Nationalist China from the United Nations and hand over its seat to Red China.

The world body defeated proposals that the UN recognize the Communist regime by 58 votes to 45 with 17 abstentions. Canada abstained.

This compared with last year's vote of 57 to 46 with 17 abstentions on a parallel resolution.

Even without such a large vote against Peking, the outcome was in no doubt when the assembly again endorsed a United States-backed recommendation that the issue be made subject to two-thirds majority decision.

The vote on this proposal was 69 to 48 with four abstentions. Canada voted yes.

Britain again parted company with the U.S. on the China question.

After referring to Britain's difficulties with the Communist regime in Peking and the "deplorable" ill-treatment of foreign missions in the Red Chinese capital, British delegate Lord Caradon said the British government still believes it is "right and necessary" that Peking should be accepted into the UN.

Informed sources in Ankara said Turkey delivered an ultimatum to Greece to accept Turkish terms for settlement of the Cyprus crisis or face unspecified "necessary measures." But the reported 8 a.m. PST deadline expired without incident, as Turkey apparently extended its time limit.

Called in commanders
The Turkish chief of staff called in his armed forces commanders after a day in which a fleet of Turkish warships approached to within 15 miles of Cyprus before returning to their base. Turkish jets screamed over the Mediterranean island 40 miles off the Turkish coast.

Ismet Inonu, 82-year-old former premier who now leads the main opposition party, called on President Cevdet Sunay at Sunay's request. It was Inonu who gave the order to bomb Greek-Cypriot positions on Cyprus when he was leader of a coalition government in 1964.

VERY CRITICAL
"The situation is very critical," Inonu said after the meeting. Despite the tension in Ankara, reports from the Greek-Turkish border said the situation was normal. Greek and Turkish forces have been arrayed along the border for the past week as the crisis mounted. Border guards at Ipsala said traffic was being allowed to pass normally although there were few cars making the trip.

CHANGE IN PACT

Informed Turkish sources said the last minute snag was a Greek statement that in return for concessions it would insist on changes in the 1960 Zurich agreements granting Cyprus independence from Britain.

The agreements permit intervention in Cyprus by either Greece or Turkey if conditions governing treatment of the Greek or Turkish communities on Cyprus are infringed upon. The sources said Greece wants this proviso to be eliminated.

SECRETARY of Defence, Robert McNamara, has been nominated by President Johnson to become the next president of the World Bank. If accepted by the 106 member nations, he may begin his new job early next year. The White House would not comment on rumors that Texas Governor John Connally, right, will take over the defence post. (See story on Page 29.)

QUEBEC PREMIER

'I Will Try To Oppose Separatism'

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Daniel Johnson of Quebec told the Confederation of Tomorrow conference today that he intends to respect the rights of English-speaking Canadians in Quebec as guaranteed under the constitution.

The premier also said he will try to oppose separatism in Quebec not only with words but by trying to obtain rights for French-speaking Canadians so that they will feel at home in Canada in other places than Quebec.

Premier Alex Campbell of Prince Edward Island challenged Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta at least to consider constitutional changes which would guarantee French-language rights everywhere in Canada.

He did this by referring to "exponents of the doctrine of variety." Mr. Manning on Monday identified himself as a believer in the "doctrine of variety."

REPORTS DISTURBING

Mr. Campbell said he was disturbed by press reports that many provinces were indifferent to Quebec's aspirations. His province was not indifferent.

Mr. Campbell repeated that Prince Edward Island is ready to consider constitutional change.

Mr. Manning repeated his stand later that French-language rights outside Quebec should not be written into the constitution.

Premier G. I. Smith of Nova Scotia said his province feels that Quebec's request for a new constitution is reasonable.

"Which would we rather do: risk losing Canada or make an effort to write a constitution which would give us hope of keeping Canada?"

Attorney-General Robert Bonner of British Columbia described Mr. Campbell's and Mr. Smith's comments as a "philosophical discussion."

Mr. Bonner rejected the statement of Premier John Roberts of Ontario that one goal for Canadians should be the achievement of a national identity.

Mr. Bonner said Canadians are "completely identifiable" and should not be too concerned about their identity.

What was needed was a "pork-chop consideration" of the national economy to determine how equalization of the standard of living across Canada was to be achieved, Mr. Bonner said.

WANTS EQUAL LIVING

Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland said he will go along with any discussion on constitutional change but what really mattered was an equal standard of living.

Pearson Slaps At de Gaulle

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson today described General de Gaulle's latest statement on Canada as "intolerable" intervention in the domestic affairs of Canada.

He told an applauding House of Commons that the future of Canadian Confederation will be decided in Canada by Canadians.

Mr. Pearson, recalling his earlier rejection of the French President's call in Montreal for "Vive le Quebec Libre", told the Commons:

"It is intolerable that a foreign head of state or government should recommend a course of political or constitutional action which would destroy Confederation and the unity of our state."

Later he added:

"... To those who would set us free we answer: 'We are free.' The prime minister's statement was the first major reaction by the Canadian government to the French president's news conference Monday when he predicted Quebec would reach the level of a state 'sovereign and master of its existence.'"

HAVE GOOD SENSE

Mr. Pearson said all Canadians, French-speaking and English-speaking, have the ability and good sense to make the right decisions about their future, but they will do so "in their own way and through their own due processes."

The prime minister agreed with Gen. de Gaulle that the Canadian constitution must be brought up to date. He also agreed the federal government should promote special and close cultural relations with France and other French-speaking countries.

There was no argument on this point, "except with those who would use those relations to destroy the federal government's responsibility for foreign affairs."

All Canadians possess the opportunity to exercise their political rights, Mr. Pearson declared.

"Self-determination is no new discovery for us," he said to more boisterous desk-thumping by all parties.

"We do not need to have it offered to us. It is an insult to assert the contrary."

To those who would set us free we answer: "We are free."

WILL STAY TOGETHER

Approaching the end of his message, Mr. Pearson said that despite those who would disunite Canada, the country will remain united in a federal system that is being brought into line with the times.

Quebec PM To Visit De Gaulle

PARIS (Reuters)—Quebec Premier Johnson will visit French President de Gaulle in January. It was officially learned today. The exact date remains to be agreed.

Johnson played host to de Gaulle when he visited Quebec in July and caused an uproar by exclaiming to a crowd in Montreal, "Vive le Quebec libre—the slogan of the separatists in Quebec."

It is understood that while Johnson is here, there will be an attempt to work out a Franco-Quebec Friendship Treaty on the lines of the Franco-German Friendship Treaty of 1963. Under its terms, heads of government consult one another twice a year and departmental ministers meet more frequently.

Mr. Pearson concluded dramatically by quoting extensively from a 1960 de Gaulle speech praising Canada as a solid and stable state.

He did not make clear whose speech it was until after he finished quoting from it.

Then he said:

"I agree with the words of Gen. de Gaulle in 1960. I disagree with his words in November, 1967." He sat down to general applause.

The French president's remarks came on the day Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson spoke of Canadian unity at the opening in Toronto of a four-day conference of premiers to consider the country's current and future constitutional needs.

Johnson adopted a fairly conciliatory tone in his two and half hour address to the conference and indicated the majority of French-Canadians hoped to achieve limited autonomy "within Canada" to pursue their cultural ambitions.

However, premiers of English-speaking provinces said they were "disturbed" by Johnson's remark that the constitution should be rewritten to preserve the rights of the French-Canadian minority.

The reaction of provincial

WHAT A DOLLAR PROVIDES

Cartage Firm Answers Dr. Lotta's Call for Help

By KATHRINE THOMAS

Dr. Lotta Hirschmanova has already found one Good Samaritan among Victorians.

When she spoke to the St. Beaver Kiwanis Club last week, she mentioned how badly the Unitarian Service Committee needed a new depot for clothing.

Jim Coffey, president of Fairfield Moving and Storage, 116 Dallas Road, has offered the services of his company.

He agreed to give the USC storage space, to supply free cartons and to move the parcels six times a year to Vancouver.

The Kiwanians offered assistance with packing and Mr. Coffey suggested the USC use his spot announcements on a local radio station to urge support for the Times Christmas appeal.

Donations of warm woollen clothing, badly needed throughout Asia, can be left at the new depot, Monday through Saturday, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and there is easy parking available beside the building.

"What fantastic generosity," said Dr. Lotta. "It gave me such joy."

Not all of us are able to help the USC in such a concrete way but every small contribution we make to the Times fund helps to keep alive the hungry children of Asia.

A USC dollar provides:

• 100 cups of milk for starving boys and girls in India and Korea.

• 25 copious meals for slum dwellers in Calcutta and Bangalore.

• 13 bowls of barley for hungry children in Korea.

• 16 medical visits and medicines to isolated Indian villages.

And for $1.70 a needy Indian mother can have a new sari—perhaps her only one.

Contributions to the Children of Asia Fund may be sent in care of the Victoria Daily Times. A list of contributors follows:

De Gaulle Means It!

EARLIER SUGGESTIONS OF senility, of publicity-seeking, of vainglory, of being carried away by the tumultuous welcome extended to a visitor — these no longer apply to General de Gaulle's pronouncements on the crisis of Quebec. For the third time within four months the President of France has called for the political and geographical dismemberment of a friendly ally.

De Gaulle makes it very clear that Quebec province should break away from Confederation, that he will do anything he can to assist the process and its aftermath, and that special political rights should be established for French-speaking Canadians living in other parts of Canada.

His purpose in this helping to foment a revolution within Canada is equally clear: he looks to the day when France will have a strong foothold in North America through close association with an independent French-speaking state which he has helped to create.

This whole Gaullist circus performance is so incredible that it is difficult to take seriously. Yet there can now be no mistaking the seriousness with which de Gaulle views his anachronistic panorama of empire-building. He has looked at the St. Lawrence with a wild surmise, and the prospective destruction of a country that helped to save his nation in two world wars does not constitute for him a deterrent to his grandiose project.

First, says de Gaulle, we must have "a complete change of the Canadian structure resulting from the act handed down a hundred years ago by the Queen of England . . . This will lead naturally to the emergence of Quebec as a sovereign state." And he plays his trump card with the announcement that "the second condition upon which depends the solution of these great problems is the solidarity of the French community on either side of the Atlantic . . ."

The French leader's analysis of

Confederation as something forced on Canada by "the Queen of England" betrays a complete ignorance of our origin, including the Charlottetown Conference, the later Quebec decisions, and the virtually undebated passage of the BNA Act by the British Parliament at our request. Nor is the squire of Colombey-les-Deux-Eglises any more accurate in his conception of French-speaking Canadians as expatriate Frenchmen who long to resume their identity with Paris.

Two hundred years after severance from the homeland they are Canadians who speak French, not Normans in exile. As Montreal's Mayor Drapeau said last July, after referring to the fourteen generations that had preceded him in Canada, "we have learned to survive alone for two centuries." And in another part of his remarks which de Gaulle must have missed: "Can we hope that those who come to help us accentuate this revival of French Canada will be animated by the same spirit so that French Canada may better serve the whole of Canada."

A sorry note enters de Gaulle's revelations when he claims a "sacred duty" to reply to Quebec nationalism. The world has had enough of the "sacred duty" gambit which impelled Mussolini to invade Ethiopia and Hitler to take over Czechoslovakia. While de Gaulle's echo has more of a comic opera touch than had those earlier tragedies of egotism, it is unfortunate that he has placed his country in so embarrassing a position.

It will be even more unfortunate if English-speaking Canadians are moved to answer de Gaulle's impertinence by forming a hard line against Quebec's reasonable requests. But the real answer to the aging General should come from the French-speaking Canadians of this country, who surely must see the trap into which European manoeuvring could push them.

Vote of Confidence

VICTORIA CITIZENS HAVE given Mayor Hugh Stephen a clear expression of their confidence in his leadership by the acclamation accorded him when nominations closed yesterday. At a time when contests appear to be the order of the day for municipal office in this community, no one has come forward to oppose him.

This reflects full satisfaction with the job Mr. Stephen has done during the one-year term following the tragic death of his predecessor, Mayor Alfred Toone.

It has not been an easy year for the chief magistrate. A revitalized capital city has been maintaining the advances that started after a long period of quiescence. Important issues have arisen in the council chamber, some of them bringing sharp differences among the aldermen. Mayor Stephen has proved his effectiveness in meeting such difficulties, welding dissidents into a team that continues to give the city the type of administration so productive in recent years.

His quiet efficiency; his readiness to accept the responsibilities, large and small, imposed on a mayor; his preservation of the dignity of the office and his considered, long-range policies for Victoria — these merit the trust implicit in his acclamation. From such support he should draw strength and assurance as he begins his first full term of office.

Something Less Than Unanimity

THE ASSURANCES VOICED BY Mr. Real Caouette and Mr. Herbert Bruch that a reunion of the two branches of Social Credit in Canada is imminent would carry more weight if they had been accompanied by any visible sign of support from party members elected from Western Canada.

The unity meeting in Ottawa, arranged by Mr. Bruch, as president of the Social Credit federal party, and Mr. Caouette, as leader of the Quebec Ralliement des Creditistes wing, was distinguished by the absence of the four remaining Western MPs. Since Premier Manning of Alberta has apparently written off Social Credit as a national force, and Premier Bennett's support of the party in federal politics has been minimal in the last two elections, it might be assumed that the new-found unity would be negotiated by the Creditistes from a position of strength. The notable absence of the four Western MPs was over-compensated by the presence at the Ottawa meeting of all eight Creditiste MPs.

Whatever Mr. Bennett's intentions may be so far as a reunified party is concerned, it is evident that his support would be a milestone around the neck of the Creditistes. It is not necessary for French-Canadians to be radical separatists for them to rebuff any party which has Mr. Bennett's blessing. At the same time it is difficult to see a federal Social Credit party in which Mr. Caouette is a strong influence drawing the votes of many people in the far west, the only part of Canada outside Quebec where Social Credit has any strength. The original antipathies and quarrels between the two wings of the party will not be dispelled merely by statements of good intentions.

The needle is stuck.

Consumers and the Slippery Butter

THE devaluation of the New Zealand dollar should be splendid news for Mr. John Turner who is soon to be minister of the new department of consumer affairs.

Western

In a recent speech about poverty and the "troubled consumer" the number of untroubled ones is so small as to be negligible, Mr. Turner gave an interesting forecast of his plans for helping us to develop better shopping habits and consumer skills appropriate for the modern marketplace. One of his starting points is a finding of a Yale Law Journal study — confirmed by studies in every home — that "the benefits of increased income may be dissipated through poor spending habits."

Mr. Turner hopes to improve our habits by the establishment of counselling and neighborhood improvement clinics. Some ill-natured consumers, in letters to newspapers, have already suggested that this would be a case of the totally blind leading the merely short-sighted. It is not difficult to understand how notions of this sort get abroad. For example, the government set out three years ago to shop for a centre of the performing arts in Ottawa — price $9 million. By the time tenders were let for a project, which has not unfortunately been available for centennial year, the best offer was $32 million.

Help for the Housewife

But Mr. Turner had nothing to do with this and it may be that, among his pilot projects, he has something in mind for Ottawa. As a result of the latest friendly gesture by New Zealand, the government now has an admirable opportunity to come to the aid of the hard-pressed housewife.

In a comprehensive description of the new department, the minister explains that: "It will have the power to co-ordinate federal consumer programs, protect us against fraud and restrictive trade, provide information on consumer issues and in general develop programs to enable the consumers of this nation to gain maximum value for the full range of goods and services they purchase and use."

It is demonstrable that we troubled consumers are not getting maximum value for the butter we purchase in our reckless moments. We have no protection against the restrictive trade arrangements imposed by successive governments and brought to their present state of perfection by Mr. Turner's colleague, Mr. Joe Greene.

Early this year, for reasons which may have distressed his department, Mr. Greene bought 2,500,000 pounds of New Zealand butter at the attractive price of 49 cents a pound. He intimated that this was to the advantage of both producers and consumers. As further aid to consumers, the government imposed a duty of five cents a pound on this high quality product. This was then sold on the west coast at the stabilized Canadian price. The result of all this assistance was that the consumer was able to buy it in the store at a price in the range of 67 to 70 cents.

In Interests of Thrifty

People who listened to counsels of thrift (not then available from government) bought margarine.

The New Zealand government, ready and eager to help Canadian housewives, had devalued its currency by almost 20 per cent. This means that Mr. Greene is now in a position to secure even better bargains. On the basis of a simple telephone call to the offices of the high commission, he ought to be able to obtain butter for us at no more than 45 cents a pound.

There are, of course, those who would not thank Mr. Greene for cheaper butter. But as Mr. Turner so well stated the case: "there could be no greater folly for Canadians than to slow down, revert to old practices, fall prey to caution and conservatism . . . our future depends on our imagination, our flexibility in choosing the alternatives, and our courage in making tough decisions."

Mr. Turner, in another vivid phrase, speaks of the "separate nation of poverty," reminding us, for example, that 75 per cent of all Indian families make less than $2,000 a year. At present prices it is obvious that they cannot afford butter. Even with the best of counselling services they must subsist on margarine and, in the more backward provinces, are further limited to a product defined as "tulip white" in the supermarkets.

The consumer most in need of Mr. Turner's counselling services is, however, Mr. Joe Greene who should be the No. 1 pilot project. This is quite clear from the act establishing the dairy commission which states plainly: "in exercising its powers under this act or the regulations in relation to the importation or exportation of any dairy product, the commission shall comply with any directions from time to time given to it by the governor in council or the minister."

Whatever the B and B commission may report, it is clear that our governments have long pursued a two or even three nation policy. Only the relatively well-to-do can afford butter. Marginal consumers buy a pound of this and a pound of that, but the other nation, dependent on margarine, must by now include many tens of thousands who have long since forgotten the taste of butter. (How many more contracted out when Mr. Greene increased the price by four cents last April 1?) This situation poses a grave threat to the dairy industry for the ever-growing separated nation, having discovered that it is possible to live by margarine alone, may never come back.

Fortunately New Zealand butter is of such admirable quality that the dairy industry sought to protect us from it by special labelling. While there is little doubt that many Canadians are permanently lost as butter consumers, Mr. Greene may be able to win others back if he seizes the opportunity to buy the largest possible quantity of cut-rate New Zealand butter and to secure the widest possible distribution by waiving duties and forgetting about stabilized prices.

Mr. Turner, possibly for reasons of space, failed to mention butter in the speech announcing his pro-consumer crusade. But at that time (November 15) the full scope of the present opportunity was not apparent because New Zealand devalued only last week. He is a gifted advocate and there is the barest chance that, if he now goes to work on Mr. Greene, we may have relief from folly with the result that both the consumer and the government will save some money.

Letters to the Editor

Walk to School?

For a long time we thought the younger generation were unable to walk and simply could not get around without a car, the noisier the better. Saturday's event shows how wrong we were.

Now they have started, possibly they could keep in practice by walking to school. The saving of parking lots, wear and tear on streets, policing, etc., could go to essential classrooms.

There must be many people in and out of hospitals who would be glad of someone to push a wheelchair or to escort them on a walk. Some senior citizens might even let them get field training walking around on the lawn. While doing so they could push a lawnmower in front of them to keep "on course."

They could top off their year's effort by taking over from the faithful army of Community Chest canvassers and walk from door to door collecting for the Chest, racking up mileage for their sponsors and collect for two causes for the price of one.—P. B. Taxpayer.

"The Second Mile"

The "March for Millions" was a marvellous success and thousands of our young people have felt the satisfaction of "giving of themselves" for a cause. As my daughter walked slowly and painfully around home last night, she said "I feel so good". We who sponsored them are cheerfully paying out more than we had anticipated. If these marchers had just come to our doors asking for donations, they would not have been so generously received.

Fellow Victorians, how about going "The Second Mile"? Our own Red Feather campaign is struggling hard to make that last percentage to reach its goal. How about sending them a further few cents covering the mileage of your walkers and send our own home drive over the top. I am going to do so. Make the "march" a double success.—Proud.

"Monumental Task"

The secretary-treasurer of the Victoria Labor Council has announced that he will be a candidate for alderman in the city elections.

Mr. Ryan has undertaken a monumental task. How is he going to reconcile the principle of public service of an alderman with the avowed philosophy of most unions?

As an alderman he would have to work for the good of the whole community. As a labor representative he would have to follow the practice of most unions, the usual practice being to wave the big stick, the threat of strike action, to back up the demand: "Give us what we want, or we'll put you out of business." — M. Rockwood, 2464 Plumer.

"DAD AN' MOM ARE BUSY FIGHTIN', MR. WILSON! DAD BOUGHT A MOTORCYCLE, AN' IT OR MOM HAS GOTTA GO."

Callaghan Up From Canvas

By TIM TRAYNOR
from London

POST devaluation events here continue to run an unpredictable course with Chancellor of the Exchequer James Callaghan simultaneously making a political comeback and arousing new controversy with an attack on a group of leading industrialists. As the minister chiefly responsible for the devaluation, Mr. Callaghan at first appeared a sure casualty, but he has been able during a two-day parliamentary debate to make up a good deal of lost ground. He would have emerged with a clear gain had he not struck out against a "sinister" group, which, he suggested, had been set up to prove that the House of Commons and the government were incapable of solving Britain's economic problems.

Traynor

Though he only mentioned one name, it was clear that the group in question comprised powerful exporters, whose response to the opportunities opened up by the devaluation will be crucial to its success or failure.

Apart from his attack, the chancellor was a model of statesmanship and reasonableness in a notably rowdy and unimpaired debate. He certainly outshone Prime Minister Harold Wilson, whose performance seemed pedestrian and sometimes even petty. Both the prime minister and Mr. Callaghan had many times disavowed devaluation and inevitably faced charges of bad faith, but more odium seems to have attached to Mr. Wilson than to Mr. Callaghan. The chancellor must once again be reckoned a potential labor prime minister should Mr. Wilson fall.

"Twister"

The Conservative opposition called Mr. Wilson a "twister," and said no one could trust his word.

Mr. Wilson's reply was that Britain's growth had been increasingly impeded for 15 years because of balance of payments problems, and the burden had now become unacceptable. Labor had been right to defend the old exchange rate for three years but the time was now right for devaluation, because the international community for the first time accepted the need for it, and because there was enough slack in the economy to absorb the new activity that would be created.

The economy had been set to boom next year even before the devaluation; the latter would ensure that the boom came in exports rather than in domestic consumption. To forgo devaluation, as the Tories suggested, would necessitate unemployment-creating measures to prevent the coming boom from accelerating imports and precipitating a new balance of payments crisis. (It was this line, combined with the Tory attack, which brought potentially rebellious left-wing backbenchers around to enthusiastic endorsement of the devaluation both at party meetings and in the Commons, where a motion of approval was carried by 335 to 258.)

Gloss

That the prime minister was putting gloss on the situation was made embarrassingly clear by Mr. Callaghan. He made no bones about the difficulties involved in making devaluation a success. He said further austerity measures beyond those already announced might be necessary to keep inflation under control. (The government has rejected a new legislative wage freeze so the responsibility for incomes restraint falls largely on the Trades Union Congress, which has promised to do its best. But it has only limited powers.) Mr. Callaghan went on to say bluntly that devaluation symbolized the fact that Britain had slipped behind other countries. The government had to accept its share of responsibility along with everyone else.

However, he strongly attacked suggestions that the government had bungled the devaluation by holding off an announcement late last week in the face of severe speculation against the pound. Mr. Callaghan said they had escaped destructive international repercussions "by the skin of our teeth," and only because they had chosen the correct degree of devaluation and paused to consult interested countries and organizations.

IMF Assurances

He also came down heavily on European rumors that there was doubt about the International Monetary Fund and credits announced along with devaluation. Citing assurance of support from the IMF, he said anyone who spread this sort of rumor could only have in mind damage to the reserve currencies — the dollar and the pound. This may well have been a veiled rebuke to the French government, which is now widely suspected of deliberately attempting to undermine both sterling and the dollar. Confirmation is seen in the announcement that France is no longer participating in the international gold pool, through which the existing price of gold — keystone of the international monetary system — is maintained.

It is felt that the French have had a big hand in generating the unprecedented demand for gold on the London exchange in recent days.

In the unlikely event of the French succeeding in undermining the dollar — their evident aim — Britain would face a second devaluation. This would be the ultimate disaster not only for Mr. Callaghan, but for everybody. It was a thought that manifestly tempered the relief about the successful outcome of the debate.

Looking Back

From the Times,
Nov. 28, 1967.

For the first time the Dominion government's wireless stations at Sholt's Hill and Point Grey, near Vancouver, were in communication yesterday, and some two thousand words were elicited across the Straits of Georgia in a test.

The two stations will now be in constant communication with each other.

The local station has also heard several of the steamships equipped with wireless apparatus, talking to each other.

SAN FRANCISCO — Punters got a real thrill at the Bay Meadows racetrack this afternoon when the daily double returned $1,066.80 for a $2 wager.

Mamaletta, the winner of the opening race, paid $13 to win, and the rich double resulted when the rank outsider El-Mirador-Flash flashed down in the second to return $58.40, $30.40 and $15.60 across the board.

Swiss Arrest Former Bank Chief

LUCERNE (AP) — Swiss police today arrested Youssef Beidas, former president of Lebanon's Intra Bank, who is wanted at home in connection with the bank's multi-million-dollar collapse in 1966. Beidas, 55, was seized on a warrant for extradition to Lebanon, where the failure of Intra shook the economy of the Middle East and forced the Lebanese government to take over the bank. It has been reorganized, and depositors now are expected to get much of their money back.

CANADIANS HIRED

New Architects
For University

By DON VIPOND

The University of Victoria has hired a leading firm of Canadian architectural consultants to advise the university on the next stage of campus development.

Erickson-Massey and Associates of Vancouver will replace the San Francisco firm of Wurster, Bernardi and Emmons who established the basic campus design characterized by a central "ring road" and academic quadrangle.

The change was proposed by the American consultants who felt the task for which they were commissioned has been completed and the university now needs consultants closer to the scene.

Erickson-Massey are the designers of Simon Fraser University and the MacMillan Bloedel building in Vancouver. They have been commissioned to design the Canadian Pavilion for Expo 70 in Osaka, Japan, and were responsible for the Expo 67 building on "man in the community."

The new consultants will supervise over-all development but other architects may be hired to undertake specific projects.

"The change in consultants comes at a particularly appropriate time," said a university spokesman.

SURREY
PUTS GUARDS IN SCHOOLS

SURREY (CP) — All senior high schools in this lower mainland municipality are to be guarded round the clock following arson fires at two schools in the last five months.

Decision to hire night watchmen was made Monday night by school board superintendent Earl Marriott and chairman Tony Hatcher.

Twelve schools, including the two already damaged, will be guarded.

The watchmen will prevent unauthorized entry of school premises during the night and weekends.

The decision to guard all schools came 24 hours after a fire believed started by an arsonist damaged Princess Margaret School.

ON WAR BRINK

Last Minute
Negotiations
Over 'Hotline'

By United Press International

Turkey and Greece appeared tonight to have gone to the brink of war over the Cyprus crisis. But last-minute negotiations were being carried out over a telex hotline between Ankara and Athens to ease the "very critical" situation.

Informed sources in Ankara said Turkey delivered an ultimatum to Greece to accept Turkish terms for settlement of the Cyprus crisis or face unspecified "necessary measures." But the reported 8 a.m. PST deadline expired without incident, as Turkey apparently extended its time limit.

UN Bars
China
Again

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters) — The UN General Assembly today rejected a bid to oust Nationalist China from the United Nations and hand over its seat to Red China.

The world body defeated proposals that the UN recognize the Communist regime by 58 votes to 45 with 17 abstentions. Canada abstained.

This compared with last year's vote of 57 to 46 with 17 abstentions on a parallel resolution.

Even without such a large vote against Peking, the outcome was in no doubt when the assembly again endorsed a United States-backed recommendation that the issue be made subject to two-thirds majority decision.

The vote on this proposal was 69 to 48 with four abstentions. Canada voted yes.

Britain again parted company with the U.S. on the China question. After referring to Britain's difficulties with the Communist regime in Peking and the "deplorable" ill-treatment of foreign missions in the Red Chinese capital, British delegate Lord Caradon said the British government still believes it is "right and necessary" that Peking should be accepted into the UN.

CONFEDERATION OF TOMORROW

Admen Push Patriotism
In an 'Orwellian Aerie'

By PETER C. NEWMAN

TORONTO — This week will be remembered in Canadian history as a moment when men sought to reforge the future of this great untamed land in an Orwellian aerie on top of a Toronto skyscraper.

The Confederation of Tomorrow conference is meeting in an outside boardroom, imbued with an aura of commerce, stocked with admen's aids to patriotism, the participants sweating not from the intensity of their discussions but from the heat of television klieg lights.

To kick off the great confederation debate, John Roberts came before the gathering looking for all the world like a trust company president, addressing his annual meeting, blowing through his moustache, as he tried to put some feeling into a well-written speech being badly delivered.

This man's idealism (or more precisely, his patriotism) far outstrips his capacity for oratory. But everything he said made solid sense, and he even admitted that the term "special status" didn't particularly alarm him.

"To us," he said, "the concept should mean a profound awareness that Canada is a country of disparate parts, each with its own combination of preferences and needs."

The other premiers followed with good speeches, though the vibrant articulate presence of Duff Roblin was badly missed. Joey Smallwood was undoubtedly the most moving participant of the day, particularly when he pleaded that confederation should somehow be changed to allow the people of his province "a chance to earn a dollar, rather than being handed one."

Ernest Manning's attack on vague generalities and platitudes was composed almost entirely of vague generalities and platitudes, but he did make one valid point: How can we realistically sit down to rewrite our constitution when we can't even agree on the relatively simple matter of repatriating the British North American Act?

The single most telling comment of the day came from Louis Robichaud of New Brunswick who told the conference, "severe and persisting disparities in the levels of services and in the range of opportunities — do much to fragment Canada — possibly more, in the end, than differences of language and culture."

"Cultural variety can enlarge the freedom and humanity of every person. Economic and social deprivation can diminish life."

NEW POWERS — Watching the premiers in action it was easy to understand why so much power has flowed into their hands since the Second World War. Without exception they are men of stature, regional power barons unafraid to test the limits of their authority or stretch the boundaries of their influence.

The change becomes most noticeable if you consider what the makeup of such a conference might have been in 1945 when Maurice Duplessis would have been the only strong man at the bargaining table. (The other postwar premiers were John Hart of British Columbia, Stuart Garson of Manitoba, George

QUEBEC PREMIER

'I Will Try
To Oppose
Separatism'

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Daniel Johnson of Quebec told the Confederation of Tomorrow conference today that he intends to respect the rights of English-speaking Canadians in Quebec as guaranteed under the constitution.

The premier also said he will try to oppose separatism in Quebec not only with words but by trying to obtain rights for French-speaking Canadians so that they will feel at home in Canada in other places than Quebec.

Premier Alex Campbell of Prince Edward Island challenged Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta at least to consider constitutional changes which would guarantee French-language rights everywhere in Canada.

He did this by referring to "exponents of the doctrine of variety." Mr. Manning on Monday identified himself as a believer in the "doctrine of variety."

REPORTS DISTURBING — Mr. Campbell said he was disturbed by press reports that many provinces were indifferent to Quebec's aspirations. His province was not indifferent.

Mr. Campbell repeated that Prince Edward Island is ready to consider constitutional change.

Mr. Manning repeated his stand later that French-language rights outside Quebec should not be written into the constitution.

Premier G. I. Smith of Nova Scotia said his province feels that Quebec's request for a new constitution is reasonable.

"Which would we rather do: risk losing Canada or make an effort to write a constitution which would give us hope of keeping Canada?"

'Intolerable
Intervention'

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson today described General de Gaulle's latest statement on Canada as "intolerable" intervention in the domestic affairs of Canada.

He told an applauding House of Commons that the future of Canadian Confederation will be decided in Canada by Canadians.

Mr. Pearson, recalling his earlier rejection of the French President's call in Montreal for "Vive le Quebec Libre", told the Commons:

"It is intolerable that a foreign head of state or government should recommend a course of political or constitutional action which would destroy Confederation and the unity of our state."

Later he added:

"... To those who would set us free we answer: 'We are free.' The prime minister's statement was the first major reaction by the Canadian government to the French president's news conference Monday when he predicted Quebec would reach the level of a state 'sovereign and master of its existence.'"

HAVE GOOD SENSE

Mr. Pearson said all Canadians, French-speaking and English-speaking, have the ability and good sense to make the right decisions about their future, but they will do so "in their own way and through their own due processes."

The prime minister agreed with Gen. de Gaulle that the Canadian constitution must be brought up to date. He also agreed the federal government should promote special and close cultural relations with France and other French-speaking countries.

There was no argument on this point, "except with those who would use those relations to destroy the federal government's responsibility for foreign affairs."

"All Canadians possess the opportunity to exercise their political rights," Mr. Pearson declared.

"Self-determination is no new discovery for us," he said to more boisterous desk-thumping by all parties.

"We do not need to have it of-

Quebec PM
To Visit
De Gaulle

PARIS (Reuters) — Quebec Premier Johnson will visit French President de Gaulle in January. It was officially learned today. The exact date remains to be agreed.

Johnson played host to de Gaulle when he visited Quebec in July and caused an uproar by exclaiming to a crowd in Montreal, Vive le Quebec libre—the slogan of the separatists in Quebec.

"... To those who would set us free we answer: 'We are free.'"

WILL STAY TOGETHER

Approaching the end of his message, Mr. Pearson said that despite those who would disunite Canada, the country will remain united in a federal system that is being brought into line with the times.

Mr. Pearson concluded dramatically by quoting extensively from a 1960 de Gaulle speech praising Canada as a solid and stable state.

He did not make clear whose speech it was until after he finished quoting from it.

Then he said:

"I agree with the words of Gen. de Gaulle in 1960. I dis-

Dr. Lotta's Call for Help

By KATHRINE THOMAS

Dr. Lotta Hirschmanova has already found one Good Samaritan among Victorians.

When she spoke to the Ss. Beaver Kiwanis Club last week, she mentioned how badly the Unitarian Service Committee needed a new depot for clothing.

Jim Coffey, president of Fairfield Moving and Storage, 116 Dallas Road, has offered the services of his company.

He agreed to give the USC storage space, to supply free cartons and to move the parcels six times a year to Vancouver.

The Kiwanians offered assistance with packing and Mr. Coffey suggested the USC use his spot announcements on a local radio station to urge support for the Times Christmas appeal.

Donations of warm woollen clothing, badly needed throughout Asia, can be left at the new depot, Monday through Saturday, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and there is easy parking available beside the building.

"What fantastic generosity," said Dr. Lotta. "It gave me such joy."

Not all of us are able to help the USC in such a concrete way but every small contribution we make to the Times fund helps to keep alive the hungry children of Asia.

A USC dollar provides:

- 100 cups of milk for starving boys and girls in India and Korea.
- 100 enriched peanut butter biscuits for wayside waits in India.
- 25 copious meals for slum dwellers in Calcutta and Bangalore.
- 13 bowls of barley for hungry children in Korea.
- 16 medical visits and medicines to isolated Indian villages.
- Triple vaccine for 10 children in India.
- Four children's garments or one cotton blanket for a family living in the mountains of India.
- Three days' care for a two to five-year-old in the mountains of India.
- And for $1.70 a needy Indian mother can have a new sari—perhaps her only one.

Contributions to the Children of Asia Fund may be sent in care of the Victoria Daily Times. A list of contributors follows:

SEPARATISM

Smith's comments as a "philosophical discussion."
Mr. Bonner rejected the statement of Premier John Roberts of Ontario that one goal for Canadians should be the achievement of a national identity.
Mr. Bonner said Canadians are "completely identifiable" and should not be too concerned about their identity.
What was needed was a "pork-chop consideration" of the national economy to determine how equalization of the standard of living across Canada was to be achieved, Mr. Bonner said.

WANTS EQUAL LIVING
Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland said he will go along with any discussion on constitutional change but what really mattered was an equal standard of living across Canada.
He said he would oppose absolutely any constitution change if it means there would be "nine provinces and one something else and an emasculated Ottawa."

It would be intolerable to him if his grandchildren went to Quebec and could obtain education in French only.
Mr. Manning said it would be "grossly unfair" to say that Alberta was indifferent to Quebec's aspirations.

NEWMAN

Drew of Ontario, Stirling Macmillan of Nova Scotia, J. B. McNair of New Brunswick, Walter Jones of P.E.I., Tommy Douglas of Saskatchewan, and a much younger and relatively untied E. C. Manning of Alberta.)

Even though his personality is as untheatrical as ever, it is Daniel Johnson of Quebec who inevitably dominates the current conference. As usual he dismisses the 1867 confederation contract merely as "our fifth constitution since 1760," stressing that 50 other constitutions have adopted new constitutions since the Second World War.

FREE REIN

His tone is mild as he reiterates his demands for free rein by Quebec "to make its own decision affecting the growth of its citizens as human beings (i.e. education, social security and health in all respects), their economic development (i.e. the forging of any economic and financial tool deemed necessary), their cultural fulfillment (which takes in not only arts and literature but the French language as well), and the presence abroad of the Quebec community (i.e. relations with certain countries and international organizations)."

This call for "special status" of the broadest kind within Confederation is nothing new but for the first time, Johnson escalates his demands to a new constitution which would "acknowledge the existence in Canada of two nations, bound together by history, each enjoying equal collective rights." He goes on to suggest the establishment of a permanent body constituted on a bi-national basis and this takes him straight into the "associate state" kind of argument—the furthest he's yet gone along this precarious route.

COLLECTIVE QUALITY

What the Quebec premier is demanding now is not that French-Canadians be granted merely equal individual rights (in job opportunities, educational facilities and so on) but that Quebec be given collective equality in running the country.

This would amount to allowing Quebec veto powers over national decisions, a state of affairs which even the most amiable and conciliatory English-Canadian could scarcely find acceptable.

News of President de Gaulle's press conference and his repeated call for the inevitability of Quebec independence disrupted the tenor of the conference's opening day. Psychologically, de Gaulle strengthened the position of the separatists because his continued interest has made their position legitimate far beyond the marginal revolutionary elements which had control of their movement even a year ago.

GOOD WILL

In its opening sessions the Confederation of Tomorrow Conference oozed good will and great intentions: there was none of the sense of confrontation that characterizes federal-provincial conferences in Ottawa.

'FULL OF GOODWILL'

Bennett Plays It Cool Over All-U.S. Ferry Bid

Premier Bennett Monday tried to play it cool while efforts to develop an all-U.S. ferry service linking Washington and Alaska warmed up.
"I have no comment to make," said Mr. Bennett when asked for his reaction to Alaska Governor Walter Hickel's announcement he is seeking U.S. federal authority to extend the Alaska State Ferries system from Ketchikan to Seattle.

"I'm full of goodwill to everyone. It's getting close to Christmas."
But a report from Bellingham suggested that a U.S. ferry service would not only syphon all U.S. traffic off the B.C. Ferry Authority's Kelsey Bay-Prince Rupert run.

It also could compete for the Canadian traffic originating in the lower mainland, said Fred Toan, consultant to the Bellingham Traffic and Rates Bureau.

He pointed out that Vancouverites could drive to Bellingham in one hour and then catch a 30-hour direct ferry to Prince Rupert.

To catch the 22-hour Queen of Prince Rupert service at Kelsey Bay, they would have to spend at least another four hours driving and taking a Georgia Strait ferry.

Bellingham civic officials are campaigning to make their port the southern terminal for Alaska State Ferries.

In Juneau, Alaska, the 17th United States Coast Guard district said Monday it has asked for an early decision from Washington, D. C. on Gov. Hickel's application.

Rear-Admiral Joseph R. Scullion, district commander, said the state's request was forwarded to coast guard headquarters in Washington Saturday, along with a request that a decision be made quickly.

Gov. Hickel asked Rear-

Admiral Scullion last week that the waters which would be traversed by the ferries between Prince Rupert, the present southern terminus of the state ferry service, and Seattle be declared bays and sounds.

This designation would permit three vessels now used on the southeast system to provide direct service between southeast Alaska and Seattle.

The Incredible Hippy Murder Case

Here is probably the most nightmarish article The Reader's Digest has ever published.

It is the true story of how, in just a matter of weeks, a nice 18-year-old girl from a fine family and with extraordinary advantages, became addicted to a hippie life of psychedelic drugs—and ended up raped and murdered, her head shattered by bricks and her body stretched out on a grimy boiler room floor. This is "must" reading for both parents and youth in a day when family ties are threatened and teen-agers are tempted by a world of fantasy in which they may too easily lose their way. Be sure to read this remarkable article in December Reader's Digest. On sale now.

Former Justice Minister Davie Fulton in the Commons Monday called on the government to explain the "public exchange of criticism" between Mr. Pearson and General de Gaulle.

"The opposition member said, 'I think I may be permitted to say, quite apart from the merits or demerits of what took place that this is an extraordinary way for a government to carry on international relations.'"

Mr. Martin however assured the Commons that Mr. Pearson's speech in London criticising French policies and the De Gaulle press conference statements were "completely unrelated."

PLAY DESERVED TO BE HEARD

LONDON (CP)—The BBC broadcast a radio play that the majority of listeners could not understand—it was in Japanese. The 55-minute play had only a short introductory passage in English. A BBC spokesman explained the play was so good, it deserved to be heard.

If you had a car that didn't break so often, you wouldn't be broke so often.

Volvos are built so strongly they're driven an average of eleven years in Sweden where there are no speed limits on the highways, where there are over 70,000 miles of unpaved roads, where driving is virtually a national pastime.

Drive a Volvo Canadian at a nearby dealer. If you're not especially excited about the way Volvos hold up, you may get excited about the way Volvos perform: Volvos run away from every other compact in their class, yet get over 30 miles to the gallon, even with automatic transmission.

CANADIANS HIRED

New Architects For University

By DON VIPOND

The University of Victoria has hired a leading firm of Canadian architectural consultants to advise the university on the next stage of campus development.

Erickson Massey and Associates of Vancouver will replace the San Francisco firm of Wurster, Bernardi and Emmons who established the basic campus design characterized by a central "ring road" and academic quadrangle.

The change was proposed by the American consultants who felt the task for which they were commissioned has been completed and the university now needs consultants closer to the scene.

Erickson Massey are the designers of Simon Fraser University and the MacMillan Bloedel building in Vancouver. They have been commissioned to design the Canadian Pavilion for Expo 70 in Osaka, Japan, and were responsible for the Expo 67 building on "man in the community."

The new consultants will supervise over-all development but other architects may be hired to undertake specific projects.

"The change in consultants comes at a particularly appropriate time," said a university spokesman.

SURREY PUTS GUARDS IN SCHOOLS

SURREY (CP)—All senior high schools in this lower mainland municipality are to be guarded round the clock following arson fires at two schools in the last five months.

Decision to hire night watchmen was made Monday night by school board superintendent Earl Marriot and chairman Tony Hatcher.

Twelve schools, including the two already damaged, will be guarded.

The watchmen will prevent unauthorized entry of school premises during the night and weekends.

The decision to guard all schools came 24 hours after a fire believed started by an arsonist damaged Princess Margaret School.

Medicare 'Phase-in' Under Study

Times Ottawa Bureau

A phasing-in of medicare by stages is the compromise solution to the federal government's health services predicament, under active discussion in cabinet circles here today.

A firm decision on a possible phasing-in of the national health services scheme, scheduled to start July 1, 1968, is not expected for a few weeks. The cabinet wants more information on how many provinces plan to participate.

Several members of the cabinet favor the phasing-in idea, that is implementing the scheme in stages. First step would be to make it cover all those 60 years of age and over. It is understood.

There is another influential group within the cabinet however, that wants medicare implemented without changes in the existing legislation.

Adopting the phase-in plan would require amendments to legislation now on the statute books. So far Prime Minister Pearson has said firmly that his government has no plan to amend the legislation. But this could change in the next few weeks.

CONFEDERATION OF TOMORROW

Admen Push Patriotism In an 'Orwellian Eerie'

By PETER C. NEWMAN

TORONTO—This week will be remembered in Canadian history as a moment when to reforge the future of this great untamed land in an Orwellian eerie on top of a Toronto skyscraper.

The Confederation of Tomorrow conference is meeting in an outside boardroom, imbued with an aura of commerce, stocked with admen's aids to patriotism, the participants sweating not from the intensity of their discussions but from the heat of television klieg lights.

To kick off the great confederation debate, John Roberts came before the gathering looking for all the world like a trust company president, addressing his annual meeting, blowing through his moustache, as he tried to put some feeling into a well-written speech being badly delivered.

This man's idealism (or more precisely, his patriotism) far outstrips his capacity for oratory. But everything he said made solid sense, and he even admitted that the term "special status" didn't particularly alarm him.

"To us," he said, "the concept should mean a profound awareness that Canada is a country of disparate parts, each with its own combination of preferences and needs."

The other premiers followed with good speeches, though the vibrant articulate presence of Duff Roblin was badly missed. Joey Smallwood was undoubtedly the most moving participant of the day, particularly when he pleaded that a confederation should somehow be changed to allow the people of his province "a chance to earn a dollar, rather than being handed one."

Ernest Manning's attack on vague generalities and platitudes was composed almost entirely of vague generalities and platitudes, but he did make one valid point: How can we realistically sit down to rewrite our constitution when we can't even agree on the relatively simple matter of repatriating the British North American Act?

The single most telling comment of the day came from Louis Robichaud of New Brunswick who told the conference, "severe and persisting disparities in the levels of services and in the range of opportunities do much to fragment Canada—possibly more, in the end, than differences of language and culture. "Cultural variety can enlarge the freedom and humanity of every person. Economic and social deprivation can diminish life."

NEW POWERS

Watching the premiers in action it was easy to understand why so much power has flowed into their hands since the Second World War. Without exception they are men of stature, regional power barons unafraid to test the limits of their authority or stretch the boundaries of their influence.

The change becomes most noticeable if you consider what the makeup of such a conference might have been in 1945 when Maurice Duplessis would have been the only strong man at the bargaining table. (The other postwar premiers were John Hart of British Columbia, Stuart Garson of Manitoba, George

Limited Martial Law

KUALA LUMPUR (AP)—The Malaysian government declared limited martial law in northwestern Malaysia today in an effort to quell spreading racial clashes between Malays and Chinese.

CHANGE IN PACT

Informed Turkish sources said the last minute snag was a Greek statement that in return for concessions it would insist on changes in the 1960 Zurich agreements granting Cyprus independence from Britain.

The agreements permit intervention in Cyprus by either Greece or Turkey if conditions governing treatment of the Greek or Turkish communities in Cyprus are infringed upon. The sources said Greece wants this proviso to be eliminated.

VERY CRITICAL

"The situation is very critical," Inonu said after the meeting.

Despite the tension in Ankara, reports from the Greek-Turkish border said the situation was normal. Greek and Turkish forces have been arrayed along the border for the past week as the crisis mounted. Border guards at Ipsala said traffic was being allowed to pass normally although there were few cars making the trip.

REPORTS DISTURBING

Mr. Campbell said he was disturbed by press reports that many provinces were indifferent to Quebec's aspirations. His province was not indifferent.

Mr. Campbell repeated that Prince Edward Island is ready to consider constitutional change.

Mr. Manning repeated his stand later that French-language rights outside Quebec should not be written into the constitution.

Premier G. I. Smith of Nova Scotia said his province feels that Quebec's request for a new constitution is reasonable.

"Which would we rather do: risk losing Canada or make an effort to write a constitution which would give us hope of keeping Canada?"

Attorney-General Robert Bonner of British Columbia described Mr. Campbell's and Mr. Smith's comments as a "philosophical discussion."

Mr. Bonner rejected the statement of Premier John Roberts of Ontario that one goal for Canadians should be the achievement of a national identity.

Mr. Bonner said Canadians are "completely identifiable" and should not be too concerned about their identity.

Mr. Campbell repeated that Prince Edward Island is ready to consider constitutional change.

Mr. Manning repeated his stand later that French-language rights outside Quebec should not be written into the constitution.

Premier G. I. Smith of Nova Scotia said his province feels that Quebec's request for a new constitution is reasonable.

"Which would we rather do: risk losing Canada or make an effort to write a constitution which would give us hope of keeping Canada?"

Attorney-General Robert Bonner of British Columbia described Mr. Campbell's and Mr. Smith's comments as a "philosophical discussion."

Mr. Bonner rejected the statement of Premier John Roberts of Ontario that one goal for Canadians should be the achievement of a national identity.

Mr. Bonner said Canadians are "completely identifiable" and should not be too concerned about their identity.

What was needed was a "pork-chop consideration" of the national economy to determine how equalization of the standard of living across Canada was to be achieved, Mr. Bonner said.

ON WAR BRINK

Last Minute Negotiations Over 'Hotline'

By United Press International

Turkey and Greece appeared tonight to have gone to the brink of war over the Cyprus crisis. But last-minute negotiations were being carried out over a telex hotline between Ankara and Athens to ease the "very critical" situation.

Informed sources in Ankara said Turkey delivered an ultimatum to Greece to accept Turkish terms for settlement of the Cyprus crisis or face unspecified "necessary measures." But the reported 8 a.m. PST deadline expired without incident, as Turkey apparently extended its time limit.

THE TURKISH CHIEF OF STAFF called in his armed forces commanders after a day in which a fleet of Turkish warships approached to within 15 miles of Cyprus before returning to their base. Turkish jets screamed over the Mediterranean island 40 miles off the Turkish coast.

Ismet Inonu, 82-year-old former premier who now leads the main opposition party, called on President Cevdet Sunay at Sunay's request. It was Inonu who gave the order to bomb Greek-Cypriot positions on Cyprus when he was leader of a coalition government in 1964.

'VERY CRITICAL'
"The situation is very critical," Inonu said after the meeting.

Despite the tension in Ankara, reports from the Greek-Turkish border said the situation was normal. Greek and Turkish forces have been arrayed along the border for the past week as the crisis mounted. Border guards at Ipsala said traffic was being allowed to pass normally although there were few cars making the trip.

CHANGE IN PACT
Informed Turkish sources said the last minute snag was a Greek statement that in return for concessions it would insist on changes in the 1960 Zurich agreements granting Cyprus independence from Britain.

The agreements permit intervention in Cyprus by either Greece or Turkey if conditions governing treatment of the Greek or Turkish communities in Cyprus are infringed upon. The sources said Greece wants this proviso to be eliminated.

LIMITED MARTIAL LAW
KUALA LUMPUR (AP)—The Malaysian government declared limited martial law in northwestern Malaysia today in an effort to quell spreading racial clashes between Malays and Chinese.

QUEBEC PREMIER

'I'll Try To Oppose Separatism'

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Daniel Johnson of Quebec told the Confederation of Tomorrow conference today that he intends to respect the rights of English-speaking Canadians in Quebec as guaranteed under the constitution.

The premier also said he will try to oppose separatism in Quebec not only with words but by trying to obtain rights for French-speaking Canadians so that they will feel at home in Canada in other places than Quebec.

Premier Alex Campbell of Prince Edward Island challenged Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta at least to consider constitutional changes which would guarantee French-language rights everywhere in Canada.

He did this by referring to "exponents of the doctrine of variety." Mr. Manning on Monday identified himself as a believer in the "doctrine of variety."

Pearson Slaps At de Gaulle

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson today described General de Gaulle's latest statement on Canada as "intolerable" intervention in the domestic affairs of Canada.

He told an applauding House of Commons that the future of Canadian Confederation will be decided in Canada by Canadians.

Mr. Pearson, recalling his earlier rejection of the French President's call in Montreal for "Vive le Quebec Libre," told the Commons:

"It is intolerable that a foreign head of state or government should recommend a course of political or constitutional action which would destroy Confederation and the unity of our state."

Later he added:

"... To those who would set us free we answer: 'We are free.' The prime minister's statement was the first major reaction by the Canadian government to the French president's news conference Monday when he predicted Quebec would reach the level of a state 'sovereign and master of its existence.'"

HAVE GOOD SENSE

Mr. Pearson said all Canadians, French-speaking and English-speaking, have the ability and good sense to make the right decisions about their future, but they will do so "in their own way and through their own due processes."

The prime minister agreed with Gen. de Gaulle that the Canadian constitution must be brought up to date. He also agreed the federal government should promote special and close cultural relations with France and other French-speaking countries.

There was no argument on this point, "except with those who would use those relations to destroy the federal government's responsibility for foreign affairs."

All Canadians possess the opportunity to exercise their political rights, Mr. Pearson declared.

"Self-determination is no new discovery for us," he said to more boisterous desk-thumping by all parties.

"We do not need to have it offered to us. It is an insult to assert the contrary."

"To those who would set us free we answer: 'We are free.'"

WILL STAY TOGETHER

Approaching the end of his message, Mr. Pearson said that despite those who would disunite Canada, the country will remain united in a federal system that is being brought into line with the times.

Quebec PM To Visit De Gaulle

PARIS (Reuters)—Quebec Premier Johnson will visit French President de Gaulle in January. It was officially learned today. The exact date remains to be agreed.

Johnson played host to de Gaulle when he visited Quebec in July and caused an uproar by exclaiming to a crowd in Montreal, "Vive le Quebec libre—the slogan of the separatists in Quebec."

It is understood that while Johnson is here, there will be an attempt to work out a Franco-Quebec Friendship Treaty on the lines of the Franco-German Friendship Treaty of 1963. Under its terms, heads of government consult one another twice a year and departmental ministers meet more frequently.

Mr. Pearson concluded dramatically by quoting extensively from a 1960 de Gaulle speech praising Canada as a solid and stable state.

He did not make clear whose speech it was until after he finished quoting from it.

Then he said:

"I agree with the words of Gen. de Gaulle in 1960. I disagree with his words in November, 1967." He sat down to general applause.

The French president's remarks came on the day Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson spoke of Canadian unity at the opening in Toronto of a four-day conference of premiers to consider the country's current and future constitutional needs.

Johnson adopted a fairly conciliatory tone in his two and half hour address to the conference and indicated the majority of French-Canadians hoped to achieve limited autonomy "within Canada" to pursue their cultural ambitions.

However, premiers of English-speaking provinces said they were "disturbed" by Johnson's remark that the constitution should be rewritten to preserve the rights of the French-Canadian minority.

Cartage Firm Answers Dr. Lotta's Call for Help

By KATHRINE THOMAS

Dr. Lotta Hirschmanova has already found one Good Samaritan among Victorians.

When she spoke to the St. Beaver Kiwanis Club last week, she mentioned, how badly the Unitarian Service Committee needed a new depot for clothing.

Jim Coffey, president of Fairfield Moving and Storage, 116 Dallas Road, has offered the services of his company.

He agreed to give the USC storage space, to supply free cartons and to move the parcels six times a year to Vancouver.

The Kiwanians offered assistance with packing and Mr. Coffey suggested the USC use his spot announcements on a local radio station to urge support for the Times Christmas appeal.

Donations of warm woolen clothing, badly needed throughout Asia, can be left at the new depot, Monday through Saturday, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and there is easy parking available beside the building.

"What fantastic generosity," said Dr. Lotta. "It gave me such joy."

Not all of us are able to help the USC in such a concrete way but every small contribution we make to the Times fund helps to keep alive the hungry children of Asia.

The nightmare of Bihar—Starvation was everywhere last March and children, their bloated tummies filled with air and worms, struggled on their matchstick-like legs to walk.

A USC dollar provides:

● 100 cups of milk for starving boys and girls in India and Korea.

● 25 copious meals for slum dwellers in Calcutta and Bangalore.

● 16 medical visits and medicines to isolated Indian villages.

And for $1.70 a needy Indian mother can have a new sari—perhaps her only one.

Contributions to the Children of Asia Fund may be sent in care of the Victoria Daily Times. A list of contributors follows:

First, a report on the score hung up by our husband-wife walking team in Saturday's long-to-be-remembered "Miles for Millions" march.

To my pride and pleasure, my dear companion of many another hike finished the 25.8-mile route in good foot at 8:30 p.m.

But to my infinite disgust, a bad knee forced me out of contention at the 22-mile mark.

Through the generosity of the 56 readers who sponsored us, we expect to turn about $470 over to the "Miles for Millions" campaign.

Now, a note to those sponsors, along with our sincere thanks.

Please make your cheques out to "Miles for Millions" and send them to the care of the Times. I will deposit them in the student fund's Bank of Montreal account and turn all deposit slips over to march co-ordinator Bob Taylor, along with our sponsor sheets.

Should you wish a tax-deductible receipt, you have but to pass me the word.

Even on Saturday morning, when we were trudging the first cold-foot mile, sponsors were still checking in.

We're pleased to acknowledge backing for the fund from Mr. and Mrs. H. Silver, "Edna and Fraser," Gwen Cash, D. G. Newstead, Mrs. Esme Windle, Mrs. R. Reynolds, Roland Miltret, G. J. Hope, Mrs. G. Johanson of Elsie's Gift Shop, Sue Mayse, Ron Mayse, Mrs. M. Gooden, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ivelty, Mr. and Mrs. S. Haines, Mrs. Vera Bell, and six anonymous per-mile pledges.

As for the walk itself, we will always be glad we took part in it, and not merely because it was in aid of a sound cause.

We have never agreed with those who damn today's young people as soft, spoiled and self-centred. But if proof of their quality and style were needed, it was abundantly obvious on Saturday's long, long roads.

Nobody made them undertake the march. They were, every blessed one of them, eager volunteers. They started out gallantly and they finished gamely, in such numbers as must startle even those who knew their capabilities.

Between start and finish, more than one of them left blood on those roads from feet whose blisters had broken and rubbed raw.

We saw kids who had shed one shoe or both, and who by rights should have been riding back to base in rescue car or army van. But they kept plugging on.

There was one girl, about halfway along the route, who hobbled between two friends with short, blonde pony tails bobbing on each side of her radiant head. She had discarded a shoe. The green sock on her other foot was already stained, but drop out she would not.

Also, the young ones encouraged each other, and had a good word for the grownups who walked with them. I know that their friendliness kept me going for several miles past the check-point I had figured as my probable limit.

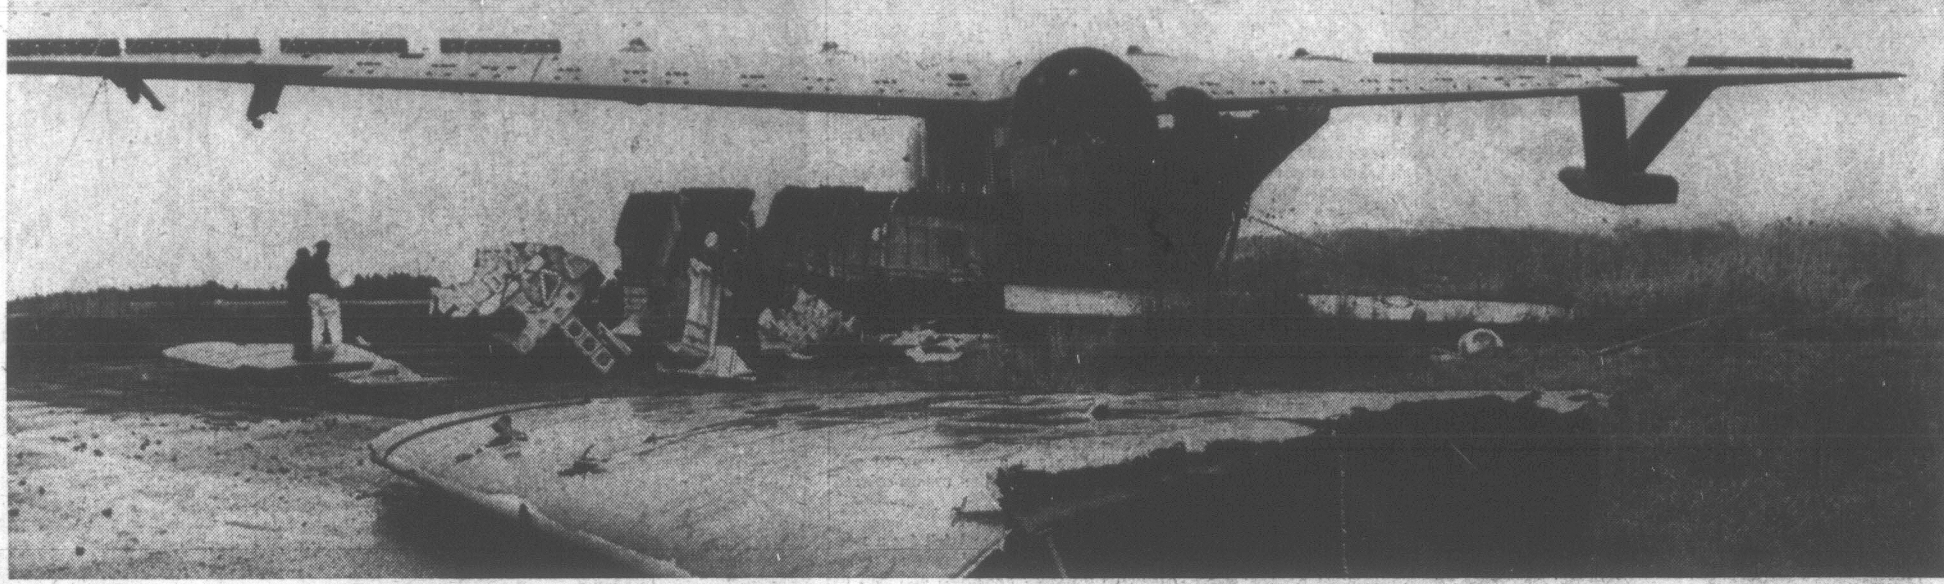

The only word I can find for those thousands is a five-buck one I rarely drag out. They were magnificent.

They had their slogans — "These Boots are Made for Walking," proclaimed in gay letters on a serpent of wrapping paper, or another group's wonderfully impudent, "We Challenge You!"

Some of these banners were discarded along the way, with the lesser detritus of a legion on the march. We saw a running shoe with worn sole bulged in a rubber blister, and, in no less eloquent token, the ankle ends of a pair of stretch pants, hacked off jaggedly as if with a blunt pocket knife.

If I seem to slight the adults who went along or gave aid and comfort to the marchers, this is only because the big walk was essentially, youth's show, both at the start in the morning chill with bagpipes skirling, and on along the ups and downs of almost 26 miles of pavement, blacktop and roadside gravel.

That's it for today. Tomorrow, I'll tell you about our walk, which proved too long for me, but too short for my feather-footed wife.

CN Aware Of City's Dock Woes

A Victoria Chamber of Commerce delegation to Vancouver Monday was well received by Canadian National Railways in discussions on the future of Ogden Point docks.

The group, led by chamber president William Armstrong and harbor-transportation chairman George Farmer, offered dock-lessee Canadian National Railways some suggestions for improvement to facilities.

"They are aware Victoria is declining in port traffic," Mr. Farmer said. "They are interested in the Port of Victoria and would be glad to assist in improvement of facilities."

But the CN, which was represented by B.C. area manager J. A. Pollock, pointed out the need of a cost survey first, covering such things as dredging and repairs to pier caissons.

This study should be available within two months, Mr. Farmer thought. After that it would be possible to approach other federal authorities, such as the transport department, for consent to a port improvement program.

Rites Thursday For Sheringham Light-Keeper

Funeral services will be conducted Thursday for Frederick Arthur Mountain, 60, who died Sunday at Sheringham Point Lightstation.

Mr. Mountain had been senior light-keeper there since 1950. He joined the Department of Transport in 1941 as senior light-keeper at Carmanah Point station and in 1952 was transferred to Entrance Island near Nanaimo Harbor.

He is survived by the widow, Nellie, whose brother, F. G. Copeland, is senior light-keeper at Calloway Point; a son Arthur, chief officer aboard the Canadian Coast Guard icebreaker Camshell.

Funeral services will be conducted from McCall Bros. Floral Chapel, Thursday at 1:15 p.m.

Wreckers Carve Up Caroline

By DOREEN HUNTER

The lonely outcast of the Martin Mars fleet is falling prey to wrecking crews.

The giant aircraft which became a landmark on the north side of the Patricia Bay airport lies in pieces—almost as if it had crash-landed.

Forest Industries Flying Tankers Ltd. has sold "Caroline" for scrap to Capitol Iron Works of Victoria.

The company expects to get some 30 tons of aluminum out of the stripped hull plus some steel and manganese.

Flying Tankers still operate two converted Mars as water-bombers from Sprout Lake near Port Alberni.

PARTS USED

The "orphan" at Patricia Bay was never converted but was cannibalized for parts.

An official said the company has enough parts to last for a number of years. No parts were available from the manufacturer because it is believed only six of the planes were built.

The 155-foot planes with the 135-foot wingspan were built towards the end of the Second World War.

They were considered one of the finest engineered aircraft ever made.

"There was no finer workmanship on any aircraft," said one of the men who worked on the water bombers.

The planes—which could carry 300 troops—were used to transport the sick and wounded during the Korean War.

In 1959 the remaining four were bought by a company formed by several major B.C. lumber firms.

Three were converted for fire-fighting.

In 1961, one of the planes crashed while fighting fire at Northwest Bay, north of Nanaimo, and its four crew members killed.

ACCLAMATION FOR SIX REGION POSTS

Six of seven directors on the Capital District Regional planning Board were re-elected by acclamation for two-year terms Monday.

Unopposed when nominations closed were William Reader representing Colwood; Langford representative John Williams; John Tipton, Sooke; Albert Beasley, View Royal; Howard Elder, Sooke, and Joan Purchase, Outer Islands.

Only on Salt Spring Island will there be a contest Dec. 9 between incumbent Douglas Cavaye and Gilbert Humphreys.

WILLISTON:

No Pushing On Cowichan Flood Control

Resources Minister Ray Williston today said his department is not pushing for a controversial flood control program on the Cowichan River.

"We were asked to do a survey by the municipal authorities to suggest a program that would resolve the problem of periodic flooding by the river," he said in an interview.

"There's no opposition to it and it's not a matter of life or death from our standpoint because it's up to them (municipalities) how this is resolved."

(Area residents who fear the proposed project would destroy sport fishing on the river have circulated a petition opposing it.)

Mr. Williston said he was not aware if the study had gone as far as estimating expenditures but the cost "would be on a shared basis, I would assume."

Is Tight Money Behind Delay On Blanshard?

By JIM HUME

Times City Hall Reporter
Construction of the Blanshard Street school, designed to replace archaic North Ward School in the Rose-Blanshard urban renewal area, is under way.

But it is the only sign of activity in the 30-acre area designated to be cleared for Victoria's first low-rental housing project.

And city hall officials are wondering with some concern if the provincial government's austerity program is creating the delay in the announcement from the province of its intentions regarding the 130 housing units to be built in the area.

J. Everett Brown, provincial housing commissioner and deputy minister of municipal affairs, insists that the lack of a decision to date does not indicate reluctance on the part of his government to commit funds to cover 25 per cent of construction costs.

NORMAL DELAY

He says the delay is normal while the many details of such an ambitious program are ironed out.

City officials remain unconvinced.

They point out that a letter dated Feb. 23, 1967, spelling out the city's recommendations for

PIZZA MAN SLAYER SERVES HIS TIME AT WILLIAM HEAD

Carpenter Orlando Trozzo, convicted of manslaughter last May in a sidewalk shooting, is now serving his seven-year sentence at William Head minimum security prison.

Superintendent Gamaliel Milner confirmed today Trozzo has been transferred to the institution.

It is not unusual for persons convicted of major crimes to end up at William Head, said Mr. Milner.

"A great deal more depends upon the man than the charge."

Trozzo was originally charged with capital murder after he shot Mario Fata, 18, outside his pizza parlor on downtown Douglas Street, April 8, in an argument over a debt.

STUDENTS LOOK AHEAD

Ideas Sparkle For Overseas Aid

A group of Victoria students met today to ensure that the spirit of Saturday's great march goes marching on.

They decided to form a new, wider youth committee representative of the Greater Victoria area to mould new schemes to aid overseas development.

The committee would work with an adult advisory committee to maintain the interest of the total community in the project.

The meeting, in the office of the school board special projects officer Ken Bloomfield, was attended by Mr. Bloomfield, Uvic student Bob Taylor who chaired the Project 100 march organization, Bob McDougall, president of Oak Bay High students council; Glen Willing of the Adult Institute (who was the first to complete the march) and Roger Skilling, head of the Victoria High School student council.

Mr. Taylor said the meeting evolved from a common desire to maintain the enthusiasm shown in the great march on a long-term basis to benefit students in underdeveloped countries.

ANNUAL SHOW
Initial discussions showed an intention to continue the march or some similar project embracing the community, on an annual basis.

Also in the idea stage is a proposal to send teachers with Project 100 mobile classrooms going abroad and also send students to observe the program and report back to other students. Students benefiting from the program in places like Tanzania and Guyana might be brought here on an exchange basis.

GOVERNMENT AID
Another suggested aim is the winning of support from governments in further financing.

Mr. Taylor reported that a telegram was sent today by school board chairman Peter Bunn to Maurice Strong, director general of the External Aid program, asking Ottawa to match funds raised by Canadian students.

"Help our young to give to the young to help raise a new world community," said Mr. Bunn's message.

He sent a second telegram to Prime Minister Pearson advising him of the success of the student-inspired march which saw more than 10,000 people take part.

Indecent Assault Hearing Ends; Trial Coming

A man accused of indecent assault on a woman was to be committed for trial today.

Preliminary hearing into the charge against Paul Franklin, 21, of 2639 Mt. Stephen Avenue, was held in central court this morning.

Franklin is charged with indecently assaulting Mrs. Elizabeth Keddie, 101 Ontario Street, Oct. 18.

Hypnosis Group Meets Friday

Pacific Coast Hypnosis Society is inviting the public to attend its meeting Friday.

Demonstrations will be included in the 8 p.m. meeting at Henderson Hall, 1632 Yale.

President of the society is Frank P. Mallory, a dockyard electronics technician who has applied to City Hall for a licence to open a hypnosis centre here.

Lease-Back Proposal At Parley

British Columbia farmers want senior governments to establish greenbelts around urban areas.

The B.C. Federation of Agriculture at the opening session of its annual convention here today requested governments to purchase farmlands on the outskirts of urban areas.

The land would be leased back to farmers for agricultural purposes.

A member of the B.C. Fruit Growers' Association said the value of agricultural land adjacent to urban areas had risen to uneconomic levels for farm use.

But farmers, he said, are not able to subdivide their land for housing because of zoning regulations passed by municipalities to control the growth of urban development.

'INJUSTICE'

"This injustice prevents the owners of these lands from benefiting from any increase value of their farmlands and thus participating in the general progress of these areas," he said.

The answer is for the government to purchase these lands and lease them back to farmers, he said.

The two-day convention was opened at the Empress Hotel by Archie Stevenson, president. Delegates from more than 80 organizations were present.

Ald. Geoff. Edgewood welcomed the delegates on behalf of Mayor High Stephen.

Richard B. Stocks, manager, disclosed the Farmers' Union of B.C. with a membership of 300, had withdrawn from the federation on the grounds that it could not meet the organization's fees.

The group, composed of members all living in the Peace River block, had submitted 10 resolutions to the convention. All were withdrawn.

Hunters Walk Out After Hunt Starts

Two Victoria men walked out of the bush in the rugged Niti-ni country Monday to end an overnight search by RCMP and the Alberni Rescue Squadron.

Wayne Norman and David Price, both 20, were sought when they failed to keep a rendezvous with Price's father at noon Sunday.

Ask The Times

Q. What organizations across Canada preach, teach and nurse in poverty-stricken countries? C.A.W.

A. Most Canadian churches, particularly Anglican, Roman Catholic and United, do extensive preaching, teaching and nursing abroad. Missionary work is also done by the International Red Cross, Canadian Red Cross, the Save the Children Fund, the Unitarian Service and OXFAM (Oxford Committee for Famine Relief).

Q. What is the best kind of gift to send for a baby girl if you are invited to the christening but are unable to attend?—L.A.T.

A. Articles of clothing are usually most needed but it is not essential that you send a gift if you are not able to attend. A note of congratulation would be sufficient.

HAUNTED BY DOUBTS

McNamara to Get World Bank Post

By RICHARD HARWOOD
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON—Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara has been nominated by President Johnson to become the next president of the World Bank.

The nomination was submitted to the bank's 20 directors at an informal meeting last week. If it is approved as expected, by the bank's 106 member nations, McNamara could begin his new career early next year.

Neither the White House nor the Pentagon would confirm that McNamara is on his way out and would not comment on a report that Texas Gov. John Connally may take over the defence department.

However, McNamara's departure from the Johnson administration has been rumored for months.

WANTED TO LEAVE

As a long time friend of the McNamara family remarked, "He's been wanting to leave for so long. And he needs it too. He's dead."

That he now has finally decided to move on was confirmed Monday by sources within the international financial community.

One of the World Bank's directors said the nomination was submitted last week by Livingstone Merchant, who represents the United States on the bank board. "It was submitted," this source said, "as the final choice of the United States. Other names had been considered earlier but McNamara was the one decided upon."

OTHER NOMINEES

The first news of the appointment—which has been rumored in financial circles since September—was published Monday in the Financial Times of London on the basis of information supplied by a World Bank director.

McNamara, said the London paper, was chosen over several other possible nominees including David Rockefeller of the Chase-Manhattan Bank; David Bell, former administrator of the Agency for International Development; and C. Douglas Dillon, former secretary of the treasury.

For nearly seven years, McNamara has borne the physical and psychological burdens of managing the biggest military establishment in the world, and institution with 4.5 million employees, a budget of more than $81 billion, and a nuclear arsenal that could devastate the earth.

WAR STRATEGY

There have been repeated indications, also, that McNamara differed with President Johnson and other influential Pentagon military advisers on Vietnam war strategy.

On several occasions McNamara's public statements of bombing policy in North Vietnam have been reversed in the field.

He has, accordingly, become identified in Washington as more of a "dove" than either the joint chiefs of staff or such civilian officials as Secretary of State Dean Rusk and presidential adviser Walt. W. Rostow.

Finally, it is known that he has been haunted by doubts that his original counsel to two presidents to escalate the U.S. presence and the U.S. commitment in Vietnam may have been ill-advised. Until now, this fear has been less compelling than his unwillingness to leave office without seeing its major problem through. Why he is now willing to quit remained unexplained Monday night.

'HAS MY ULCER'

His wife has been sick. ("She has my ulcer," McNamara has said). He has held the job longer than anyone in history and has seemed less buoyant lately than when he entered the Pentagon in January, 1961, as a 44-year-old financial whiz kid from the Ford Motor Company.

He is generally conceded to have been the first secretary of defence to establish firmly the principle and practice of civilian control of the military.

Education Aide Quits Over Vietnam Policy

By THE WASHINGTON POST

WASHINGTON—Charles Frankel, assistant secretary of state for educational and cultural affairs, has resigned because of the Vietnam War.

The former Columbia University philosophy professor will leave the government at the end of December.

His written resignation, submitted two weeks ago to the White House, has been verbally acknowledged by President Johnson.

Frankel's reason for leaving is his feeling that the war has caused too many problems in his area of the state department. "He has found that his budget has been cut and that less attention is being paid to his area because of the concentration on the war."

While Frankel's responsibilities have nothing to do with the war, he has let Secretary of State Dean Rusk and others know that he is in opposition to the conflict. In short, his conclusion was that he could not remain at his post as a good soldier in what he considers to be a bad cause.

McCarthy Ready To Oppose LBJ

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senators for Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota expresses hope his early entry as a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination will solidify behind him currently diffused opposition to President Johnson's Vietnam policies.

McCarthy's official announcement that he will undertake the probably unrewarding task of trying to deny an incumbent president renomination is set for Thursday.

Acknowledging he is ready "to get my feet wet," McCarthy said in an interview that an early start is essential if he is to convince prospective supporters he means business.

He indicated he will pledge to go all the way even if he encounters setbacks in early primaries.

Inherent in this is his obvious belief that some of the score or more of organizations that have been springing up to push Senator Robert F. Kennedy (Dem., N.Y.) as an anti-war candidate will turn to him if they become convinced Kennedy means what he says when he asserts he will not run.

New Hampshire may furnish a test case in this respect. Kennedy backers there have ignored the senator's repudiation of their efforts. Thus far McCarthy's crusade seems to have attracted little attention in the state which holds the first primary, March 12.

As far as McCarthy is concerned, the big one will be the June 4 California primary.

A "Citizens for Kennedy in 1968" group has welcomed McCarthy into the race in behalf of "disturbed Democrats," but has made it clear that if Johnson should step aside, they would support the New York senator and not his Minnesota colleague.

The Louis Harris poll reported finding that Kennedy, whose views on Vietnam appear closer to McCarthy's than Johnson's, now leads Johnson by a 52- to 32-per-cent margin among voters asked who they'd prefer to see as the 1968 Democratic nominee.

The Harris sampling compared with a Kennedy lead of 42-41 per cent in September, 1966, and 48-39 per cent just a month ago.

The poll, copyrighted by the Washington Post, found more than half those it interviewed felt Kennedy had many of the same "outstanding qualities" as his brother, the late president Kennedy.

Israelis Angered By de Gaulle Charge

By UPI

Israel is considering withdrawing its ambassador from Paris to protest Charles de Gaulle's verbal attack on the country at his Monday news conference, Jerusalem reports said today.

In his news conference de Gaulle once again branded Israel an aggressor in the six-day June war as he did at the outset of hostilities. Israeli sources said this was hitting below the belt since de Gaulle spoke of trying to live with both the Arabs and the Jews.

Premier Levi Eshkol was reported to be consulting his cabinet about Israeli action, considered in Jerusalem to be an agonizing reappraisal of his country's relations with France.

France was Israel's chief supplier of arms including the jets which ravished the Arab air forces, but de Gaulle imposed an arms embargo at the outset of hostilities.

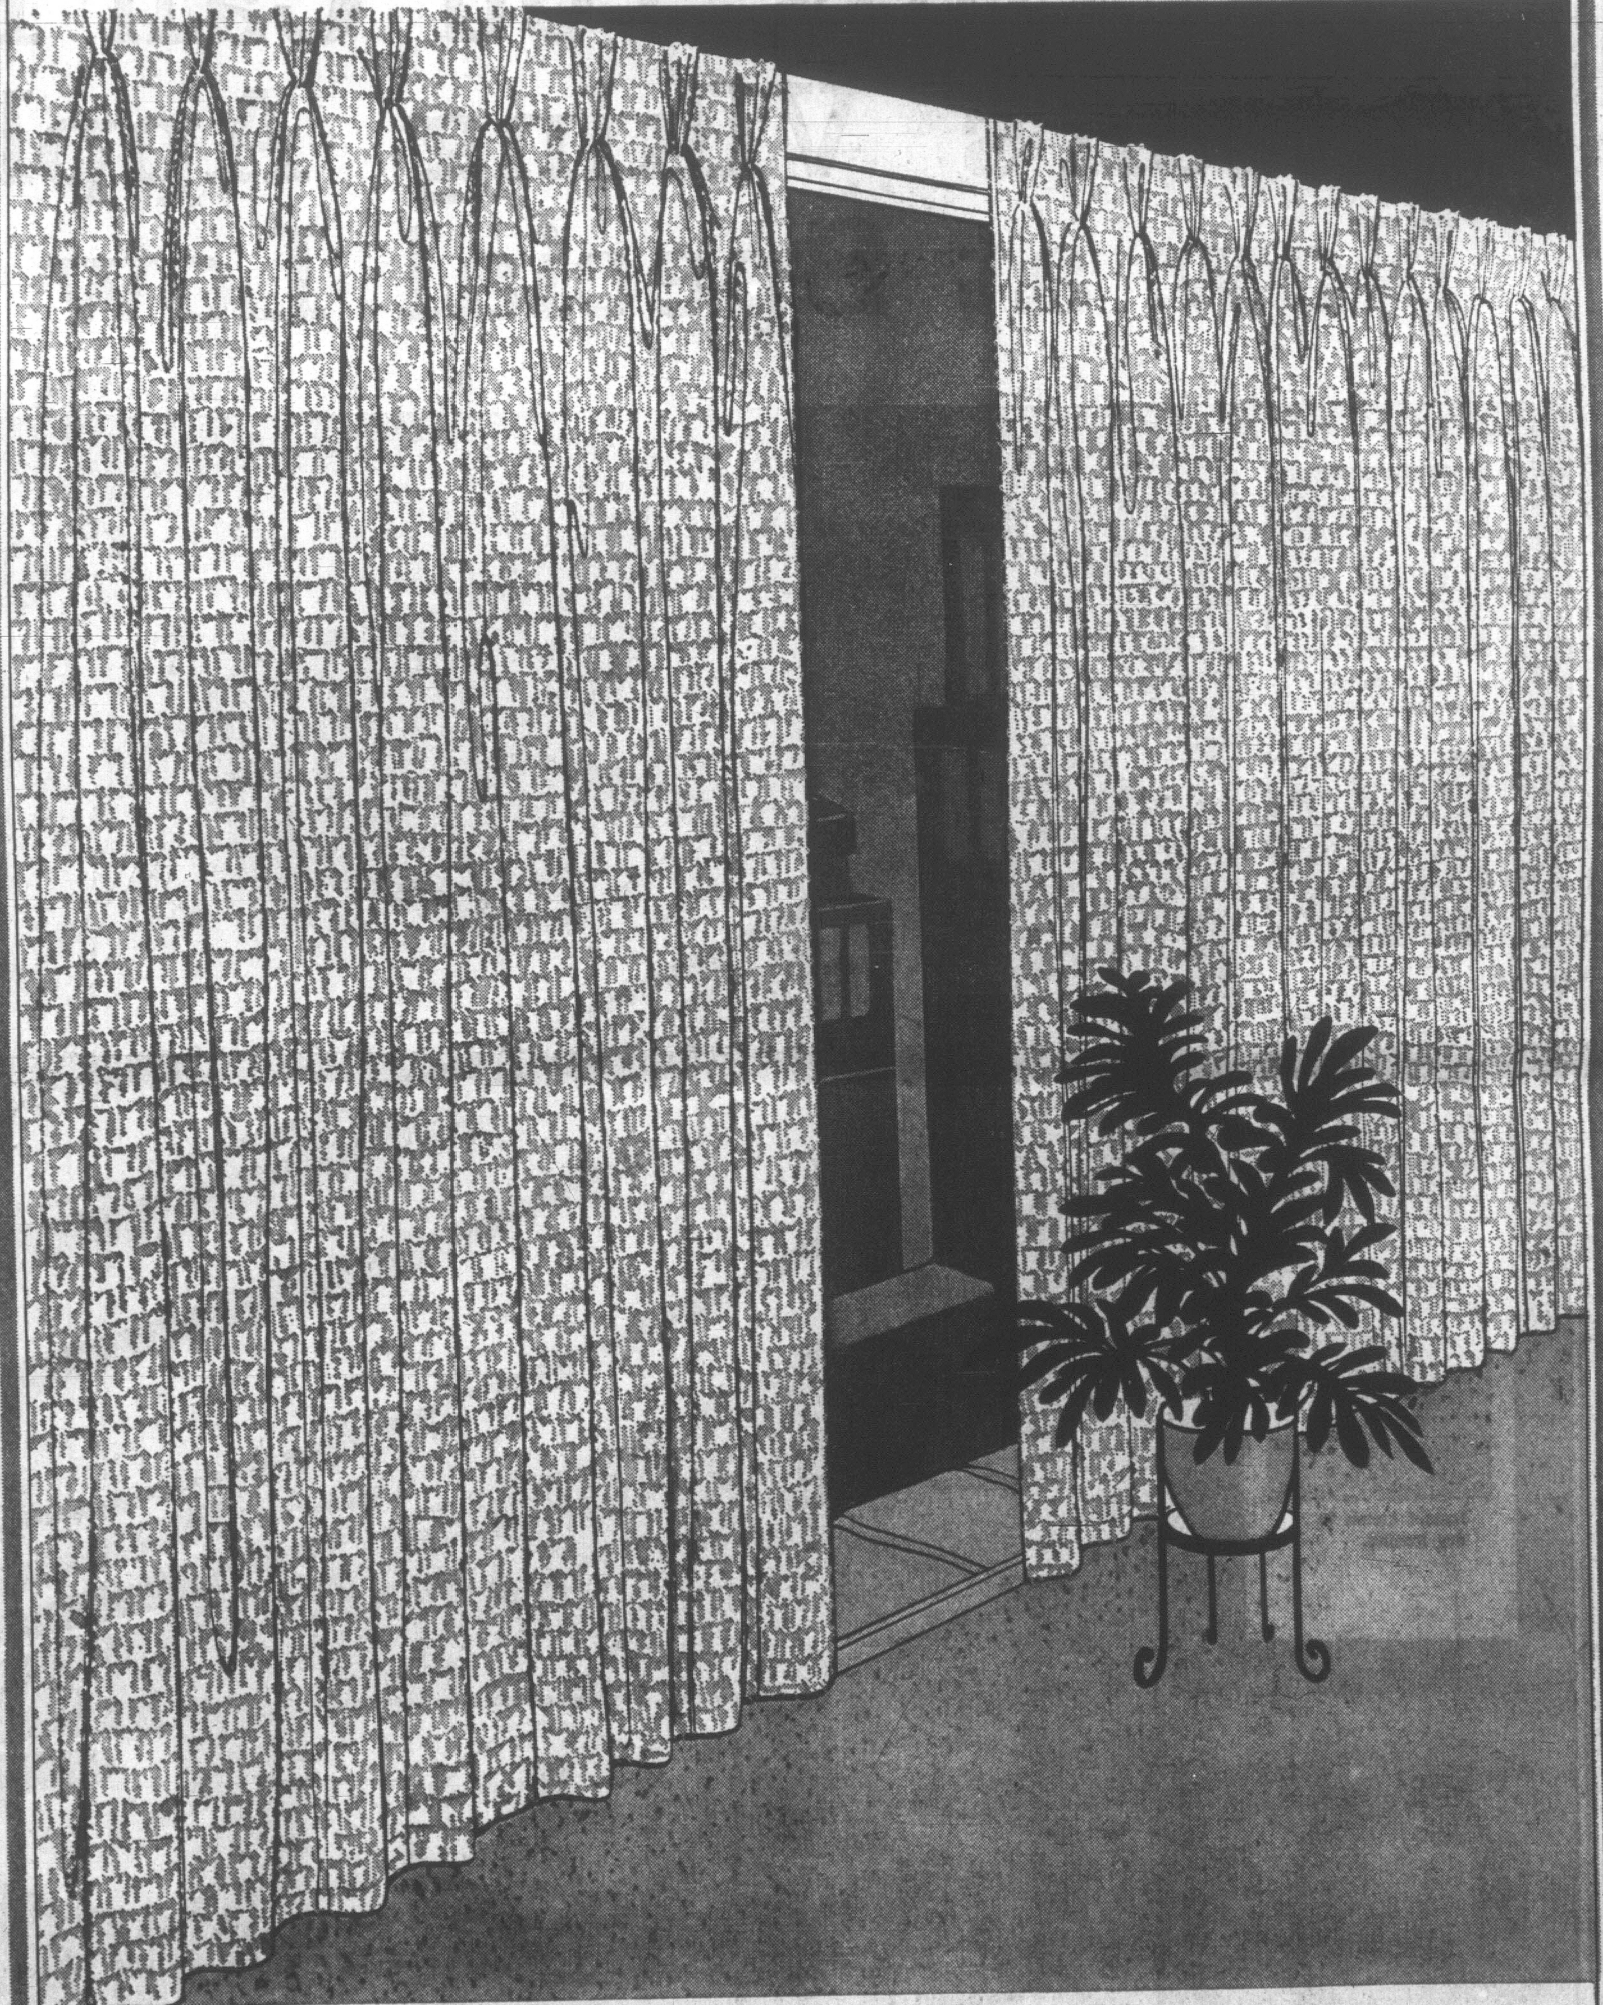

Informed Israeli sources said if Israel did not withdraw its ambassador from Paris it would be because Eshkol and the cabinet decided such an act would play into de Gaulle's hands in his current efforts to woo the Arabs.
